

An Experiment that Failed.
They hung a man in Pittsburgh last month, under the mistaken notion that the State could stop people killing each other by killing one itself. The experiment proved a dead failure, as we would have told them it would before they tried. The subject of the experiment was a hard drinker who, being drunk, got into a fight last year in behalf of a friend, and killed a man with very little idea of what he was doing. So they had him arrested, tried, convicted, sentenced, reprieved, exhorted, prayed for, and finally hung. The Dispatch gives the following account of the sequel:
"Our people are now pretty thoroughly convinced that hanging a man will neither prevent grog shops selling liquor to madden others, young men from drinking it, nor drunken ruffians from cutting the throats or hearts of their fellow men."
On Friday, 24th ult., David Jewell was hanged for murder—and before two weeks had elapsed our columns recorded no less than seven persons strangled, one of them since dead, and another mortally injured! In Birmingham, one man was killed, and two others injured. In the Sixth Ward, in the Fifth Ward, a man cut his friend's throat by mistake, in his drunken fury. Again, in day time, a negro let out another's bowels, in the Sixth Ward; and on Thursday night of last week, in a grog shop in the First Ward, a notorious ruffian inflicted nearly a dozen cuts upon an acquaintance, because he declined drinking with him.
Such is an outline of the cutting and slashing in our city, during the two weeks immediately following an execution, which thousands really believed would strike terror to the bowels of the community! It is useless to repeat, that the hanging of Jewell has had no effect whatever in checking the crime of which he was convicted, nor need we enlarge upon the reasons of such a result. When will the community understand, that it is the promptness, and especially the certainty of punishment, which can alone restrain the hand that is ready to imbrue itself in a brother's blood—and that no such promptness, no such certainty, can be had where the punishment is death?
Every one of the cases of stabbing we have been called upon to record, save the execution of a felon, the perpetrator had been drinking intoxicating liquor, and had been drunk.
When a grave, prudent, conservative citizen smokes their heads over the folly of concerned youngsters who will try experiments as to the improvement of social relations or conditions when they ought to know well that, because such things have failed, yet have succeeded in all the experiments of the Legislature of men to sell Rum and then hang those who drink Rum, and are madened by it into imbruing their hands in blood—which is always fatal, always will, always must fail; and yet some people will persist in having it repeated and persevered in as though it were certain to succeed next time! Nay; we have a Governor in this State who of himself upholds the licensing and superintends the hanging! Was there ever before such a thing?—N. Y. Tribune.

Slavery and Democracy.
The South fears Gerrit Smith's influence in Congress, and the New Orleans Commercial attacks him for his late speech on the Kosciusko affair. That paper, with a canor we should like much to see in the North, acknowledges that "the who goes at all forward in the revered doctrine of democracy, must presently, if he is honest, fall into abolitionism." There is no truer saying than this—and the Commercial very properly adds: "If all men are born free and equal, and are inalienably entitled to the same rights, then abolitionism is inevitable, and is identical with Democracy."
William Leggett, one of the few honest political editors we have had, whose party crushed him and then built a monument in his memory, which cannot prove so imperishable as his living words, once emphatically remarked: "I convince me that a principle is right in the abstract, and I will reduce it to practice if I can"—but we have too few of his stamp in public station, or controlling the press of our country, or abiding word ere this have triumphed. The South has been bold enough to abandon its ground that "Slavery is a necessary evil," and now proclaims it a great good—not sinful in itself, nor through its necessary results, and upon that ground defends it with "bible," and all kinds of arguments—thus sowing deep the seeds of infidelity, for we hold that the honest man who is convinced that inhumanity is sustained by true Christianity, cannot long be a Christian. Mitchell, the Irish rebel, of whom we expected better things, is no democrat; he is even a republican—and, in the second number of his Citizen, announces himself in favor of slavery, and expresses a wish that he was the owner of a Southern plantation, well stocked with human cattle. How can we respect the man who flies from oppression in the old world to uphold its banner on the shores of the new? Mr. Mitchell will find that linking himself with despots here, will be the last made by which he will succeed in overthrowing monarchy abroad—for the despots of Europe have no firmer allies, and the rebels abroad no more bitter enemies, than the Slaveholders of America. Consistency compels them to ignore human rights everywhere, and even now many of them clamor for such an international Fugitive Law as would return Mr. Mitchell to his foreign prison.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Col. Benton's Speech.
Col. Benton's speech yesterday was a telling assault upon the Nebraska bill. Certainly among the many very able speeches against that bill in both Houses of Congress there is none which has dealt it a more fatal injury than this. The historical arguments adduced by the veteran orator, his assertion of the duty of preserving the public faith and leaving undisturbed a time-honored national compact, his sarcastic demolition of the new fangled sophism of non-intervention and territorial sovereignty, his exposition of the uselessness of the proposed fraud to the slave States themselves, and not least of all, his scathing rebuke of the notorious interference of the President and his minions to secure the passage of the measure—render this speech a salient feature in this memorable and important debate. It is scarcely necessary to say that it is marked throughout by the peculiar manner and replete with the mordant though homely wit of its author; it is equally unnecessary to add that there are points in it, principles, statements, inferences to which we should find it difficult to agree; but that all who desire the defeat of the great political swindle at which it is aimed must welcome it with satisfaction as a very powerful, if not a final blow at that shapeless, repulsive and odious monster. Coming with such force of reasoning and with the authority of Col. Benton's long experience and eminent position in our legislation, it must be deeply felt both by the authors and the antagonists of the bill; adding to the discouragement of the one and cheering the efforts of the other. It is a desperate struggle which the latter have to sustain at once against the patronage and power of the Executive and the shameful co-operation of many southern gentlemen, from whom better things were to be expected, in the work of fraud, folly, deception, and dishonor. We can only hope that this struggle may yet be crowned with success, and our hope is greatly strengthened by this demonstration of Col. Benton's.

The Unity of Despots.
The New-Orleans daily True Delta of March 30, contains the following, side by side, in contiguous columns: "Courage! Who would Ray away, on the 12th Feb. last, a negro That had the strength, named Severin, to dig a grave, yellow complexion, And therein his fetters with long, curly hair, Jude, his teeth are very much, And by a tyrant by his decayed, French side?—and English, and is a Courage! Hope, however in English fellow, and he is in the habit of For a time, can never getting work at paint-diet, therefore, houses. Said boy is brother men! about 24 years of age, Cry 'Gou!' and to the will probably pass as a free man. A reward of $50 will be given for him, and $100 for evidence to convict any freeperson for harboring or employing him. DANE, Brox."

It ought to be evident by this time that our Southern brethren live in the wrong country, and talk a great deal of nonsense in consequence. They should either abolish their peculiar institution, or change their political system. Slavery requires a despotism like that of Russia to save it from being absurd, as well as pernicious and inhuman.—Tribune.

War Declared at Last.
THE long repose of Europe is about to be disturbed by the bugle's note and the rattle of the drum, calling its shivering millions to arms in the defense of their firesides and their country. England and France are calling for men and means, and sending forward their armies to battle against the aggressions of the Russian Bear; but while the Old World is convulsed by revolution, unusual peace and plenty reign in the New.

In the peaceful and quiet pursuit of our business we have formed a copartnership under the name and style of N. S. BUTLER & CO., and have taken the store in Empire Block, in the village of Olean, formerly occupied by Thiney & Co., and are now receiving a special new stock of goods adapted to the season and wants of the community, which we intend to sell exclusively for cash down, at prices that will cause consternation and dismay in the ranks of old logjams that has been so long established in this section.

Our stock will consist in part of the following Goods: Hardware, Crockery, Boots & Shoes, Hats, Caps, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Druggs, Medicines, Dye Stuffs, Glass, Paints & Oils, Sash, Putty, Chairs, Bedsteads, Mattresses, Feather Beds, Stone and Wooden Ware, and we mean to keep such an assortment of the above goods that persons from distant places can be assured of finding everything they usually want at prices that will do them good. Call and see for yourselves.

To Printers.
A NEW edition of the Specimen Book of Bruce's New-York Type Foundry was published in September, 1853, and will be given to those proprietors of printing offices who will send for it, or it will be forwarded by mail, on receipt, in advance, of fifty cents for postage. In it are exhibited many articles never before shown. There have been added to the foundry new varieties of Roman types from nine-line pica to pearl, various imitations of writing, a great number of fancy fonts, borders, both plain and illuminated, labor-saving rules, and a complete foundry of Germans. The types now manufactured are cast from a new combination of metal of great durability, and are usually kept on hand in large quantities. Every fancy font is sold by weight and at the printed prices, which are from 10 to 25 per cent. less than those of some other foundries. All other materials are sold at manufacturers' prices, either for cash or credit. Printers wishing to open accounts with me, or whose dealings have long been suspended, are requested to accompany their orders with city references, to prevent delay.

Printers of Newspapers who choose to publish this advertisement, including this note, three times before the first of August, 1854, will be paid for it in type when they purchase five times the amount of their bill from me, or my own manufactures, selected from my specimens. 13 Chambers-street, New-York. The undersigned, Trustees of the Coudersport Academy, are moved by a sense of official and personal duty to invite the attention of the Public—of parents in particular, to the rising and useful character of this Institution of Learning. When invited, a little more than a half-year ago, to the superintendence of its affairs, we found it depressed and still declining. We requested Mr. J. Bloomingdale to become its Principal Teacher, and entrusted its organization and other most onerous affairs to his discretion and management. Experience has proved him to be faithful, efficient, and practical—just such an instructor as this community need. The number of pupils in the school is now over sixty. We refer to Mr. Bloomingdale's advertisement for information as to the terms and conditions on which pupils are admitted, and for other facts of interest; and recommend the institution to the patronage of the people.
