TIME FOR CUTTING HAY.

A. Chester county correspondent contributes to the pages of the Farm Journal, the follwing timely article, which is worthy the attention of practical agriculturists:

The practice among farmers of permitting grass to stand in most cases until the seeds are formed, and not unfrequently until they are ripe, has become so general that it seems almost folly to question its correctness; but it is so manifestly at variance with reason and analogy, and with the experience of those who have tested the merits of early and late cut hay, that it may be worth an effort to arrest the popular custom.

Science has long since incontestibly demonstrated that plants in arriving at at maturity, have large quantities of their starch, sugar and gum-their most nutritive elements converted into woody fibre, which contains comparatively very little nutriment.

Experience has proved that cattle will thrive on hay cut before the seeds were formed, while the same cattle, when fed on great quantities of the same kind of hay, but cut after the seeds were ripe, required the addition of grain to "keep them up."

Again: When the experiments of making sugar from corn stalks were being tried, some years ago, it was found that to retain the saccharine matter in the stalks, the ear shoots had to be stripped as soon as they made their appearance, or they became worthless. The moment the ears or seed commenced forming, the starch, sugar and gum lest the stalk and became concentrated in the grain, and of course the stalks, to the sugar maker, were valueless. The instinct of animals, an unerring guide as to what is best suited to their wants, leads them to prefer the early to the late cut hay, as every observing farmer is aware. Even when there is pasture, they invarially leave the tipe stalks, and eat only the younger shoots, although they y have to pick it blade by blade, and are constantly compelled to be feeding to get a sufficient quantity, while the ripe grass stands thick, affording abundance in quantity.

The proper time to cut grass, I repeat, is when the heads begin to filoom. It will not make as much hay, but an acre cut thus, is much more nutritious, and will go further in the keeping of stock, than if left for the seeds to ripea. Any one who will try this experiment, will never again leave it to ripen, although by so doing he may save himself some trouble in making.

SALT YOUR STOCK.

Most persons, probably, are aware of the beneficial effect of salt upon the human system. By the ancients, salt was held in high estimation, and every one has doubtless noticed how extremely insipid meat and vegatables are when cooked without it, or with only an insufficient supply. Horses. cattle and sheep, in short all domestic animals, should be regularly supplied with it at all seasons. The liberal use of this mineral improves their health, and when they have acquired the habtaking too much.

Salt promotes digestion, and destroys or dislodges worms, which at certain seasons effect a lodgement in the stomach and alimentary canal. We have, most of us, probably witnessed with what avidity wild and undomesticated animals seek at certain times the creeks and estuaries which indent the shores of the oceanthe "salt lakes," and what long journeys, dangers and difficulties they voluntarily encounter to reach them. This is the result of pure instinct; it is not to be attributed to mere caprice, as some have imagined.

Horses, sheep and neat cattle and swine are all eager for this sanatory and invigorating substance, and cannot be maintained in a healthy and thriving condition without it. The former, it has been remarked, when liberally fed with salt are seldom afflicted by the "bots" or with that scarcely less to be dreaded disease, the cholic. In salting sheep, especially during the vernal months, when the green, succulent and highly fermentable matter of which they partake has a tendency to create stomachatic derangements, we have a shed erected, and fitted with a range of boxes, in which a supply of salt can be constantly kept, and to which the animals at all times, can have free and unrestrained access. A mixture of one part of salt to two or three parts of Mormons. wood ashes, may also be deposited in some of the boxes. This mixture possesses highly sanatory properties, and should be provided for all animals, particularly when first sent to pasture They soon acquire a relish for it, and partake of it with great avidity.

Salt is also a valuable article in compost. According to CUTHBERT Jourson's statement, it is now extensively used for this purpose by the farmers of Great Britain, and has been found singularly beneficial, particularly on light soils. The "squash vine detroyer," he says is easily prevented the Beneficial of the sively used for this purpose by the from committing its depradations by the application of brine, which is also only exception to this is the dog-wood, which n preventive of aphides, or place lice, is known by its bark."

which so frequently lay waste the turnip and cabbage yards. But it should here be observed, that the direct application of very strong brine will prove fatal to the plants, and that it should be used for this purpose only in a weak state. By pouring it around the roots, it will tend to dislodge worms and other insect depradators. -N. E. Farmer.

NEBRASKA IN PENNSYLVANIA.-A call for an Anti-Nebraska meeting at Laporte, Sullivan county, Pa., was warmly responded to a few days since by a numerous attendance, and without distinction of party, though a majority of the meeting was composed of those who have been accustomed to rally under the Democratic banner. The assemblage was ably addressed by the Hon. David Wilmot, who denounced the conduct of the present Administration in emphatic terms. Strong resolutions were passed in reference to the Nebraska swindle, among which was one avowing a determination to support no man for office who approved the action of Congress in repealing the Missouri Compromise N. Y. Tribune, June 7.

THE FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW has been declared by the Hon. A. D. Smith, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Wisconsin, unconstitu tional, on the grounds that Congress has no power to legislate on the subject of the reclamation of fugitive slaves, nor to clothe Court Commissioners with authority to determine the liberties of the people, and because the act denies the right of trial by jury. 'Acting under these views, Judge Smith has discharged from arrest S. M. Booth, the editor of the Milwaukee Democrat who aided in the rescue of the fugitive Glover.

Premium Fanning Mills. mportant to Farmers and Mechanics.

HE subscriber has purchased of J. Bamborough the right to use in Potter and M'Kean counties his patent in the construction of Fanning Mills. He has also, at great exbense, commenced the manufacture of a PRE-MIUM MILL which will clean from 100 to 200 bushels per hour. This Mill was patented March 20, 1647, since which time it has stood at the head of the list at all the State and ceunty agriculturul societies where it has been exty agriculturul societies where it has been exhibited, and is a universal favorite with all armers who have tried it. It took the premium at the first Agricultural Fair held at Harrisburg, Oct. 31st, 1851, when there were 30,000 people present; and at the great State Agricultural Fair at Naw-York, held at Rochester Sant. 16-19, 1851, this Fanning Mill received the highest honors.

Having met with uniform success wherever tried, I confidently invite the farmers of Potter and M'Kean counties to call at my shop in Coudersport and examine for themselves.
