

We have too long omitted to notice the series of Concerts of Sacred Music, at the First Colored Presbyterian Church in this city. This omission has been caused chiefly by the want of some particulars connected with it, without which our statement would appear vague and unsatisfactory. The concert was projected with a view to raising funds to pay for the construction of the new and beautiful church building on 15th street. We have never attended any place of the kind where a higher degree of propriety and taste was observed by all connected with it. Mr. Fleet, of Georgetown, an educated man of color, well known and highly appreciated in this city as a musical instructor, acted as the leader of the concert. The female vocalists were, we believe, all members of the choir of the church, and displayed a high degree of musical talent and accomplishment. They conducted themselves on the evening we were present, as doubtless, from report, at all the concerts given, with a degree of modesty, propriety, and grace, which would have reflected credit upon the most cultivated ladies in America. We witnessed not the first instance of either coarseness, awkwardness or presumption.

Several of the girls (they deserve to be called young ladies) appeared handsome, all of them were neatly and tastefully dressed, and bore a general resemblance to the Pochahontas in Chapman's painting in the Rotunda. One of them in particular, whose name we did not learn, might have been taken for the original of the picture, from the identity of color, expression of countenance, and the accidental adjustment of her hair. Two of them would pass for fine singers in any social circle in Washington, and would elicit rounds of applause before any public audience. We confess that we never felt more respect for the people of color than on witnessing this exhibition of their musical talents and accomplishments, accompanied, as it was, by a propriety of manners, which was perfect. The conduct of the male participants in the concert was marked by equal propriety, and could not fail to command the respect of all present.

When it is reflected that these people are all in the humbler spheres of life, though they are evidently well to do in the world—that they have risen to competence, some perhaps to wealth, by the exercise of the humblest handicrafts, or the performance of menial occupations—it is truly wonderful to witness the dignity, decorum, and good taste, they display. The colored race, if less gifted intellectually, as has been rather assumed than proved, has certainly a remarkable aptitude for acquiring the manners and refinements of civilization.

The new church is really a beautiful and commodious structure, forty feet by sixty. It has a basement for schools and lectures, is lighted with gas, and warmed by furnaces. The church building and the congregation give hopeful indications of progress in the colored race. We learn that they propose to have another concert in a short time, and it is to be hoped that they will meet with the patronage which they deserve.

There's point in the following, if it was said by a child: "Our 'Georgey' is something over six years old, and has a keen eye for everything beautiful in nature, although he sometimes makes it ridiculous in attempting comments." The other day we had a fine thunder storm with almost incessant flashes of lightning. 'Georgey' and myself were sitting in the barn, admiring the lightning, which darted from cloud to cloud, and then to the ground; and he wanted to know what made it "go so," illustrating its zigzag motion with his hand. I could not explain it so that he could clearly understand, and was obliged to tell him I didn't know. He thought a moment and said: "I's pose God thinks it looks prettier crooked round in that way!" Presently there came a succession of tremendous crashes, and the little fellow jumped up and slapped his hands, exclaiming, "Are n't those good ones, father? That's better than cannon, isn't it? You don't have to load!"

How PROHIBITION WAS DEFEATED IN BERKS.—Berks county rolled up a majority of 7,988 against a Prohibitory Law. The Berks and Schuylkill Journal tells how it was done, as follows: "In the first place it had the official opposition of the so-called democratic party, that is, so far as such opposition could be expressed by the recognized organs. The Reading Eagle filled its columns with articles hostile to prohibition, and treated its readers to handbills in the shape of extras on the subject. When a subscriber offered an article in favor of the law, its publication was evaded, and when an offer was made to pay for the insertion of a mild article on the same side, with a meanness unparalleled in the history of newspapers, it was refused. Every misrepresentation that the self-interest of the run party could invent, was crammed down the throats of that paper, and effectual means taken that they should not see the other side. The Gazette and Democrat opposed the law with all the force of editorial authority, but was more liberal, as it admitted an address in favor of prohibition—as an advertisement.

Boy Politicians.—A new order, called the Junior Sons of America (Inventive Knowledge) has been instituted in Boston.

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

Daily, $3.00 Weekly, $2.00
ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE commences its 27th annual volume with the month of September—commences it with a circulation (15,000) larger than was ever before recorded in any general newspaper whatsoever. This circulation has been gradually and laboriously attained by concentrating upon THE TRIBUNE the best efforts of many editors and correspondents and by a greater liberality of outlay in each department than was probably ever before risked on any journal. It has been attained, not by sailing smoothly in the current of opinion before the wind and backing in the surges of majorities, but by an earnest, fearless devotion to Truth and Progress as above all partisan exigencies, all temporary interests, all momentary fashions of popularity and success. Its thorough advocacy of Temperance and Labor Prohibition, of Justice to the deposed and down-trodden, and of the equal and inalienable Rights of the Human Race, irrespective of Sex or Creed or Color, have from time to time repelled many sunshine friends, whose prejudices or seeming interests were thereby convulsed, but have combined to form a character which will endure to main an end—a position among journals which we feel that it will be henceforth a success not to impair.

The leading ideas to which THE TRIBUNE is devoted may be briefly set forth as follows: 1. Freedom, to do whatever is essentially right—not alone for white Americans, or Anglo-Saxons, or Caucasians even—not for one race to determine whether they will or will not hold another race in abject bondage, but for every race and Nation, and every adult rational human being. This freedom is rigidly absolute in the broad domain of Opinion and involves the equal and imperative right to Political Franchise; 2. Order, or the necessary right of the legally indicated majority to interdict in the sphere of action all practices which it deems demoralizing, therefore prejudicial to the common weal; 3. Honesty, or the wisdom and policy of employing the resources and credit of the community to accomplish works of general and unquestioned utility to which individual means are inadequate or which, though eminently conducive to the public good, do not promise to reimburse by their direct income the outlay required for their execution; 4. Industrial Development, as the corner-stone of a true and lasting National Policy, commencing the nation of a new and valuable art or product, of the soil as more important than the acquisition of a fresh province or island, and equally within the legitimate sphere of National concern and National effort; 5. Peace, as a condition of true Progress, to be cherished by the most anxious, assiduous study to proffer as readily as we are prone to require redress for every wrong, and never to be surrendered except at the call of endangered Liberty. Such are the chief landmarks by which THE TRIBUNE directs its course.

But a small portion of THE TRIBUNE is devoted to who is currently distinguished as light reading; but review of New Books of decided interest, with choice extracts illustrating their quality, are freely given, and the great body of our paper is devoted to a lucid and careful digest of the News of the Day, with editorial comments thereon. We have reliable Correspondents in each quarter of the globe, and in nearly all the principal cities of Europe and America, and their letters will find our readers most interesting and of the nature which are most generally concerning the Old World into one gigantic arena for the death-struggle of rival interests, passions and ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE contains reliable reports of the Markets. Our Cable Market reports alone are worth more than the price of the paper to those who are engaged in raising and selling Cotton.

No paper involving so great an expense as our Weekly and Semi-Weekly could be afforded at the price of these sheets except in connection with a Daily, nor could our Daily be sustained at its price without the aid of our Country editions. Large as our circulation is, it would involve us in ruinous loss but for the receipt for Advertising. We believe that in THE TRIBUNE is realized the largest variety and extent of solid information concerning the events of the day which has been or can be combined with extreme cheapness; and in that fact we commend it to the favorable regard of the reading public. We offer no premiums for subscribers, tempt none to take it by gambling prospects of winning farms or mansions in a lottery in which tickets are furnished to its pious employ not traveling agents to importune people in so taking it, and waste none of our room in dumping our subscribers' for pay.

It took the premium at the first Agricultural Fair held at Harrisburg, Oct. 31st, 1851, when there were 30,000 people present; and at the great State Agricultural Fair at New-York, held at Rochester Sept. 16-19, 1851, this Fanning Mill received the highest honors.
