

favours; and subject to the same regulations, restrictions and penalties. The desecration of the Sabbath by a traffic so fruitful of evil, and so demoralizing in its results, is in direct opposition to the law of God, and the moral sentiment of the people; and is a reproach to the age in which we live. A stringent and comprehensive law, remedial in its provisions, and vindicating the great law of the Sabbath, in its physical and moral relations to man, is required, not only by the moral sense of community, but would be justified by every sentiment of humanity, every consideration of philanthropy, every impulse of pure and genuine patriotism. The history of intemperance is written in tears and blood. Paganism, taxation, and crime follow in its train. A remedy should be applied; and public sentiment, with the full force of moral sanction, will approve all prudent and constitutional legislation on this subject.

The pardoning power—the harmonious blending of mercy and justice in our Constitution—will be exerted with respect to both these important principles. With every desire to extend mercy to the unfortunate repentant transgressor, justice, in her stern demands, will not be overlooked by the pardon of the vicious and hardened criminal. This power has been conferred on the Executive, not to overthrow the administration of justice, but to aid and promote it. It should be exercised with great caution, and only upon the most satisfactory assurance that it is due to the condemned, and that the rights and security of the public will not be prejudiced by the act. To prevent the abuse of this power, and to protect the Executive from imposition, notice of the intended application should be published in the city or county where the trial and conviction took place.

Experience has demonstrated the impolicy of subscriptions by municipal corporations, to the stock of railroad companies. This is especially true in relation to county subscriptions. The practice should be avoided, or at least not encouraged by future legislation.

Legislation, so far as practicable, should be general and uniform. Local and special legislation ought to be discouraged, when the object can be obtained by general laws. Its tendency is pernicious; and general principles, and public good, are often sacrificed to secure personal and private benefits. 'Omnibus legislation' being improper in itself, and demoralizing in its influence, can not receive my sanction. The views and practice of my immediate predecessor on this subject, meet my cordial approval.

Permeating, occupying as it does, an important and pre-eminently a sister-lead of States, and not indifferent to the policy and acts of the National Government. Her voice, in behalf of good in other days, bright not to be disregarded now. Let the Constitution and the Union—she was the first to see them, she will be the last to endanger them, or to violate the other. Her ruling of a jealous care the rights of her sister States; she will be ever ready to defend her own. The blood of her sons poured out on the many battle-fields of the Revolution, attests her devotion to the great principles of American republicanism. To the Constitution in all its integrity; to the Union in all its strength and harmony; to the maintenance in all its purity, of the high and holy principles of Pennsylvania; she is, and always has been, pledged—a pledge never violated, and not to be violated, until patriotism ceases to be a virtue, and Liberty to be known only as a name.

Efficient these sentiments, and actuated by an ardent desire to promote the peace, harmony and welfare of our beloved country, the resolution of the National Congress and Executive, in repealing a solemn compromise, only less sacred in the public estimation than the Constitution itself—thus attempting to extend the limitation of domestic slavery in the territorial domain of the Nation, violating the high faith and honor of the country, crossing sectional jealousies, and renewing the agitation of vexed and distracting questions—has received from the people of our own and other States of the Union, their stern and united rebuke.

With no desire to restrain the full and entire constitutional rights of the state, nor interfere directly or indirectly with their domestic institutions, the people of Pennsylvania, in view of the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, the principle involved in it, and the consequences resulting from it, as marked a day by blood, violence and strife; have affirmed their opposition to the extension of slavery in a territory now free, and re-asserted their pledge to the doctrines of the act of 1820, which relieved us by constitutional means from a grievous social evil; to the great ordinance of 1787, in its full scope and all its beneficent principles; to the protection of the personal rights of every human being under the Constitution of Pennsylvania, and the Constitution of the United States, and the integrity of the Union.

The declaration of these doctrines, is but the recognition of the fundamental principles of freedom and human rights. They are neither new nor startling. They were taught by patriotic fathers at the watch-fires of our country's defenders; and learned amid the bloody snows of Valley Forge, and the mighty throes of war and revolution. They were stamped with indelible impress upon the great charter of our rights, and embodied in the legislation of the best and purest days of the Republic; have filled the hearts, and fell burning from the lips of orators and Statesmen, whose memories are immortal as the principles they cherished. They have been the watch-word and the hope of millions who have gone before us, are the watch-word and the hope of millions now, and will be of millions yet unborn.

In many questions of National and truly American policy—the due protection of American labor and industry, against the depressing influence of foreign labor and capital; the improvement of our harbors and rivers; the National defence; the equitable distribution of the proceeds of the public lands among the States, in aid of education and to relieve from debt and taxation; a judicious "homestead bill;" reform in the naturalization laws; and the protection of our country against the immigration and importation of foreign paupers and convicts—in all these, we, as a State and people, are deeply interested; and to their adoption and promotion every encouragement should be given.

The people of my native State, who have called me to preside over her destinies, I receive the tribute of my warmest gratitude for the honor conferred; and my pledge to them this day is, that "I will try" to realize their expectations, and not betray their confidence. In assuming the responsibilities of this high office, I would be false to myself and to the feelings that now oppress me, should I hesitate to affirm my undivided trust in my ability to discharge its appropriate duties in a manner commensurate with their importance. If I cannot secure, I will labor to deserve the confidence and approbation of my fellow citizens. I do not expect, I care not to hope to escape censure. Deserved censure I will strive to avoid, all other to disregard. Consistencies of the rectitude of my intentions; with no ambitious desire to gratify; no resentments to cherish; no wish, but for the public good; it will be my endeavor to perform every duty faithfully and fearlessly, and having done this, will abide the judgment of a generous people; assured that if they condemn the act, they will at least award to me the need of good intention.

With the constitution for my guide; "equal and exact justice to all" my desire; the great good of the greatest number my object; and invoking the aid and the blessing of the God of our fathers, and desiring to role in His fear—my duty, and highest ambition, will be to promote the true interests of the State, maintain our civil and religious privileges, defend the honor, and advance the prosperity and happiness of our country.

JAMES POLLOCK.

DRY WEATHER AND DEEP PLOWING.

The present season of unexampled drouths in various parts of the country have at last awakened farmers to the absolute necessity of deep plowing. The cases brought to our notice have been too numerous to recite here, of full average crops, the result of deep plowing last spring, exactly along side of other crops in contiguous fields hardly worth gathering. The result of shallow, superficial plowing. Ocular demonstration is the most convincing, and will satisfy, where mere theory, however sensible, occasions fears and doubts.

We have urged deep plowing so often in the Farm Journal that it seems almost superfluous repetition. All we want is to induce a fair trial of it one season. The question now occurs, which is the best plow for the purpose. While some think subsoiling, or stirring only the bottom of the furrow, is sufficient; others advocate turning up deep furrows to the surface. This latter has always been our opinion, but we have foreborne to urge it much, knowing that our advice would not be followed. There is among a large majority of farmers an exceeding nervousness at the sight of a little yellow clay brought out from the substratum to the surface. It is as much dreaded as the nightmare. We say there can be no good farming without a deep soil, and there can be no deep soil (except in places where it exists naturally, like alluvial bottoms) without deep plowing. The more yellow, sterile soil brought to the surface to be meliorated and enriched by atmospheric influences, fertilizers, &c., the better, and we have also observed, that where the first breaking up of the sod for corn is not deep, it is very seldom that depth is attained by subsequent plowings. It is true the corn crop will not in its early stages grow so fast on this upturned and inferior soil, but a little pondrette, or superphosphate of lime, in the hill, will easily remedy this, and when once fairly started, the roots will push down rapidly to the fertile soil beneath in quest of food and moisture, and soon outstrip that on shallow soil, a fact we have observed repeatedly.

Our advice is not to break up a field for corn less than ten or twelve inches deep, and there is probably no plow which will do this so easily and so well as the Double Michigan Plow. This, our readers are aware, is a kind of double plow on one beam; the forward one of small size turning over the sward four or five inches, thus relieving the work of the larger plow behind, going seven or eight inches deeper. This is done with the same team, a decided saving in this particular over the common subsoil, and a great economy of draught where deep plowing is the object. For five or six inches in depth only, the Double Michigan offers but little advantage over the plow generally used in this country.

The Double Michigan Plow manufactured by Prouty & Co., of Boston, is the best of its kind, and has attracted great attention at exhibitions and plowing matches the past fall by the excellence of its work. It has carried off in several places the first premium over all other plows. It received the first premium at our own State Fair, as well as in several of the counties. Being remarkably strong, well made, and finished in every particular, we commend it to all who believe in deep plowing, and are not afraid of the yellow dirt; and to those who are, we say, use the subsoil and buy an extra team, but by all means stir up the ground deep with something.—Farm Journal.

Advices from Acapulco mention several alleged victories of the insurgents over the government forces; but these, like the government victories, are entirely unreliable, and not worth the room they occupy in a newspaper. The next mail from Mexico will probably represent all these fights as government victories.

War Declared at Last.
THE long repose of Europe is about to be disturbed by the bugle's note and the rattle of the drum, calling its slumbering armies to their country. England and France are calling for men and means, and sending forward their armies to battle against the aggressions of the Russian Bear; but while the Old World is convulsed by revolution, unusual peace and plenty reign in the New.

In the peaceful and quiet pursuit of our business we have formed a partnership under the name and style of N. S. BUTLER & CO., and have taken the store in Empire Block, in the village of Olean, formerly occupied by Thing & Brother, and are now receiving a splendid stock of goods adapted to the season and wants of the community, which we intend to sell exclusively for cash down, at prices that will cause consternation and dismay in the ranks of old fogies that has been so long established in this section. Our stock will consist in part of the following Goods:

Hardware, Crockery, Boots & Shoes, Hats, Caps, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Drugs, Medicines, Dye Stuffs, Glass, Paints & Oils, Sash, Putty, Chairs, Bedsteads, Mattresses, Featherbeds, Stone and Wood Ware.

And we mean to keep such an assortment of the above goods that persons from a distance can be assured of finding everything they usually want at prices that will do them good call and see for yourselves.

Premium Fanning Mills.
Important to Farmers and Mechanics.
THE subscriber has purchased of J. B. Bannough the rights use in Potter and McKean counties his patent in the construction of Fanning Mills. He has also, at great expense, commenced the manufacture of a FRESH MILL, which will clean from 100 to 200 bushels per hour. This Mill was patented March 20, 1847, since which time it has stood at the head of the list at all the State and county agricultural societies where it has been exhibited, and is a universal favorite with all farmers who have tried it. It took the premium at the first Agricultural Fair held at Harrisburg, Oct. 31st, 1851, when there were 30,000 people present; and at the great State Agricultural Fair at New-York, held at Rochester Sept. 16-19, 1851, this Fanning Mill received the highest honors.

Having met with uniform success wherever tried, I confidently invite the farmers of Potter and McKean counties to call at my shop in Coudersport and examine for themselves. A supply always on hand, to be sold on reasonable terms. 6-37f JOHN RECKHOW.

THE subscriber hereby gives notice to the public that having given PERZA SHURTZ a bill of sale for eighty dollars, bearing date near the last of March, 1854, payable September, 1856, and having never received any value therefor, he will refuse to pay the same; therefore he warns any person from buying the said note with and expectation of his paying it.
