LADIES AND AGRICULTURE.

EXTRACT FROM C. P. HOLCOMB'S ADDREST AT THE MARYLAND STATE FAIR.

As showing the interest the English ladies take in agriculture, I cannot but relate a casual interview I chanced to have with an English lady, in going up in the express train from London to York. Her husband had bought a book at the stand as we were about starting, and remarked to her that 'It was one of her favorite American authors-HAWTHORNE.' I casually observed 'I was pleased to see young American authors found admirers with English ladies,' when the conversation turned on books and huthors. But I said to myself pretty soon, this is a literary lady-probably her husband is an editor or reviewer. and she uses the 'scissors' for himht all events. I must retreat from this discussion about authors, modern poets, and poetry. What should a farmer know critically of such things? If I were only in those fields-if the conversation could be made to turn upon trops or cattle-then I should feel quite at home.' I finally pointed out h field of wheat, and remarked that it was very fine. The lady observing it. said. Sir. I think it is too thin-a common fault this season, as the seeding was late. Those drills,' she added, turning to her husband for confirmution, 'cannot be more than ten inches upart, and you see, sir, the ground is not completely covered-twelve and even fifteen inches is now preferred for width of drills, and two bushels of seed to the acre will then entirely tover the ground, on good land, so you can hardly distinguish the drills."

If the goddess Ceres had appeared with her sheaf, or her cornucopia, I could not have been taken more by surprise. A lady descanting on the width of wheat drills and the quantity of seed !

'I will try her again,' said I, 'this may be a chance shot;' and remarked in inference to a field of plowed ground we were passing, that it broke up in great lumps, and could hardl, be put in good tilth. 'We have much clay like this,' she replied, 'and formerly it was difficult to cultivate it in a tillage crop; but since the introduction of CROSKILL's Clod Crusher they will make the most beautiful tilth on these lands, and which are now regarded as among the best wheat lands.'

The conversation turned on cattle. She spoke of the best breed of cows for the pail-Ayrehires and Devons; told me where the best cheese was made-Cheshire; the best butter-Ireland; where the best milk-maids were to be found-Wales.

'Oh !' said I, 'I was mistaken; this charming. intelligent woman, acting her that he should do so, and she is so natural and unaffected, dressed so neat and so very plain, must be a farmer's wife; and what a help-mate he has in her! yes, a single bracelet clasps a fair; rounded arm-that's all.'

The train stopped at York. No sooner had my travelling companions stepped upon the platform, than I noticed they were surrounded by half a dozen servants men and women-husbands' will and whims. Iron rules. not golden ones, we should call them. But the art of living together in harmony is a very difficult art; and, instead of confuting the positions of the author of the Rules aforesaid, we offer the following, as the substance of what a wife likes in a husband. Fidelity is her heart's fir-t and most just demand. The act of infidelity a true wife-cannot forgive-it rudely breaks the tie that bound her heart to his, and that tie can never more exist. The first place in her husband,s affections no true wife can learn to do without. When she loses that, she has lost her husband; she is a widow; and has to endure the pangs of bereavement intensified by the presence of what she no longer possesses. There is a living mummy in the house, reminding her of her loss in the most painful manner. A woman likes her husband to excel in those qualities which distinguish the masculine from the feminine being, such as strength, courage, fortitude, and judgment. She wants her husband to be wholly a MAN. She cannot entirely love one whom she cannot entirely respect, believe in, and rely on. A wife dearly likes to have her husband stand high in the regard of the community in which they reside. She likes to be thought by her own sex a fortunate woman in having such a husband as she has. She has a taste for the respectable, desires to have a good-looking front-door, and to keep up a good appearance generally .-Some wives, it is said, carry this too far; and some husbands we know, are dangerously complaisant in yielding to the front-door ambition of their wives. But a good husband will like to gratify his wife in this respect, without sacrificing more important objects.

Perfect sincerity a wife expects, or at least, has a right to expect from her husband. She desires to know the real state of the case, however it may be concealed from the world. It wrings her heart and wounds her pride to discover that her husband glad to be consulted.

Above most other things, a wife craves from her husband appreciation. The great majority of wives lead lives of severe and anxious toil. With unimaginable anguish and peril to their own lives they become mothers. Their children require incessant care. B L A C K S M I T H I N G "Only the eye of God watches like a Mad from his long experience in the above mother's," say's Founy Fern in that business, he feels confident of giving satisfaction to those who may give him a call. to be Sir Jons and Lady H. This gentleman, I learned, was one of the largert hand was one of the maternal cares, a wife is the queenregnant of a household kingdom. She has to think, and plan, and work for everybody. If, in all her labors and cares, she feels that she has her husband's sympathy and gratitude, if he helps her where a man can help a woman, if he notices her efforts, applauds her skill, and allows for her deficiences-all is well. But to endure all this, and yet meet with no appreciating word or glance or act from him for whom and whose she toils and bears, is very bitter. A wife likes her husband to show her all due respect in the presence of others; she cannot endure to be reproved or criticised by him when others can hear it. Indeed, it is most wrong in a-husband thus to put his wife to shame; and we cannot help secretly admiring the spirit of that French woman who, when her husband had so wronged her, refused ever again to utter a word, and for twenty years lived in the house a dumb woman. We admire her spirit, though not her mode of manifesting it. Husbands owe the most profound respect to their wives, for their wives are the mothers of their children. No man has, the slightest claim to the character of a gentleman who is not mothers! to your sons of forensic mote scrupulously polite to his wife tinction of professional life-or the here to the essentials of politeness, than to any other woman. We refer gains and emoluments of commerce. not its forms; we mean kindness and bus service in which so many of the considerate. Unexpected kindnesses A wife likes her husband to be and unsolicited favors touch her heart. She appreciates the softened tread when she is sick; she enjoys the gift brought from a distance, and every thing which proves to her that her husband thinks of her comfort and her good. Husbands, reflect upon these things. Your wife has confided her happiness to you. You can make her life proudly happy, if you are kind and wise. You can make it unspeakably wretched, if you are ignoble and short-sighted. Let the contest between husbands and wives be this: Which shall do most for the happiness. of the other.
