MORE OF IT.

We shall begin to suspect there is There are few things on which a something beside carelessness in the way our Post-Office business is conducted, There are entirely too many letters found in the bundles of waste paper sent out from the different Postimportance of the subject, when Offices to justify the belief that the thing is purely accidental. People will soon think that those who buy the waste paper of the Post,Offices buy with the understanding that the clerks are not to be over particular in the discharge of their duties. There is with the understanding that the clerks hously by a class who can certainly an immense number of letg, dy respect themselves, is what ters mailed which never reach their destination; scarcely a day passes but we at this office obtain letters stating we at this office obtain letters stating that money has been remitted to us pals, is, in their estimation, a huge which we have never received. Now, inune; for character, measured who knows but that many of these letters are intentionally thrown among the waste paper! Who knows but that this is a plan systematically pursued to plunder the mails, or rather those who employ him! It may be understood on the part of the purchaser that he is to receive a certain number of unopened letters, and if anything happens to be found in them, why he will divide with the party is the result of unbending in- who was so careless as to lose them.

But we have a fact or two to state. In the City of Baltimore the refuse paper is sold to a paper-manufacturer in augt examples, opposing forces, and Baltimore County by the name of the tensure of friends, falsely so called. Wilhelm, whose employees have reand character is not a thing of cently found two letters containing and growth. That is, it is not what money; there is nothing said as to and growth. That is, it is not what the number found which did not contain beconsummated in a day. It is tain money. One was discovered by a little girl who was engaged in pick with may be commendable; but ing over the paper. It contained it, it must be bought and paid | 853, but the letter was destroyed and the owner could not be discovered .-A few days afterward Mr. Wilhelm hand it, and have even negotiated learned that his foreman had found a inspossession, but they have been letter directed to the Merchants' Bank animy to pay the "price current," of Baltimore containing 8425. This was tather a larger amount than is usually found in the waste paper; so, instead of destroying the letter, as in the first instance, the party to whom it belonged was looked up and the monatto believe himself much respected ey paid over to him. Possibly the rothers. He may connect himself amount was in a draft, in which case it could not be used without forging somebody's name.
