From the Progressive Farmer. Subsoiling to Prevent the Throwing out of Clover

-MR. EDITOR:—The almost universal cry of clover being "thrown" or "frogen out," renders a word or two in regard to it appropriate at this time.-We learn wisdom by experience, and the experience of the past season in regard to the benefits of subsoiling is of so plain and practical a character that none but a wilfully blind farmer will fail to understand and improve it .-There is no more effectual method of convincing skeptical men than by actual, practical demonstration, and fortunately, (or unfortunately as the case may be,) an opportunity of showing the advantages of subsoiling is presented in a variety of directions this Beason.

Having for several years past been an ardent advocate of subsoil plowing. I have watched with no little anxiety, the results upon my own land, and compared them with those on lands plowed in the usual manner. In almost every case the advantages have been on my side; but in no one, has this advantage been more marked than in my clover crop the present season, It is now in as fine condition as could be desired. Would that I could say as much of some of my neighbors' prospects. While my clover has withstood the severity of the winter well, theirs has been "thrown" or frozen out" to such an extent, that under the most favorable circumstances, they cannot expect to realize more than half a Now there must be a cause for this disparity, and the only solution I can offer is, that my clover field was thoroughly subsoiled, while my neighbors' were not; and wherever the sublimits of my knowledge, I have observed precisely similar results.

The observations I have been enabled to make on this subject satisfy me that very much of this "throwing out" of clover, as well as of grain, may be prevented by the use of the sub-soil plow. The breaking up of the hard pan or subsoil, enables the superabundant rapidly, and as "throwing out" is in the process of freezing; it is not uninto the subsoil, the difficulty is to a may not be the true solution, but one thing is morally certain, and that is, that where I have used the subsoil plow, neither my clover nor my wheat has been "thrown out," and I have yet to see a single instance in which the same results have not invariably followed its use. Would it not be well for those who are proclaiming with such earnestness that "clover has had its day with us," to try subsoiling !-The cost of the experiment would be triffing, compared with the benefits Which, under almost every circumetance, are certain to follow. COMMONPLACE WOMEN.—Heaven kissed, cherished, and wept over by lesson worth learning by those young | and resisted his energetic assaults. creatures who seek to allure by their accomplishments, or dazzle by their genius, that though he may admire, no man ever loves a woman for these things. He loves her for what is essentially distinct from, though not incompatible with them-her woman's nature and her worzan's heart. This is why we so often see a man of high genius or intellectual power pass by the De Staels and the Corinnes, to take unto his bosom some wayside flower, who has nothing on earth to make her worthy of him, except that she iswhat so few of your "female celebrities" are a true woman.

RECIPE FOR FLOATING .- Any human being who will have the presence of mind to clasp the hands behind the back, and turn the face toward the zenith, may float at ease and in perfect safety in tolorably still water, aye, and sleep there, no matter how long. If hot knowing how to swim you would not knowing how to swim you would N. Era. escape drowning when you find yourself in deep water, you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcherlet your mouth and nose, not the top of your heavy head, be the highest part of you and you are safe. But thrust up one of your boney hands and down you go; turning up the handle tips over the pitcher. Having had the happiness to prevent one or two from drowning by this simple instruction we publish it for the benefit of all who either love aquatic sports or dread them.

An office holding chap being asked how he contrived to hold office under successive administrations, replied. "that administration must be darned for the hungry to rejoice. smart that could change oftener than he could."

GEN. WILSON'S BACKBONE SPEECH, delivered in the National Know-Nothing Council at Philadelphia, will be found in the present issue. We presume the report, as we found it in the Boston Telegraph, was not published without authority, though we doubt if the written is equal to the spoken address. But it's full of pluck, and having marked the inauguration of a new era in the proceedings of National Political Conventions, is eminently worthy to be placed on record. That our readers may appreciate the unflinching courage evinced by Mr. Wilson, we copy the following paragraph from the Boston Telegraph of Saturday last: "At the meeting in Redman Hall last evening, Mr. Carey, of Ipswich, stated that when General Wilson rose to reply to the assault made upon the Massachusetts delegation and upon himself in particular, a member from the South, sitting directly in front of him (Carev.) and within four feet of Gen. Wilson, drew a revolver, cocked it, and so continued to hold it until the close of his speech. During all this time, Mr. Carey ant with his eyes fixed upon the weapon, ready to act if the slightest movement was made. When Gen. Wilson rose to reply to Boiling, of Virginia, he (Bolling) rushed across the hall and took a seat beside Wilson, with an evident intention to intimidate him. Mr. Buffinten, of Fall River, who had heard Bolling declare that he would like to whip some one of the Massachusetts men, perceiving his movements walked across the hall, and took a seat directly behind Bolling, ready for defence if necessary. During this speech, Gen. Wilson turned directly to Bolling, and said that he was the last person to be intimidated by threats-that if a personal war was necessary to vindicate his opinions, he was ready for it."

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican, the most influential Whig journal out of Boston, and which, like other papers of that party, soil plow has been used, within the has denounced Mr. Wilson heretofore as unworthy of confidence, now speaks of him in eulogis :c terms, as follows:

"On no occasion did our Senator ever do so much credit to himself or to Massachusetts as on this; and without detracting from the high merit due to the other delegates, as well of Massachusetts, as of the other leading States of the North and West, for their loyalty to freedom, and justice, and their ability in moisture to percolate the subsoil more fighting for them in this struggle between the South and the North, it is but simple justice caused by the expansion of the water to say that he was the hero of the contest. This merit we believe will be awarded to reasonable to assert that if this excess him by the delegates of both the North and of moisture is permitted to escape South, who felt the force of his labors either for or against the force of their convictions. great extent obviated. This may or It is true Gen, Wilson did no more than his duty, considering his position and the State he represented. But this could have been truly said had he done less. Duty is relative and not always measurable. And where so many were weak and faithless, where defection was rife and treason not wanting, he who gave his whole thought and almost his whole time, sacrificing rest and even sleep, to encouraging the timid, convincing the doubtful, stiffening the faltering, and marshalling all up to the true expectation of the North-at the political assaults of hot-headed Southerners, and with earnest eloquence proudly spoke the purposes and pretensions of freedom, and warred with resistless denunciation and sarcasm the ranks of the doughfaces-even if this were only duty, it is a performance of knows how many simple letters, from duty worthy of distinguished credit and high simple-minded women, have been encomium. He received it there from all his associates, while he challenged the admimen of far loftier intellect. So will ration and respect of the generous and highalways be to the end of time. It is a minded of those who opposed his conclusions

> "This conduct of Gen. Wilson at Philadelphia should secure for him in Massac husetts immunity as to the post, as we believe it gives in his behalf a pledge for the future. Neither making apology nor feeling regret at our past opposition to nis political and personal schemes because we hold that opposition to have been justifiable and right to the fullest extent-we are ready to start anew with himself and his associates on the issues drawn at Philadelphia, and join hands in earnest labour to right the great wrong of the present Administration, restore the republic to its original purpose, and make slavery henceforth sectional and liberty national,"

We have read an anecdote, credited to the New York Express, wherein it is represented that some one who had declared the power to exist in Congress to abolish Slavery in the District of Columbia, was dreadfully disconcerted when asked by his triumphant opponent if it did not necessarily follow that it, had also the power to establish Slavery herc. GLAD TIDINGS .- A letter from Bureau county, Illinois, brings the most welcome intelligence of recent date As quoted in our exchanges, it is to the effect that all the farmers have this season planted from one to thirty acres more than last, that looks well for a heavy crop; that all the warehouses along the railroad are full of grain and many thousands of bushels are piled up in bags along the side of the track; that long trains of cars groan under the weight of grain with which they are loaded; that while the farmers plead with the buyers for more bags, the buyers plead with the railroads for more cars. approval, upon the first of April, by the late publishers. The Magazine will aim at greater excellence in the direction hitherto pursued; and, without being a partisan, will hold de-cided opinions, and will treat all public ques-tions from a humane and truly national point of view. In all the other varied departments of a Monthly Magazine, it will hope to amuse, instruct, and benefit; to criticise generously but justly; and to attract to its pages, as it has already done, the contributions of able men in every walk of Literature, Science, and Art.

The past volumes are the best assurance that nothing offensive to the purest morality, and no wanton attack upon honest conviction, will ever find a place in the Magazine. All communications should be addressed to

Brought Home to the Door of the Million: A Wondereut Discolary has recently been made by Dr. Curtis, of this city, in the treatment of Consumption, Asthma, and all diseases of the Lung. We refer to "Dr. Curtis' Hygeana, or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup." With this new method Dr. C. has restored many afflicted ones to perfect health; as an evidence of which he has inuumerable certificates. Speaking of the treatment'a physician says: It is evident that inhaling—constantly breathing an agreeable, healing vapor, the medicinal properties must come in direct contact with the whole of the arial cavity of the lungs, and trus escape the many and varied changes produced upon them when introduced into the stomach, and subjected to the process of digestion.
