From the Missouri Republican. THE ASSULT UPON GOVERNOR REEDER.

State Street

WHITEHEAD, Kansas Territory, June 28. * *

I must leave these scenes, amongst which I love to roam, even in imagination, and return to communicate to you the painful fact, that Governor Reeder has returned to Kansas. But a few days since a flattering rumor spread about the country of Reeder's resignation. The heart of Kansas throughed in gladsome unison, far more harmonious than sweetest melodies, and gave extreme delight.

But just in the midst of our patriotic jubilee, his Excellency stepped in, as demand for the use of railroad and other madid his sable majesty into Paradise. and all joy and happiness and hope departed. I say a patriotic jubilee, because I believe Governor Reeder to be the worst enemy that. Kansas has. He has done more to retard her growth, development and prosperity, than all the aid societies and other agencies that abolitionists, disunionists and traitors could invent. This is no idle assertion, made hastily, or through malice, for I do not know Governor Reeder personally; but it is the result of calm and extensive observation and-

The last sentence was cut short by the entrance of a friend who came to give me an item of such interesting infelligence that I must send it to you fresh and in preference to everything else.

Yesterday morning Gen. B. F. Stringfellow, of Weston, Mo., proceeded to Gov. Reeder's residence, near the Shawnee Mission, and after intreducing himself to the Governor, said, "I under stand, sir, that you have publicly spoken and written of me in the East to ascertain whether you have done go ?'

Gov. R. "I did not-so write, or speak of you in public."

Gen. S. "Did you speak of me in those terms anywhere, or at any time ?" Gov. R. "No, sir."

Gen. S. "Did you use my name at nll?"

Gov. R. "I may have used your name in private conversation."

Gen. S. "Did you use it disrespectfully? Bid you intimate or insinuate, that I was other than a gentleman?"

Gov. R. "I might have done so." Gen. S .-- "Then, sir, you uttered a falsehood, and I demand of you the satisfaction of a gentleman. I very much question your right to that privilege, for I do not believe you to be a, gentleman ; but I: nevertheless give you the opportunity to vindicate your title to that character, by allowing you to select such friends as you may please, and 1 will do the same, and we will step out here and settle the matter as gentlemen usually do." Gov. R .- "I cannot go. I am no fighting man." Gen. S .- "Then I will have to treat you as I would any other offensive "Enimal."

And with that he knocked Reeder

A PROTEAN SUBSTANCE. Everybody has heard of the multiform uses to which modern ingenuity puts a slaughtered animal-the hair, the horns, the hoofs, the entrails, the hones, all being turned to account and converted into articles of practical utility. A similar variety of services is also obtained from some sorts of coal-as for instance the famous Boghead coal of Scotland, and the Albert coal of New Brunswick, which are found to be useful, not merely for ordinary consumption, but for the quantity of gas oil and other extracts that can be obtained from them. The Boghead is no longer sold for fuel, the entire production being used in the manufacture of oil, &c., which is in great chinery. But we have uever seen any substance of this sort which seemed susceptible of such a number of modifications as the Breckenridge coal, of which some specimens have recently been brought here from Kenhave recently been brought here from Ach-tucky. As thel nothing could be more satis-factory; it burns with a clear flame, great heat and no dust, only some eight per cent remaining as ashes; but chemical analysis shows it to possess other qualities still more valuable. By distillation there is obtained from a ton of this coal 15 gallons of purified illuminating oil, 35 gallons of lubricating oil, and above 183 lbs. of solid paratime, worth together it is supposed some $40 or $50. The cost of manufacturing these substances from a ton of coal is about $6. The lubricating oil is of great value for machinery, being superior to all animal or vegetable oils for that purpose. It also yields benzole in quantities: and a patent has been taken for making printing ink from it also. From the paratine excellent candles can be made, equal in all respects to the best sperm. At the same time such is the compactness and tough-ness of the coal that it may be turned into knife handles, ink stands, buttons, or other articles of that sort. It would be difficult to imagine a mineral which could be put through such a Protean list of transformations as this

ATTEMPT ON A FUGITIVE. -- On Wednesday morning, when the freight as a frontier ruffian, and I have called | train arrived at the depot here, there was found on one of the cars laden with shelled corn, an old negro man, who, by some means or other, had. contrived to get in the car after it was loaded at Michigan City, which was on Saturday last, and remained there till it reached this place, being nearly three days without water or food, except corn. Every one knows the heating qualities of corn when it is shut up close for a day or two, so they can imagine the condition of this fugitive when the door was unlocked, and he undertook to step out. " Hillo!" says the conductor, "where are you from?"

"From Kentucky, massa." "How did you find the traveling?"

"Oh, massa, berry warm."

The poor fellow was perfectly reeking with perspiration. At this time up stepped one of the railroad men, and says :

"You're the man I've got the par pers for."

"Oh, massa," said the old woolly head, "bress de Lor, Ize cool now. Do n't send a poor nigger back. Dey'll skin um alive if dey cotch um back dere."

Meanwhile he had got out of the car, and one of the men said to him, Do you see that place over the river? Now you run for it and we will keep cown, with his fist. I suppose the the man who is after you till you get down with his fist. I suppose the the man who is after you thin you get abolitionists will pronounce this a "ruffauly attack." Let one of them duso, and dare to show his face in Xanşas! They will not say so, how-was starting over with a drove of hogs, was starting over with a drove of hogs, and the way he plunged into the drove that we have a starting over with a drove of hogs, and the way he plunged into the drove that we have a starting over with a drove of hogs, and the way he plunged into the drove that we have a starting over with a drove of hogs, and the way he plunged into the drove that we have a starting over with a drove of hogs, and the way he plunged into the drove the drov ever, but pronounce it a proper punish- and the way he plunged into the drove ment, when they hear that as soon as Reeder returned he expressed himself | raised the most horrid squealing, both satisfied that Kansas would be a slave state, and that he was in favor of that institution. I learn it is a fact, and I learn it from a gentleman who heard him, that he so expressed himself on the steamer coming up the river, and after, he had landed.

THE National Era, not long ago, in an able article, took the New York Tribune to task for its pro-Russian sympathies, and undertook to show that it was not in keeping with the usual course of the Tribune, and gave reasons why its sympathies should be with the Allies, instead of with Russia.

The Tribune replied tartly, and went; into an argument in favor of protection, which was the policy of Russia, and against free trade, which was the policy England wished us to adopt

The National Era replied in good temper, and after another rejoinder from the Tribune, it proceeded to show from the columns of Tribune itself, that there had been a change in the course of the figure, and that fourteen months ago, it occupied the same ground on the Russian question, that the National Era now does. We must say, that in reading the Tribune daily, we have been forcibly struck with the inconsistencies which the Era, notices, and that the objections which the Era makes to its course, we think are well taken. A FACT.

Exactly. It would be a poor commentary on the principles of that E'reedom which is universal in its application to the highest wants and rights of humanity, to allow of the binding of heavy fetters on the moral nature, while setting at liberty the physical man. Every good cause finds in every other good cause its true fellow-worker. The drunkard is a slave in no restricted sense of the term, and his condition demands the earnest, persistent efforts of those "in whom the antislavery sentiment is the strongest."-We are glad to know that the Times thinks that anti-slavery men are consistent in this matter .- Manchester Democrat.

THE REV. DE. TYNG, Rector of St. George's (Episcopal) Church in this city, recently startled some of his congregation by coming out, in a sermon, in favor of the Maine law, and against slavery. He expressed the hope that the position of the Tribune on this Congress would abolish the latter in all places within this jurisdiction. It is rare that a clergyman of the Epis-
