

From the N. Y. Tribune.
FROM KANSAS.

We learn from Mr. Willets, who arrived in town yesterday from Lawrence, K. T., which place he left on the 10th inst., that Gov. Shannon had discharged his army of Border Ruffians, who had returned to their homes, and that peace and quiet once more reigned in Kansas. The ruffians were very much exasperated at the Governor when they learned that he had concluded not to use them in an attempt to reduce the people of Kansas to the vassalage of Missouri. They charged his Excellency with perfidy, and threatened to visit him with their very particular vengeance at some future time. The ruffian army, some 1,200 strong while stationed at Franklin, made prisoners of all who passed that way, either going to or coming from Lawrence, and as a rule robbed their prisoners of such articles of value as they happened to possess. They stopped the United States Mail, made a prisoner of the carrier, and detained him about an hour, when some of the ruffians came to the conclusion that they might perhaps get themselves into difficulty with Uncle Sam, so they finally released their prisoner and let him go with the mail to Lawrence; but Mr. J. S. Mott, a passenger in the mail coach or wagon, was detained as a prisoner and robbed of a railroad ticket or pass which he had procured for use in returning to his former home in Michigan. Mr. Mott returned with Mr. Willets.

Mr. Willets assures us that not more than fifty of the Governor's twelve hundred men were residents of Kansas; but to make a show of regularity, they came across the Missouri line into the Territory (fetching their arms with them of course) before being enrolled into service. That they were not residents is also evident from the fact that after they had been disbanded by the Governor and had drunk up all their whisky, they took their departure to Missouri at once. They left their camp on the 9th inst.

Thomas Barber, a worthy citizen residing near Lawrence, and formerly from Gov. Shannon's neighborhood in Ohio, was killed by Clark, the United States Indian agent, on the 6th inst. Mr. Barber, in company with a couple of young men, was riding out on horseback unarmed, when the party was met by Clark, who was in a carriage with Dr. Wood. The party in the carriage fired on the others without provocation, hitting Mr. Barber in the back, and killing him almost instantly. The horse on which one of the young men was mounted, was also shot. Clark is said to have boasted of this dastardly act when he reached the tuffian camp, saying that he had killed one d—d abolitionist, that he saw the wool fly, &c.

Coleman, the murderer of young Dow, is still at large, and during the invasion was promoted to office in the camp of the marauders. Governor Shannon excuses himself for the ridiculous figure he has been cutting, by saying that he did not understand the position of the Free-State men—in other words, the people of Kansas—that the state of things had been grossly misrepresented to him or he never would have issued his proclamation, &c. Perhaps if he had sought information from the people at Lawrence, instead of taking counsel of outlaws and cutthroats, he might have saved himself the mortification of his present position. Our informant is of opinion that had the Governor led his ruffians against the people at Lawrence he would have been badly beaten. They were very well fortified, had a force of about 1,000 strong, with 300 of Sharpe's rifles capable of discharging ten times a minute, and doing execution at a distance of one mile; and from practice it had been demonstrated that there were plenty of men in Lawrence who could hit a mark the size of a man, four times in five, at a distance of half a mile. So, had the Missourians marched against Lawrence, they would have stood a "right smart chance" of being cut to pieces by the 300 Sharpe's rifles before coming in range of the 700 common rifles.

The story extensively circulated in Missouri and the East, that the people of Kansas had receded from their position as a condition of being let alone, is utterly untrue and without foundation; but the story had to be told as a cover for retreat by the Governor and his party. Indeed, there were decided signs of mutiny in the Missouri camp until the rabble were assured by their leaders that the people of the Territory had made all the concessions demanded of them. The people of Kansas occupy precisely the ground they occupied before the raid, viz: that of law-abiding citizens; but they do not recognize as laws the atrocious acts of the sham Legislature forced upon them by the Missouri invaders, nor will they recognize as law officers the appointees of that ruffian body. Governor Shannon is said now to be disposed to side with the people of Kansas, and will probably take up his residence at Lawrence.

PENNSYLVANIA FINANCES.
We published the other day the annual statement of the finances of the Commonwealth, for the past year. It presented a very favorable view of the pecuniary condition of the State; and if this favorable aspect can be kept up, the tax payers of Pennsylvania may be congratulated upon the dawn of a better day.

The total receipts last year were $5,953,670.66, including $735,435.67 from loans; and the expenditures $5,424,983.29, including $235,888 of loans paid and $34,456.66 to the Sinking Fund. This year the total receipts were $5,390,474.11, including nothing from loans, and the expenditures $5,385,705.52, including $316,550.60 of loans paid off, and $260,838 to the Sinking Fund. The net receipts last year, therefore, were $5,218,234.99 and this year $5,390,474.11, showing an increase of $172,239.12. The expenditures this year were $99,277.77 less than last year, notwithstanding the loans paid off, and the contribution to the sinking fund amounted to $307,042.51 more than last year, showing that the net expenditures were $346,320.31 less than in 1854; adding the net increase in receipts to this net saving of expenses, we have a total of $518,559.43 as the aggregate addition to the means of the state during the year.

The tax on Bank dividends and Corporation stocks has increased $87,315; on real and personal estate, $210,711; and on tonnage $42,920; the total of licenses of various kinds has fallen off $145,461.19, the principal falling off being in tavern licenses, which is about $105,000. The Public Works yielded $1,942,376.71, against $1,913,606.30 last year—an increase of $28,770, notwithstanding the drawing off of the transportation lines. The expenditures on the Public Works were $1,838,791, against $2,294,357 last year, being a saving of $455,566. The expenses of keeping up the Public Works, while thus largely reduced, were still within a fraction of the total receipts from them.

The temporary loans of the State being paid off, and the annual payment to the Sinking Fund reaching over a quarter of a million, we may properly regard the work of paying off the State debt as fairly begun; and if the expense of maintaining the main line of the canal is cut down in proportion to the loss of business upon it, we may, if no imprudent legislation be fastened upon us, look forward to even a greater net saving of expenditures next year than this.—Pittsburg Gazette.

We can count up thousands of our citizens in this country who have been injured and degraded. Where has it ever benefited one? It has killed its hundreds. When will it be less fatal in its effects! It has cursed our homes. When will it give them food and raiment? It has crushed strong hearts under bitter woe. When will it fill hearts with joy? It permits vice and crime. When will it promote virtue? Come, gentlemen advocates of the business! How far away in the future is the day, when the use of rum shall promote happiness of the people? How long before the programme of blood shall be changed? Can you tell us?—Cayuga Chief.

Porter.—The Sons of Temperance are in a flourishing condition in the above named county.

Mr. Christian had his house and furniture burnt, and his neighbors are building him another house. That's what we call true Christianity—doing unto others as you would have them do to you.

Friend Mann is mistaken if he supposes the paragraph quoted from the "Vedette" to be the sentiment of the voters in this county; and we presume the "Vedette" gave it as their individual opinion. The election of a strong anti-Nebraska member of Assembly from this county ought to satisfy our friends in Potter that the Americans of this part of our district are right upon the Slavery question.—Williamsport Press.

NURSERYMEN, FRUIT.

THE NEW YORK HORTICULTURAL REVIEW.
A Journal of Suburban art.
SUPERBLY AND PROFUSELY ILLUSTRATED.

Devoted to the Advancement of the Rural Interests in AMERICA.

This one of the largest and most elaborate works of the kind in the world. Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features. Each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skillful architects. It is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening; engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautify the work.

Engravings of new fruits, new flowers, new vegetables, &c., are illustrated and described as soon as they are respectively available. The Editor also publishes the most complete and elegant Manual of Rural Husbandry ever attempted. An experienced corps of practical writers, seven in number, are engaged to fill its columns. It contains seventy large pages, and is printed on the finest pearl-colored paper, manufactured expressly. The price is $2 per annum, payable invariably in advance. Fifty cents commission on each subscription allowed to those who act as agents. $1,000 will be distributed at the end of the year among those who read the twenty largest lists of subscribers. These premiums will be paid in cash. The first premium will be $500. The following are selected from hundreds of simultaneous notices, voluntarily contributed by contemporaneous publications:—

"The Horticultural Review deserves the most liberal patronage. It is not only eminently practical, but is written in a style that equals the best efforts of the late A. J. Downing—Knickerbocker."
The most elegant and useful book of the kind that has ever come under our observation.—Register.

Mr. Reages, the Editor of the Horticultural Review, is a practical pomologist, and one of the finest scholars our country boasts of. He possesses the glowing descriptive powers of Dickens, the elegant gossip of Walpole, combined with a thorough knowledge of rural art.—State Police Tribune.

Farmers, buy it for your sons—buy it for your daughters. It is an intellectual and a rare combination of the beautiful and the useful.—Argus, N. Y.

We had thought that in Downing's death, the eloquent advocate of rural adornment had become only a cherished remembrance; but in Mr. Reages we discover an equally rich mine of mental wealth, that betokens a degeneration of the spirit that is gone.—Montrose Tribune.

Advertisers will find this an unsurpassed medium of publicity, as the Horticultural Review circulates extensively in every State in the Union. Advertisements inserted at the rate of $10 per page.

WOOD ENGRAVING
Those requiring Wood Engraving, can have their orders executed in an unrivaled manner. Special attention is given to views of ANIMALS; an experienced English Draughtsman is engaged for this express purpose. Persons living at a distance can procure a degenerate copy of the object; [by mail] they wish engraved, which will be a sufficient guide to obtain a perfect fac-simile. Stock Breeders will be dealt with on very liberal terms.

Our Exchange List is already very large. A further extension is not desired, unless subscribers are willing to give the above advertisement several insertions in their respective papers.

Agricultural Books can be furnished on every useful subject, from both English and American publishers, by enclosing to our address the price of the book required. Specimen copies will be forwarded on the receipt of 18 cts. in postage stamps.
