PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21, 1856. Hon. HARLAN INGRAM-My Dear Sir :- I have read your speech delivered in the Senate, on the 12th inst., on the repeal of the Restraining Liquor Law. Lalso read the speech of the Hon. Judge Wilkins, and other distinguished gentlemen of the Senate. As I proceeded, line by line, through the speeches, I earnestly sought to find, in one or the other, or all together, a single argument in favor either of the manufacture, sale or use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, but from necessity or choice you have not said the first word in favor of the business in one form or another.

True, you have denounced some of the Ministers of religion—stigmatized many of the temperance men as fanatics, and all of you, as a sort of a salvo I presume, denounced drunkenness in presume, denounced drunkenness in Rut where the most measured terms. But where, let me ask, is your consistency in railing at drunkards, and yet defending the accursed traffic by which drunkards are made? If you condemn the effect, does not consistency require you to condemn the cause? What is all this but battling on the side of drunkenness, for it is folly to say that that is not the side you are on; for surely a man of your high intelligence will not pretend to deny that just so long as intoxicating liquors are to be had as a beverage, drunkenness and its fearful catalogue of evils will prevail. Facts on this subject are a great deal better than fine spun theories or sham logic.

Prove if you can, that liquor drinking is a benefit to the individual, the family, the community, the church or the State. Let the members of the Senate and the House, who are in favor of the liquor business, hold a meeting, and make the venerable Judge Wilkins chairman, then compare notes, and see from the appalling facts connected with the liquor business during the past one hundred years, if the protection and perpetuation of this traffic is worthy of the earnest efforts of grave Senators and wise Legislators! Pointput in how many instances the use of intoxicating liquor has reformed the abandoned; how many worthless husbands have been restored to their broken-hearted wives and worse than fatherless children, by their use! How many widowed mothers in Pennsylvania have had cause, morning and evening, to thank God for the practical influence of the bar-room upon their prodigal sons! Set forth the benefit cent effects of tippling houses and dram drinking, upon which you and many of our Democratic friends are throwing your legislative smiles? Tell us how much our prisons have been depopulated and how many folous have been saved from the halter by our delectable dram shops!

Come, my brother Democrats of the Senate and the House, give us some cheering statistics in regard to the delicious fruits of the rum traffic. Has the sale of intoxicating liquors reduced taxation one mill, or decreased the number of paupers, except by consigning to an early and 'dishonore grave the bloated carcasses of the miserable victims of rum?

My Dear Sir, I deeply lament that you and the great body of Democratic members in the Senate and the House should have espoused the cause of the Liquor League, a combination as infamous as the object they seek to accomplish is wicked. With an opportunity you had to prove that Democracy is the sum of equal rights, the cause of the widow and the orphan, the cause of virtue and good morals, and is not affiliated, as its enemies have often represented, with riot, rowdyism and rum! Attempt to palliate liquor selling and dram drinking! It is the source of all villanies: "the winding theet of souls;" the frightful vortex, where young men and old men-where husbands, fathers and sons are eventually swallowed up. Look at your associate in the Senate, N. B. Browne, Esq., what a noble example has he furnished of intelligence, independence, patriotism and moral courage! He stands on a pinnacle, so high above the whisky advocating Democrats, that they would have to look sharp through Sir Isaac Newton's great telescope to see his fair proportions and manly stature. He has reared for himself an enduring monument, upon which will be inscribed: The friend of the People the true Patriot, the enlightened Statesman, the honest Senator. You might have done the same; nay, you can yet hold a place of equal honor, influence and respectability, if you will break loose from the iron fetters of the Liquor League. Do it, my dear sir, at any cost; do it if you have to pluck out a right eye, or cut off a right hand; doit for the honor of democracy; above all, do it for the sake of bleeding virtue and suffering humanity, and the thousands who are tempted and destroyed by the worm of the still.

Yours truly, John Chambers.
