... to refer to the article on the ...ue of last week's JOURNAL ... Rare Bravery," and particu... ...the part of it that speaks of ...s poetry. That one para... ... much toward relieving our ...doubt that has vexed and tan... ...for a long time.

... years ago we undertook to ...ning's poetry. We read and ... thought and dreamed over it, ... was dry material to dream on, and we generally got sound asleep in the attempt; we worked ourselves into a fine muddle trying to find a meaning, or make one, to what apparently wouldn't mean anything, and then we threw the book aside exclaiming, what a great fool! but stopped there, and for ever so many long years we have not known whether to apply that expression to Browning or ourself. We see light.

The circumstance which we have detailed elsewhere of a man being arrested while attempting to run a span of horses into New York, recalls a condition of things that has existed in the lumber region south of here for several years past, and which seems to continue. At this season of the year, just as the snow is going off and work on the jobs closing up, we invariably hear of failures; jobbers leaving without settling with their hands, and without providing for their payment, and men sent home after a hard winter's work in the snow and cold poorer than when they went there in the fall, and with no means of redress.

This state of things has become a regular occurrence, and when we see men going to the lumber woods to work we have learned to look upon them as probable victims of the next spring's frauds.

That there are many honorable exceptions to this way of doing business among jobbers we do not deny, but there are so many repetitions of it that we are forced to the conclusion that a large number of incompetent or dishonest men are engaged in the business.

Can any body tell how long we have had continuous sleighing? It seems to us a month or so more would bring it around very near the starting point.

The Buffalo Express seems to consider the forest region of Pennsylvania, that has lately been connected with that city by railroad, as a sort of wild suburb. It enumerates the hunting and fishing out this way among the many advantages Buffalo possesses as a summer residence. But then, some people's ideas are very expansive.

A letter received from Hon. J. S. Maun, dated March 8th, says, "We are beginning to make progress in the Convention, and I feel encouraged."

There are three kinds of deeds which, done in a community, argue a low state of civilization, if not a very bad state of society. Of these three, the worst is tarring and feathering a man and riding him on a rail. No one will dispute the utter wickedness of a proceeding like this, and it is something that has not disgraced the annals of our State for many a year, with one or two exceptions, and those have been marked with a speedy punishment of the participators of the outrage against society. The silliest of the three deeds is what is called "horning a newly married couple." This is undertaken mostly in those settlements far removed from railroads or newspapers, where there is but little religion and no morals to speak of. Where the fun of it is the most industrious would fail to discover, and what the object is is equally past finding out. Like the first mentioned, this deed also has become a thing of the past in this State. The meanest of the three deeds has no name—it is too mean to have a distinct calling—but it consists in the bothering and torturing of a drunken man. Baiting a bull or teasing a tied bear is kindness in comparison with this.—Elmira Advertiser.

We commend the good sense of the Advertiser in regard to the above subjects. But there is one thing that is meaner than bothering a drunken man, it is teasing those unfortunate beings who by nature or accident are deprived of the average amount of reason. A drunken man is an object or pity, but he is responsible for his condition, the idiot or "half fool" is the victim of circumstances for which he is not accountable. Any one who indulges in sport at the expense of such a one, shows a depravity more lamentable than their victim's lack of reason.

The American Working People, published at Pittsburg, Pa., gives in its February number an elegant full-page engraving entitled "Protection Triumphant," which is designed to illustrate the prosperity of labor, science, art and industry under the fostering care of protection tariff. Aside from its views of protection the American Working People is the ablest exponent of the rights of working people in this country, while it is independent of all parties and organizations, urging the correct position that labor and capital should not be antagonistic, but united, in order to secure the best results to both. It has 16 large quarto pages—64 columns—of reading matter, and is sent to subscribers at $1.50 per annum, giving each subscriber a premium at that. Address Capron & Co., Pittsburg, Pa.

The Post Office Department has decided that after a letter leaves the office from which it was mailed it passes from the control of the sender and cannot be recovered by him, but must be forwarded to its address. If the person to whom it was directed cannot be found the sender becomes the principal party again and it must be returned to him, either through the dead letter office or in accordance with the printed "request," if there be one on the envelope.

We promised the particulars of the suicide in Sharon last week, but failed to recieve the account in time for that paper. We give them below:

The misguided man was a Mr. Fisk, and about seventy years old. He was last seen on the day of the act about nine or ten o'clock in the morning, but he frequently went out to the neighbors and no thought was taken of his absence. About five in the afternoon one of the family went to the bee house for some purpose when he was discovered lying on the floor, and his brains scattered all over the apartment. From appearances he had placed the stock of the gun on the ground, with the muzzle brought up close to his left eye, and then with a stick which he still grasped in his hand, he discharged it. The top of his head was literally blown off. The bee house was a double wall filled in with sand, which accounted for the family not hearing the report.

He had lived in the west for some time until about two years ago, when he came to his daughter's—Mrs. Voorhees—with whom he has since resided. He seemed rational and well suited with his situation, and no reason can be given for the act except that he was tired of life.

Letters found after his death indicated that he had contemplated the act for some time. In them he disposed of his property, dividing it equally among his children, and made provisions for the collection of certain claims he had in the west, in order to complete the share of one of them.
