A Slight Difference of Opinion. The Philadelphia Press says, "the people have acknowledged most every thing new that has been proposed by the Constitutional Convention."

IN THE course of the last year or two we have heard several of our well-to-do farmers use something like the following language: "I make more clear money by raising horses than by any other branch of farming."

WE ARE having beautiful summer weather these last few days. Time for rides and walks, for gathering wild berries and seeing wide, beautiful views from hill-tops.

OUR object in writing this article is to call the attention of farmers generally to the above facts and to the importance of breeding from blooded animals.

roughbred and he will not sell for more than a quarter or half as much. But many claim that what are called blooded horses, and especially thoroughbreds, are no better than common breeds for general purposes, and that the only advantage in raising them is where a fast horse can be produced.

IN conversation with a gentleman, not long since, who is interested in raising good horses, he said that some time ago he met an intelligent farmer of another county who was driving a fine span of thoroughbreds.

WE believe this County is well adapted to this branch of business and that our farmers are coming to recognize the fact, and we hope to see them at the same time recognize the other fact that "blood tells."

The Proposed New Constitution. The readers of the JOURNAL have learned, from occasional letters from "Constitution Hall," something of the general spirit of the Convention.

On the first page of this paper will be found the Article on Legislation as it passed second reading, and as it will probably be submitted to the people for their approval or disapproval.

In the judgment of the writer the Article on Legislation is the most important of any adopted by the Convention—may, that it is more important than all the others combined.

But it is not my intention to tell what reforms are embodied in this article—only to ask every reader of the JOURNAL to give it careful and thoughtful consideration; for in spite of some defects I consider the Article on Legislation one of real reform.

WE HAVE received from the National Publishing Co., No. 19 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, a very interesting book entitled "The Undeveloped West, or Five Years in the Territories."

Mr. EDITOR: There was a picnic on Saturday a very pleasant, nice, little one, and only one at all because some of those spoken to graciously put by every hindrance and went, some of them at very serious inconvenience to themselves.

WE ARE having beautiful summer weather these last few days. Time for rides and walks, for gathering wild berries and seeing wide, beautiful views from hill-tops, for wandering along the faint, winding paths the cows have made in their grazing.

GUESS. In a gay company not long ago a doctor of divinity gave a riddle to be solved, an arithmetical puzzle, saying he would give fifty dollars to a certain charitable institution that the company were very much interested in.

Work is one of our great blessings, no doubt—that is, for those who cannot do "business." Work, especially that of farm and household, takes up our time and our energies, prevents our running to waste and keeps us steady, relieves a great many griefs and anxieties and stops some brooding over ills that cannot be helped.

"I feel as though I should last the longer for taking a nap in the middle of the day," and wisely he takes it. But we are all too apt to let all little rests be crowded away, though we know that soul and body need them.

"O, THAT mine enemy would write a book." If he will not do that let him write a letter. This last is what Ben Butler has lately been doing in the attempt to justify himself for his action on the salary job last winter.

NEW RAILROAD PROJECT.—New projects are opening up every day, and among them is one for a Railroad from Olean to Warren, running through a vast and unopened timber country.

THE English clergyman at Seaton, England, refused to bury a little boy who was accidentally drowned, the other day, because he was not properly baptized, although named and registered.

A NEW CAVE AT THE FALLS.—A recent number of the Suspension Bridge Journal contains the following: "Two men named Jas. Mumford and Thomas Conroy, who for many years have acted as guides through the Cave of the Winds on Goat Island, determined to ascertain if there was not another cave under the American Fall."

MISS EMMA E. Eastman, of Worcester, Massachusetts, is the first lady graduate from Cornell University. When she first entered things were not as they are now.

THE Chinese emigration question pales before a new element of peaceful invasion. The west is being spied out by the forerunners of a Lutheran emigration from Russia, which is already settling in Nebraska.

By the way, are the bachelors neglecting their retreat? It does not seem to be kept quite so nice as it was once.

Commenting on the above precious extract from the acknowledged national organ of the Democracy, the Buffalo Express says: "Party of definite, fixed political principles" is good.

Death of Wm. M. Meredith. Born one year before the close of the last century, William M. Meredith lived in the most interesting era of modern civilization, after filling his nearly two generations with virtue and usefulness.

An enthusiastic temperance convention was held at Driftwood, Cameron County, Pa., on the 6th inst., and the following preamble and resolutions were passed:

WHEREAS.—According to the present status of the temperance cause in Cameron county, under the workings of the "Local Option" law, we feel ourselves to be the victims—

THE Rev. Father Lewis, of Clifton, Staten Island, has on hand a large supply of the miraculous water from the Grotto of Lourdes.

SOME TIME during Tuesday night an immense rock weighing between 15 and 20 tons, slid upon the track, near Anderson's station on the Pennsylvania railroad.

THE governor of Missouri crossed the state line into Kansas, the other day, on a shooting excursion, and was arrested and fined for violation of the Kansas game laws.
