[From the Cincinnati Monthly.] HEARTSEASE. Of all the bonny buds that blow

In bright or cloudy weather, Of all the flowers that come and go The whole twelve moons together, This little purple pansy brings Thoughts of the sweetest, saddest things,

I had a little lover once, Who used to give me posies His eyes were blue as hyacinths, His tips were red as roses, And everbody loved to praise His pretty looks and winsome ways.

The girls that went to school with me Made little jealous speeches, Because he brought me royally His biggest plains and peaches; And always at the door would wait To carry home my books and slate

"They couldn't see"-with pout and fling-"The mighty fascination About that it de snub-no-ed thing To win such admiration: As h there weren that en girls With nicer eyes and longer curis!"

And this I knew as well as they, And never could see clearly Why more than Marion or May I stieffld be loved so dearly. So once I asked him, way was this: He only answered with a kiss.

Until I teased him-"Tell me why-I want to know the reason, When from the garden-bed close by (The pansies were in season) He plucked and gave a dower to me, With sweet and simple gravity.

The garden is in bloom," he said. "With lillies pale and slender, With roses and verbenas red, And fuchsias' purple splendor; This little heartsease suits me best." e heartwase, then?"

I asked with blushing pleasure; He answered, yes! and yes again-Heartsease, and dearest treasure; That the round world and all the sea Held nothing balf so sweet as me

I listened with a proud delight Nor ever dreamed what sudden blight Would come to cold my rapture. Could I foresee the render biom of pansies round a little tomb
