...OF THE ... The statistics of ... and resources ... several nations of Europe, which have lately appeared, presented a formidable war like aggregate, but for all the purposes of offensive and defensive warfare they exhibit nothing equal to the internal military strength of the United States. In the city of New-York alone, there are 168 volunteer companies, numbering on an average, 60 men each which gives a total of 10,080 fightingmen, equipped and almost fully disciplined. This large body of men are sbuject to no military rules or regulations except those they frame for their own individual benefit. A proportionate force of artillery and dragoons also exist, and which, when added to the former, give the nucleus of the military powers of the city, but if necessity required it, the city of New York, in one week could raise and equip an army of one hundred thousand men. Such are the military resources of one single city in the Union! On refering to the Army Register, (official) of 1850, we find the actual organized military force of the United States sat down in the aggregate at one million nine hundred and sixty thousand two hundred and sixty five men, with no report from Iowa, California, or the Territories. The total militia force of the Union may therefore, be safely set down at two millions of men. There is an inherent military spirit in the American, and love of military glory as strong as in the Frenchman combined with the most practical character in the world. His average height is two or three inches taller, and he is more vigorous and athletic, and in every sense more of the man on the average, than the European.

EXECUTION.—We learn from the Madison (La.) Journal, that the slave, Squire Preston, was executed in the parish jail at Richmond, La., on the 10th inst. for murder. Since he has been under sentence of death, he has confessed that he killed a slave previous to the murder for which he suffered death. While on the gallows he acknowledged the justness of his sentence, and exhorted the numerous blacks who occupied every spot upon the walls from whence a view could be obtained of the awful spectacle, to take warning by his fate of the awful results of disobedience and insubordination. He expressed a hope that he might meet them all in a better state of existence.

A PREACHER was holding forth and had continued to work upon the feelings of his auditors, so that the straw on the ground inside the altar was completely covered with prostrate mourners. Perceiving there were many others present ready to cast themselves down, who refrained from so doing solely through the lack of straw to lie upon, he cried out in the midst of his exhortation—Straw! straw!—We want more straw here. Brother Brown, for the Lord's sake, run up to your tent and get more straw! Twenty souls just being lost for the want of straw!"

That man that will take a paper a length of time and then send it back „refused" and unpaid for, would swallow a blind dog's dinner, and then stone the dog for being blind.

MEDICAL HOUSE,

ESTABLISHED FIFTEEN YEARS AGO, BY

DR. KINKELIN,

North-West corner of Third and Union streets, between Spruce and Pine. PAILADELPHIA.

FIFTEEN YEARS of experience and uninterrupted practice spent in this city have rendered DR. K. the most expert and successful practitioner far and near, in the treatment of all diseases of a private nature. Persons afflicted with ulcers upon the body, throat or legs, pains in the head or bones, mercurial rheumatism, strictures, gravel, diseases arising from youthful excesses or impurities of the blood, whereby the constitution has become enfeebled, are all treated with success.

He who places himself under the care of DR. K., may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician.

Take Particular Notice.

YOUNG MEN who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in—a habit frequently learned from evil companions at school—the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and destroy both mind and body, should apply immediately. Weakness and constitutional debility, loss of muscular energy, physical lassitude and general prostration, irritability and all nervous affections, indigestion, sluggishness of the liver, and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the procreative functions cured, and full vigor restored.
