disposed of one or two communications to the Speaker, and agreed to the Senate's amendment to the bill for the relief of Josiah Fitcher, and the bill to regulate the fees of officers of United States courts.—Going next into a Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, (Mr. Bocock in the chair,) the Indian appropriation bill was taken up, and speeches were made upon it by Messrs. Johnson of Arkansas, Giddings, Fitch, and Howard. The army appropriation bill was next considered in the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union; and after it was laid aside to be favorably reported upon, the committee rose, and the House adjourned.

The Case of Archibald Ridgeley.—The Course of Governor Bigler.

Observing that a number of Whig and Abolition papers have recently been assailing and violently abusing the Governor, for his conduct in the case of Archibald Ridgeley, who killed the slave Wm. Smith, at Columbia, last spring; and recollecting that we had heard it said at the time, by those who understood the question, that the course of the Governor was a highly correct one, and entirely satisfactory to the people of Lancaster county, the scene of the tragedy, We concluded to go to the State Department and ask to be shown the official facts as they appear upon record.

It seems that before affidavits sufficient to sustain a requisition for the delivery of officer Ridgely had been presented to the Governor, the State of Maryland appointed two commissioners to visit Pennsylvania, collect all the facts and communicate with Governor Bigler, touching this unfortunate affair. The commissioners thus appointed came to the seat of Government in the absence of Governor Bigler and immediately repaired to Lancaster, and, in company with John L. Thompson, the district attorney of that county, proceeded to collect all the evidence that could be found in the case. The testimony thus collected was forwarded to Governor Bigler.—The day after it came to hand he was called upon by the Maryland commissioners, who solicited a few days delay before a final decision in the case, until they could collect testimony to identify the deceased, as a slave, and Mr. Ridgely as an officer. The Governor concluded to accede to this request, on condition the said commissioners would give him an official assurance that Mr. Ridgeley would not take advantage of the delay to escape. They gave such assurance, and their communication is now on file in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Immediately upon the presentation of this testimony, the Governor proceeded to make an examination of the whole case. He found the prima facia case, of unlawful killing, by no means a clear one. The force of the first affidavits taken had been much impaired by subsequent testimony, which went far to sustain the plea of accidental killing. In view of this character of the testimony—the important nature of the case—the excitement which existed on the subject at the time; but above all, in consequence of the positive declaration of one of the Maryland commissioners, that Mr. Ridgeley would never be given up on such evidence as that, Governor Bigler felt it his duty to send the case to a grand jury of Lancaster county. He had really no other proper and manly course to pursue. Although satisfied that Mr Ridgeley was not guilty of murder, he believed he should be brought to trial on the charge of manslaughter, and under all circumstances repudiated the idea that such trial could not be impartial. He accordingly sent the evidence to the district attorney of Lancaster county, to be laid before the grand jury of that county, and distinctly stated, as appears in his letter recorded in the office, that: "should an indictment be found against Mr. Ridgeley, the requisition for his arrest should be issued without delay," and he further informed the district attorney that he had an assurance from Mr. Scott and Mr Buchanan, the commissioners on the part of Maryland, that Mr. Ridgeley would not take advantage of the delay to escape: and here the connection of Governor Bigler, with this unfortunate affair terminates.

It appears that the district attorney of Lancasier county, after a full examination of the evidence, and with the consent of the court, (for the law requires such assent,) deemed it his duty to enter a nolle prequi in the case, and thus Mr Ridgeley was relieved from trial. Now, we do not pretend to say whether the course of the district attorney and court of Lancaster was justified by the evidence or not, for we never said it; but we are clear, and we believe candid men of all parties will agree with us, that it is most unreasonable and unjust to censure and traduce Gov. Bigler for the acts of the judicial functionaries at Lancaster. The responsibility assumed by them was certainly a grave one—it may have been an improper one. But, be that as it may, it is due the cause of truth and justice, that Gov. Bigler be vindicated against the consequences of misrepresentation. It was the Whig district attorney at Lancaster, and the Whig court, and not the Governor, who determined that Mr. Ridgeley should be brought to trial, and set him free.

We shall embrace this occasion to allude to another affair, about which certain abolition prints have attempted to get up a feeling against the Governor. We have reference to the case of Richard [illegible]. If the Governor had refused a requisition in that case, on the ground laid down in the Senate, how could he have made a requisition for M'Creary and Marshall for kidnapping the Parker girls?—There are other cases, we are informed, which would have been defeated on the same principle. [illegible]

The abolition paper at Norristown is filled with indignation at these things, and is very careful to conceal the fact that the Parker girls, who were carried off under the administration of their favorite Governor, have been recovered by the attorneys appointed by Governor Bigler, and that a requisition has been issued to bring the offenders to justice.

The Boston Chronicle states that a pew was recently sold at auction in the Franklin street Church and bid off by a woman at $520. She was very plain in appearance, and sells apples at a stand on Long Wharf. It is hinted that some of the "big bugs" in the same church are indignant at an apple woman going to their heaven!

TO KEEP FISH ALIVE.—This may be done by soaking the soft part of bread in brandy, and inserting it in the gill of the fish while it is yet alive, and afterwards sprinkling it over gently with brandy. Thus prepared, and carefully packed in straw the fish will keep alive ten or twelve days, as may be proved by putting it in fresh water at the end of that time, when, after a few hours' immersion, it will recover from its protracted drunkenness.

AFFICTED READ!

PHILADELPHIA
MEDICAL HOUSE,

Established 18 years ago by Dr. KINKELIN, N. W corner of Third and Union streets, between Spruce and Pine sts., Philadelphia.

EIGHTEEN years of extensive and uninterrupted practice spent in this city, have rendered Dr. K. the most expert and successful practitioner, far and near, in the treatment of all diseases of a private nature. Persons afflicted with ulcers on the body, throat or legs, pains in the head or bones, inveterate rheumatism, strictures, gravel, diseases arising from youthful excesses or impurities of the blood, whereby the constitution has become enfeebled, are all treated with success.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. K., may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

Young men who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in—a habit frequently learned from evil companions at school; the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and destroy both mind and body, should apply immediately. Weakness and constitutional debility, loss of muscular energy, physical lassitude and general prostration, irritability and all nervous affections, Indigestion, sluggishness of the liver, and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the procreative functions cured, and full vigor restored.
