

THE REGENERATED POTATO.
A few days ago, we published an article announcing the discovery of the cure for the disease in the potato, called the rot. Since then we have seen some of the potatoes which are the product of the cultivation under the remedy there alluded to. These potatoes were sent by the discoverer, Mr. E. C. Roberts, of Michigan, to William Congden, his agent, now in this city. We never saw a finer or better lot of potatoes. The first glance at them, as they were taken from the box, was sufficient to satisfy us of the superior quality of the article, however they may have been raised. They were said to have been only an average lot, as they were taken from the ground—all of convenient size for cooking, with some large ones of mammoth growth, evincing the great yield that might be expected from the process of regeneration. We had some of them cooked, & found them as superior in flavor as they are in appearance—having that floury quality which the hardy, healthy potato only has.

The discoverer of this valuable remedy is now a resident of Michigan, an humble, quiet, unambitious farmer and village school-master. He cultivates a forty acre farm in summer—keeping school in winter, in a small school-house on his own ground. For seven years he has been looking into this subject—and has finally arrived at the natural and conclusive results of the potato disease, and has been able therefore to give the only true remedy. Those to whom the secret has been imparted are—so rational and harmonious is it with the nature of things.

The discovery is as valuable, probably, to the human family, as the invention of the cotton gin, the spinning jenny, or the calorific engine of the present day, although we hardly think it will be generally so realized. The discoverer should receive a testimonial from his fellow citizens, worthy of his discovery. Inventors are not generally remembered or rewarded, though the people's benefits therefrom are invaluable.

The discoverer of the cure of the potato rot cannot get a patent as for a valuable machine, nor will the large rewards offered by States fall to this gentleman, as they were conceded to their own citizens. It is the purpose of his friends to secure ample remuneration to him, by selling out the secret of the cure to the farmer for a small compensation. The first year's product will more than compensate the farmer for the trifling outlay.—Chicago Times.

ONE HUNDRED MILES PER HOUR.—"A Maine Yankee" announces, through the National Intelligencer, the invention of a form of road and improved locomotive, which, he says, will safely transport the mails and passengers at the rate of one hundred miles per hour! The writer further says, he has been made acquainted with the details of these improvements, "which are so palpably correct in theory, and feasible in practice, that every civil engineer and railroad man will, on examination, at once recognize and admit, as the desideratum, to the extent of safety and speed above indicated." The next Congress, it is said, is to be invited to secure its adoption, and give to the world the result of the first experiment. The construction of a post railroad between Washington and New York, we think, will be hastened by this invention.

CAUTION TO PRINTERS.—H. H. Braden, printer at Zanesville, Ohio, (and formerly in our employ for a short time) died on the 22d ult., of a disease, Type Fever, contracted from a habit of putting type into his mouth while "spacing out" the lines. He was a worthy young man, and has left a wife and small family to mourn his loss.—Mir.

Weevil.—These troublesome pests may be kept out of grain by using salt. Sprinkle a little fine salt on the bottom and around the sides of the bin as you fill up, and over the top when full. Wheat kept in old salt barrels will never be destroyed by the weevils.

For the Republican.
TO SARAH IN HEAVEN.
O, love and sainted one, who sit on high,
Clime by thy Savior, whom thou lovest so well;
Or comest, perchance, with pity benning eye,
On mercy seat, where on earth I dwell,
O, have known and loved those who can tell
If God an angel gives, who gave a wife;
Or who can know the strong mysterious spell
That works upon my soul. The inner strife—
It almost bursts its torment, to languish into life.

Full nine long months of tedious time hath passed
Since thou wast taken from my anxious sight:
Around thy dying pillow then were cast
These tokens that in thee God took delight;
And that his angels helped thee upward flight,
That Jesus might rejoice in thee above:
I long to follow thee to worlds of light,
To share thy bliss, and sing thy songs of love.
Our hearts he parted not, when God did thou to move.

But O! how desolate and lone I feel;
I meet no more thy gentle, fond caress:
And rousing thoughts of past endearments steal
Into my wounded heart, and weariness
Fills all my frame—thou art not here to bless.
But thou art happy, though I am distressed;
And I rejoice that God does thee possess—
I am a weary wanderer, seeking rest.
Where thou, beloved, hast found it on the Savior's breast.

Then on the holy, and the dovey mount,
We'll roam along celestial paths above,
And there re-joined, God's mercies here recount,
And bank in smiles of uncreated love.
O, come then Holy, then Celestial Dove,
And kindly warmer than the heavenly glow
Expand our wings of faith, to rise above
Terrestrial things, and let our passions flow
Into the boundless ocean of thy love, 'till dawn all earthly woe.
