

ERIE RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Susquehanna, N. Y., June 18.—The boiler of engine No. 58, which was pushing a heavy freight train up grade, when about half a mile east of Susquehanna, on the 16th inst., at 4 o'clock, P. M., exploded, instantly killing, burning and scalding a large number of persons.

Five are known to have been instantly killed, among whom was the engineer Mr. Arnold.

Two others were so much injured that it is doubtful whether they will survive till morning.

The son of the engineer was very much burned and scalded, and it is thought, received some internal injuries.

Justice Seymour held an inquest upon the remains at Susquehanna, and the jury acquitted the officials of all blame in the matter.

It was supposed that there were several bodies in the Susquehanna river, but none were discovered, after a careful search.

However, the current is so rapid there that the torn fragments may have been carried away. A gold ring and some pieces of coin were found upon the bank.

Mr. Arnold, the engineer, with two other victims, were buried with much solemnity—all the stores in Susquehanna being closed, and craped in mourning.

Second Dispatch.—Further Particulars.—The engine was an old eight wheel driver used in helping the freight trains over the hills. It exploded in the rock cut between this place and Dane-boro' about half a mile from Conewata bridge.

When she started, her tender was literally covered with passengers going to the summit. Those who were killed instantly were two women, Mrs. Catharine Stately and Mrs. Catharine O'Day; and three men, Walter B. Arnold, engineer, Michael Cassey and Patrick Caron.

Arnold's head was blown on the rocks of the south side of the railroad, his body some rods in another direction. When his body was found the countenance was still as natural as life.

His little son—a lad of 13—recognised it, and exclaimed, "Oh there's my father!" He ran to embrace it. The head dropped from the rocks, and the brains fell into his hands.

The headless bodies of the two women lay blackened and mangled a few rods from the engine. Their husbands live at the "summit." The bodies of the two other men lay torn and scalded a short distance from the tender.

Six are known to be wounded, viz: Gilbert Hill, slightly. A son of Walter Arnold, engineer now deranged; injuries about the head and neck; may recover.

Miss Eliza Stoddard, arm blown off and otherwise injured; has just had the stump of the arm amputated by Drs. Smith and Fisher, of this place; recovery doubtful.

GOVERNOR BIGLER HAS MADE A TEMPORARY LOAN OF $700,000, PAYABLE IN ONE YEAR AT SIX PER CENT INTEREST, FROM THE BANKS IN PHILADELPHIA.

The money to be applied to the completion of the North Branch Canal, and the avoidance of the Plains on the Allegheny Portage Railroad. This sum with $250,000 to be paid by the Girard and Mechanics' Bank for their recharter, which are appropriated to the North Branch Canal, will furnish ample means for finishing these works with energy.

The Enchanted Mountain, in Texas is an immense oval rock, 300 feet high, situated about eighty miles north from Bastrop. Its surface is polished, and in sunshine, dazzles the beholder at a distance of three or four miles.

Those who ascend it have to wear moccasins or stockings, and like those who went up to Mount Horob, must put off their shoes. The Camanches perform their religious rites on this singular hill.

The cost of building railroads now, in consequence of the advance of wages and increased price of materials, is said to be 40 per cent, more than it was three years since, according to an estimate in the Cincinnati Railroad Record.

Tobacco.—There is much complaint in Kentucky about the prospect of a short crop of tobacco. The Henderson Courier of the 16th says: "There will not be tobacco plants enough to plant more than one half the amount first intended. The plants have been destroyed by bugs and frost."

A fatal case of cholera has occurred in the St. Louis Charity Hospital, and two were reported in the city by a German physician. The latter persons are supposed to have been emigrants.

"Sammy, why don't you mother me that rip in your trousers?" "Oh, she's gone to the sewing circle, to make clothes for poor children!"

If men would follow the advice they gratuitously bestow upon others, what a reformation would be effected in the world.
