Bartruly are its orders given." Some twenty years ago, I was an apprentice boy in the then "City of mud," now the goodly city of Rochester. The business of which I was obtaining a knowledge, was conducted upon Exchange street, though I boarded in one of the streets in the western part of the city. In going to my tea, I was in the habit of meeting, almost every evening, for many weeks in succession, a small, well dressed and good looking girl, with a pail in her hand. At length my curosity became excited, and I resolved to ascertain, if possible, the daily errand of the girl. Having met her the following evening, I accordingly turned on my heal, and followed her at a distance that would not excite suspicion in any one. I at length saw her enter a small shoemaker's shop on south St. Paul street. I subsequently learned that the shop was owned by an industrious young man, and excellent mechanic, and that he was the girl's husdand. He had been married a few months, and possessing no other capital than a good name and robust constitution, he resolved to economize, by hiring a house in the suburbs of the city.

His breakfast was always ready for him by flay-break, and taking his dinner with him, he saved the hour each day which most porsons spond in going and in coming from that meal. Many economists would have been satisfied with the saving of so much time as this between the rising and going down of the sun, but not so with the young sheemaker. He also wished to save the hour usually devoted to jen, and therefore had that meal daily takch to him by his pretty little wife. This arrangement enabled him to spend the whole day, and as much of the evening as he chose in his shop.

The industrious habits of the shoemaker were soon discovered and met with their due reward. Customers flocked in upon him, and he was obliged not only to renta large shop, but to employ an additional number of workmen. But the increase of husiness did not wean him from the plan he had early adopted for the saving of time-this third meal still having been taken to him by his wife, in the tin pail.

About this time I loft the city, and did not return for about twelve years. I had not, however, forgotten the shoemaker,

From the Baltimore Patriot. "VOICES OF THE PAST." There is something ever murmuring
So sweetly in my ear.
At times in accounts whispering. And music varying molody Brings to mine eye the tear, Each simple strain reminding mo Of those I hold so dear.

Oh! there are voices of the past, Which have the pow'r to bring Hopes, which around us she d their lights In life's first early spring.
And memories at times awake. Within the heart again. Of happy joyons days of yore. Which may not come again.

Each well known word of many a song, On bringeth back to me.
On bringeth back to me.
And thoughts are stirr'd by simple sounds,
Unskillful though they be.
Yet, it is their's to bring to mind Some scene of former years. Or some remembered vision sweet; of Childhood's hopes and fears.

These are the voices of the past Coming to us again, Reminding us of by gone joys, Which we seek for in vain But, ah! to us they only seem Links of a broken chain, Or wither'd flowers, whose perfumo Is all that now remains.

ONE sultry summer day, having fullen into a dosc over "Plutarch's Lives," Moving, from my first knowledge of him, discovered the germ of success in his manifer of life. I visited the place where his old shop had stood; it had given place to a new brick block. In vain I looked about for the sign—it was nowhere to be seen I was at length informed by a friend that two years previous he had removed to Ohio, "Do you know anything of his circum-stances?" I inquired.

IMPOTENCY,—Through unrestrained indulgence in the nations, by excess or self-abuse the evils are name-ous.— Premature impotency, involuntary seminal discharges, wasting or theoreasts, loss of memory, a distast e for female society, central disblity, or constitutional derangement, are sure to follow. If necessary, consult the Doctor with confidence.— He offers a perfect outs.

READ AND REFLECT.—The afflicted would do well to relied before trusting their beaith, happiness, and in many cases their lives, in the hands of physicians ignorant of this class of maintiers. It is certainly impossible for one man to oundertand all the lils the human family are subject to. Every respectable Physician has his necessire branch, in which he devotes most of his time and study. YEARS OF TRACTICE, exclusively devoted to the study and treatment of diseases of the sexual organs, together with ulcers upon the body, throat, nose, or legs, pains in the head or bones, merourist thoumatism, ettle ures, gravel, irregularities, diseases arising from youthal excounts, or impurities of the blood, whereby the constitution has become enfeebled, enables the Doctor to offer speedy relief to all who may place themselves under his care.
