For the Republican.

THE DYING YEAR.

BY OLIVER OLNEY.

Time onward flies. Another year
Of joy and hope is drawing near,
For ere this coming night shall flee,
The year we've known and cherished long
When pleasures in a countless throng,
Were scattered o'er our devious way,
And Nature shone all smilingly,
Shall be no more! The morning sun,
The token of returning day,
Shall rise no more for it. Thus one
By one, the years roll round, and nought
Is left us of them but the thought
Of what they were,
Those joyous hours
Short lived as summer's fairest flowers,
Or gilded clouds that glow at eve,
For us return not, but they leave
An impress bright on memory's page,
Endearing with succeeding age—
Which oft arising to our view,
We greet with ardor as if new,
But not alone do thoughts arise,
Of moments which we highly prize—
As gorgeous clouds of brightest dies
Soon fade from autum's sunset skies—
And darkness then with dusky pall,
Walks boldly forth enshrouding all;
So every pleasant picture fades,
The brightest sunshine and the shades,
In quick succession follow. Each
Its sphere of action has. They teach
Us how we ought to live, and know,
That nought is ours while here below.
One moment, pleasure round us flies,
We grasp its shadow and it dies;
And sorrow weaves a spell around,
And bears us drooping to the ground.
Then, thoughts of time we've spent in vain,
In silence steal across the mind;
Of days wherein no solid gain,
Or retrospection we can find
Was treasured up—but all alas,
Presents one vast chaotic mass,
Of blessings we have once enjoy'd,
Of hours by grief and pain alloy'd,
Or moments when we turned away,
And left the pleasures of the day,
Nor sought for joy amid the throng,
Of those to whom may well belong
The stamp of Fashion's votaries,
And, mingled with such scenes as these—
The untold mercies to us shown,
The preservations we have known;
Throughout the lengthened year;
And slighted offers from above,
A father's kindest, purest love,
To guide and guard us safely here.
And then in fancy as a dream,
The well remembered dead, all seem
To rise in stern and pale array,
And beckon us to come away;
To leave the fleeting things of earth,
And seek for those of higher birth;
Thus thoughts on thoughts arise, until
The wearied mind—as soon it will—
Bewildered grows—'Tis then a ray
Of purest light gleams through the whole,
And with its beam illumes the soul.

Scenes like these will oft arise,
Like clouds across the sun-set skies,
And o'er the heart will cast a gloom,
When save its beatings, o'en the tomb
Cannot more silent be. It feels
Its fast increasing cares; and reels
Beneath the burden—added years,
Diminish not its constant fears;
Not the past, now fled forever,
Not the present with its cares;
Not the joys that time may sever,
Stealing on us unawares.
It fears not these nor heeds them o'en—
It fears alone the dim unseen.

Thus time rolls on, we're standing near
The deathbed of another year.
His life reduced from days to hours
As fleeting as the fairest flowers—
With quivering tongue and wrinkled cheek
And feeble voice he tries to speak,
"I've heard the final summons given,
Here shalt thou no longer roam;
Go earth to earth and dust to dust,
Haste thee pilgrim to thy home,
For e'er another year shall flee
No more on earth, they'll honor thee.
Come then and take my palsied hand,
Ye who round my bedside stand,
And hold it till the struggle's o'er
And time shall own my sway no more."
His voice grew faint—this last sad tone
Was uttered with a stifled groan.
The wintry wind was howling round,
His winding sheet was on the ground,
The merciless Time had slowly traced
The circuit of the year, and placed
His digits at the midnight hour.
A sigh was heard—and like a show'r
That gently falls at even, so it fell
Upon the listening ear. The knell
Of parting life. It seemed to say,
"Remember me when passed away;
And o'er my tomb oft drop a tear,
When ye recall the dying year."

Then burst upon the startled air,
The voice of solemn midnight pray'r;
Then cannon's roaring sound was heard,
The lofty dome proclaimed the word;
Twelve solemn strokes our feelings stirr'd,
And silence reigned supreme o'er all.
We heard not e'en the foot-steps fall,
On nature's fairest, snowy pall;
But soon was heard a dulcet voice,
Bidding the earth once more rejoice;
O'er hill and dell, o'er rock and plain,
We hear its echoes ring again;
We catch the tones now dimmer growing,
As the stream is onward flowing;
The last faint accent strikes the ear,
And bids us greet the new-born year.

☞An innocent young sportsman, in order to shoot a squirrel on the top of a tall tree, climbed another one near by; and on being asked his reason for so foolish a freak, said that he "didn't want to strain his gun by a long shot!"

☞In every age and nation, a free working class have been the best class.—They are yet. The drudge is the sediment; the unemployed thinker and unworking race are the overvexing top; but the body and strength of the liquor lies in the middle.

Important to Farmers.

Silver Medal awarded to this Machine at the Fair of the American Institute, N. Y., Oct. 1852; a Diploma at the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia; First premium at the State Fair, Utica; First premium at the Rensslaer, Co., N. Y., and also at the Columbia Co., N. Y. Fair; and a Diploma at the Westchester County Fair New York.

HICKOK'S PATENT IMPROVED CIDER MILL.

IN the present arrangement of this highly approved and valuable Mill, the labor is divided by arranging a cutting blade to break the apples and thus prepare them for the lower Grinder to be reduced to pomace. By this arrangement the work is performed faster and with much less labor.

The Press is arranged with a much larger screw than formerly, and by a very ingenious device the pin of the bar is dispensed with and the bar made to open at the same time the Cider is left clean, and the work can be done with much less labor than by the old method. The Cylinders are covered with heavy sheet Zinc, both on their peripheries and ends; the wood in them is arranged so as not to swell, and the whole work on the Mill and Press move in the very best manner, and arranged with especial view to their durability and service.

No farmer, who uses the Mill carefully and according to directions will be disappointed; but, on the other hand he will find this one of the most valuable and efficient machines on his farm.

The machine is made to run by horse power, steam or hand power, and when the apples are ground, a small boy of 14 years of age can press the pomace with ease.

This Mill is warranted superior to any other Portable Mill in existence; and the proprietor is ready at any time (on fair notice being given) to test it with any Portable Mill that is not an infringement on it.

FARMERS, EXAMINE THIS NEWLY IMPROVED MILL BEFORE YOU BUY ANY OTHER—the great advantage of this machine over all others is, that it will not choke up, and hard or soft apples can be ground, and yet the Cylinders will always remain clean in grinding order.

All orders will be filled in the order in which they come in, and persons waiting them had better send their order early and state at what time, and who they want the Mill delivered.

This Mill, attended by two men, will, when properly worked according to directions make from six to twelve barrels of cider a day—and will grind alone by horse power, from 400 to 600 bushels of apples a day.

The price of the Mill and Press is $40, delivered. Recollect this is the newly improved Mill.

Having very many applications for more particular descriptions of the size, &c., of my new CIDER MILL, than is contained in my circular, I would here remark that the whole Mill weigh but 275 pounds is 22 3-4 set-apart, and 4 feet high, and can be taken anywhere on a wheelbarrow without even the trouble of taking off the bands or screws.

Persons wishing to purchase will be supplied with descriptions of the Mill, and information cheerfully given.

☞It is regretted that I purchased of H. HALMAN, one of Hickock's Patent Cider Mills and Press, last fall—and I feel in duty bound to say that I have ground one bushel of apples previous to Hand. I have also been using cider for the last 5 years, and I made it better with my Mill than with any other I ever used.

Centre Line Pa., Aug. 28, 1853. WILLIAM HILL.

MR. W. O. HICKOCK:—Dear Sir—I purchased one of your improved cider Mills at the State Fair at Lancaster, Pa., last year. Since then I have set it effectually, and must say it surpasses any machine, for the purpose it is intended for, that I have ever seen, and I have found a good many before purchasing and since. Its construction I like much, as every part is out of order. It surpasses my most sanguine expectations. Could not procure a mill rope. I was not put with mine for fear since the price of them. I know it is worth. Yours truly, CHAS. M. CLARK.

Epilepsy can be Cured!

LAKE'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND,

Price Five Dollars A Bottle.

The proprietor has in his possession numerous certificates, illustrative of the ASTONISHING AND MIRACULOUS EFFECTS produced by this valuable and diseases attention to the following only, to assure those who are so unfortunate to be afflicted with this terrible disease that a remedy has at last been discovered.

Is almost Infallible in its Cure!

From Mrs. Brooks, widow of Maj. Jas. Brooks, late of Conneaut, Ohio.

Mr Z. LAKE—Sir: Please send me another bottle of Fit Medicine, as I do not like to do without it on hand. When I commenced giving the Medicine to my son Edgar, he had from one to three fits per day. He has now taken the medicine never five months, and has had, I think but two fits in that time, and those very light. His body and mind have very much improved and by the blessing of God, I feel that the medicine will restore his body and mind to their natural vigour. He is 20 years old, and has had fits over 6 years, which have been very frequent, and very distressing. The next time he comes to "CURE FITS" but nothing has relieved him until he used your medicine. Respectfully,

POLLY BROOKS.

From Judson Landon, Superintendent of the Ashtabula County Infirmary.

Mr. Z. LAKE—Please send me a few more bottles of your "Fit Medicine." I have need upon it, but think after to-day I can have it. You may be sure I am very much pleased to state that Mr. Jones, who has had fits for years, which could not be brought out to the surface. After taking a few days, the said fits came out in large quantities, and he has had no since. She had Fits at my home almost every day, and I am certain of her recovery from the use of the medicine has not left work a day since she took it. I always set a good deal by Mrs Jane Hamilton and I am glad to say that she is now able to work as well as ever. Their life have been saved by the use of the medicine. Well have the desired effect. Much money has been paid for the cure of the above facts for all persons, and to all persons. The fact is, I do not like to ask for your medicine to perform, and I can there fully recommend it as a valuable discovery. Respectfully yours,

JUDSON LANDON.
