has ever distinguished the state, since the time of her illustrious and pure minded founder, has extended a helping hand. The object of this institution is to discover humanity in its lowest condiion of mental and physical weakness and deformity, and elevate it to the dignity of intelligence, order and usefulness. Its disinterested and benevolent founders have merited the thanks of the christian and patriot.

The House of Refuge, in Philadelphia, may possibly require further legislation. The board of managers of that truly charitable institution are now erecting a spacious and costly building, into which they expect to transfer the inmates of the old house at an early day. Of all schemes for the amelioration of human distress and suffering, or for the reclamation of erring humanity, there is no one which more forcibly commends itself to Christian sympathy and support than the House of Refuge. Having for its sole aim the reformation rather than the punishment of the young, whose offences are often the result of misfortune rather than criminal intent; who sin through the weakness of moral perceptions, or from impure associations which so fatally attract and mislead the young and thoughtless. I cheerfully and earnestly commend this admirable institution to your fostering care.

The report of the superintendent will exhibit to you the condition of the common schools of the Commonwealth. No department of the government has greater claims upon the General Assembly than this, and it affords me the greatest satisfaction to be able to assure you of the flourishing condition of the common school system, and of the unusual interest manifested in every part of the Commonwealth in the cause of education. We should look forward with lively interest to the day when our great Commonwealth, freed to some extent, from the shackles of debt, can, as she doubtless will, contribute an adequate sum to this cause.

My attention has been called to the condition of the State Library by the officer having charge of it at this time. It is alleged, with evident reason and truth, that the rooms now in use are too small for the purpose; that many of the books are stowed away in boxes, and also that the laws providing for their security and imposing responsibilities on the Librarian, are quite insufficient. This highly interesting and useful institution will doubtless receive your special care.

It is proper that I should make known to you the progress that has been made on the subject of the erection of a monument at Independence Hall, in Philadelphia, commemorative of the Declaration of Independence.

In October, 1852, the councils of Philadelphia, by unanimous consent, passed an ordinance dedicating the necessary ground in Independence Square, to this patriotic and sacred national purpose, and proposing to give possession of the premises to the representatives of nine or more of the original States.

By an act of the legislature of February last, confirming this ordinance of the councils, the Governor was authorized to appoint a trustee to act in conjunction with the trustees of the other States, in the erection of a monument; I accordingly appointed Albert G. Waterman, Esq., of Philadelphia, the trustee on behalf of Pennsylvania,

The States of New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Connecticut have adopted laws similar to that of this State, and trustees have been appointed in each. Under the terms of these laws, no action can be taken by the trustees, until at least nine of the thirteen original States shall have signified their willingness to participate in the enterprise. There are still four States wanting, and with them the issue must rest for the present.

I am unwilling to believe that an object so entirely proper in itself—so congenial to the feelings of the American nation—so significant in its historic and moral bearing and so touchingly interesting to every American heart, can even be long delayed much less defeated. In was the magic power of the Declaration of Independence which bound together thirteen sparsely populated, tax-ridden and oppressed colonies, and erected them into an independent nation. By it was first proclaimed to the world the equality of all men, and their capacity for, and right of self-government. Under the auspices of this great instrument our liberties were achieved, and the thirteen feeble colonies, acting on its benign principles, and guided at every step by an over-ruling Providence, have grown into thirty-one sovereign States—all teeming with the elements of national wealth—all prosperous and progressive—members of one vast confederacy, whose boundaries are marked by the Atlantic and Pacific, and enjoying a commerce co-extensive with the civilized world. Honored, feared and patronized by all nations; already sustaining a population of twenty-five millions of inhabitants, rejoicing in the blessing of civil and religious liberty, and in a high degree of moral and social happiness. And shall we not have a monument to perpetuate the events from which these manifold blessings have sprung? Some imperishable memorial of our gratitude—an everlasting witness of the great things done amongst us—some visible sign to perpetuate the memory of the Declaration of Independence—the Revolution—the heroes who participated in the mighty struggle, and the Constitution that crowned and defined the privileges so nobly achieved. If these deserve not a monument, then all others have been erected in vain.

A structure commensurate with the moral grandeur of the event, its world-wide consequences, is not contemplated; but that can be, and should be accomplished by the erection of a structure after the plan indicated by the committee—a beautiful and ever-enduring embodiment of the nation's gratitude to the authors of the declaration; an imperishable personification of our fidelity to its principles and their natural offspring, the constitution and the Union.

The location of this political Mecca will be most fortunate. Central to the original States—eligible to the younger members of the confederacy, and planted on the soil of the old Keystone, who never has, and by the blessing of God, never will falter in her fidelity to the national compact to all its forms and conditions—as in times past, so will she in the future, should the occasion unhappily arise, frown upon the dawn of discontent against the integrity of the Union, come whence it may, or by whomsoever instigated. The weight of her vast moral and political power, I firmly believe, will be wielded to resist the tide of dissention and dissolution, and to keep the political atmosphere around the monument, when erected, purely national.

The present is also an auspicious time for this work of national fellowship. The compromise measures, recently adopted, and sanctified by the approval of Clay, of King and of Webster, have quieted the elements of national discord; and to prolong this peace and quiet, it is but necessary to maintain these measures and the requirements of the Constitution; to discountenance in future the agitation of questions settled by the federal compact, and disdain the actions of those who would hazzard the peace of the country to gratify prejudice, or to accomplish the ends of personal ambition.

WM. BIGLER.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
Harrisburg, January 4, 1854.

THE REPUBLICAN.

CLEARFIELD, JAN. 11, 1854.

THE MESSAGE.

We have only space to say a word in reference to the Governor's annual Message, by way of directing particular attention to the various topics which it presents and discusses. It is a truly able paper, and we are much mistaken if it will not rank among the foremost documents that ever emanated from Harrisburg. Its tone is as clear as it is independent and decisive, and there is no mistaking the Governor on any topic, from that of building a monument to the memories of the Authors of the Declarati on of Independence, to the urging of an appropriation to improve the navigation of the Susquehanna river. His suggestions upon all subjects are well worthy of consideration, wise, well-timed, and truly democratic, and only need to be put into practice to place our state in advance of all her sisters in point of wealth, prosperity and independence, and her citizens happy and prosperous in the enjoyment of every blessing.

M'ALAY, THE MURDERER.

Quite an excitement was raised in our town on the 1st instant, and continued for some time, on account of a letter being received announcing that the above named person had been arrested and confined in Jail at Williamsport. Immediately on the receipt of the intelligence, Sheriff Powell started for the purpose of ascertaining the facts, and if correct, obtaining the prisoner. But on his arrival at Williamsport, he learned that the person arrested, and bearing the description of M'Alay, in every particular, had succeeded in proving himself clear and had been released. The prisoner had been confined in jail for some two or three weeks, but the letter sent to this place did not fall into the hands of the proper person or persons for several weeks after it was due, consequently the prisoner was permitted to escape without it being known to a certainty whether he was the guilty person or not. Two hundred dollars, have been offered by the County and one hundred by Oliver Conklin for the arrest of M'Alay.

☞Owing to the great length of the Message, our paper is entirely destitute of any and every thing in the shape of news, and having published no paper last week quite a number of communications, and other important articles have accumulated all of which will be properly attended to by the time that our next paper is issued.

PRESIDENT PIERCE.

President Pierce—all party politics aside, has borne his honors meekly—with great modesty, considering the overwhelming vote by which he was elected. A weak man would have committed some extravagance. His first message would have been full of lofty periods and swelling resolves peppered to the taste of the multitude; and teeming with high swelling purposes and individual importance and grandeur. His is the reverse. His conservatism has disappointed policians of both sides—the ultra grumble, and are not comforted there by. The writers of slashing articles find their vocation unprofitable,—as no assailable points project to offend. The quiet tone of the document meets no praise from the ground and lofty-tumbling advocates who expected at least three summersets through a balloon; and people who relied upon the scandal of the man. He is a statesman, and not a political trickster—a gentleman, and not a rowdy; and we are beginning to read letters from those busybodies, called "correspondents," detailing the startling fact that Mr. Pierce really rides in his carriage, like any other human, and does not go on top of it, or outside with the driver; that he stays in the house when he is sick, like other sensible folks, and in fact, "goes to church on Sundays." We think all the better of him for this last; but really, we see no great occasion for letting off any very extravagant rhapsodies over the matter. All the people who go to church, are not of necessity better than people who do not; but there is this in the fact; that men do not get much encouragement to continue in vice from any pulpit, and the sanction of the presence of the President of the United States in a place of worship has moral force than if he had gone to a race-course. We honor him for acting out the true instincts of his nature—for respecting public opinion, and for comporting himself in his responsible position as one who feels that the eyes of millions are upon his actions. This only, and no more.

Phila. Mail.

☞The modest maiden, the prudent wife, or the careful matron, are much more serviceable in life than petticoated philosophers, blustering heroines, or virago queens. She who makes her husband happy, and reclaims him from vice, is a much greater character than ladies described in romance, whose whole occupation is to murder mankind with shafts from their quiver or their eyes.

☞Mrs. Partington wishes to know if Ole Bull plays upon one of his own horns.

MARRIED—On the 25th ult., by J. W. Wright, Esq., Mr. James Hains, to Miss Matilda Lythe, all of Glen Hope Beccaria township.

On the 6th inst., by B. F. Sterling, Esq., Mr. G. W. Hoover of Pike township, to Miss Ann Neeper of Brady township.

DIED—In Lawrence township, on Sunday the 8th instant, an infant son of John and Mary Hancock, aged about 1 year.

A liberal reduction will be made to Merchants and other who advertise by the year.

Our paper circulates in every neighborhood, and is read by nearly every family in the county—and therefore affords a convenient and cheap means for the business men of our county—the merchant, mechanic, and all others—to extend the knowledge of their location and business. We should like to insert "A Card" for every Mechanic, Merchant, and Professional man in the county. We have plenty of room without encroaching upon our reading columns, and no man in a big, thriving business will lose by advertising extensively—for, as a general rule, the more extensively a man advertises the greater will be his profits.

MARRIED

Happiness and Competence.

WHY IS IT?

THAT we behold many females borne to the meridian of life, broken in health, and spirits with a complication of diseases and ailments, depriving them of the power for the enjoyment of life at an era when physical health, buoyancy of spirits, and happy serenity of mind, arising from a condition of health should be predominant.

Many of the causes of heartfelt sufferings at first perhaps years before, during girlhood, or the first years of her marriage—were in their origin so slight as to pass unnoticed.

IN AFTER YEARS,

When too late to be benefited by our knowledge, we look back and mourn, and regret the full consequence of our ignorance.

What would we not often give to possess in early life the knowledge we obtain in after years. And what days and nights of anguish we might have been spared, if the knowledge was timely possessed. It is

MEANCHOLLY AND STARTLING

To behold the sickness and suffering endured by many a wife for many years, from causes simple and controlable easily remedied—or better still—not incurred, if every

WIFE AND MOTHER

Possessed the information contained in a little volume, (within the reach of all) which would spare to herself

YEARS OF MISERY,

And to her husband the constant toil and anxiety of mind, necessarily devolving upon him from sickness of the wife, without giving him the opportunity of acquiring that competence which his exertions are entitled to and the possession of which would secure the happiness of himself, wife and children.

SECURE THE MEANS OF HAPPINESS

By becoming in time possessed of the knowledge, the want of which has caused the sickness and poverty of thousands. In view of such consequences, no wife or mother is excused if she neglects to avail herself of that knowledge in respect to herself, which would spare her much suffering, be the means of happiness and prosperity to her husband, and confer upon her children that blessing above all price—healthy bodies with healthy minds. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled
