

DISCONTENT.

How universal it is. We never knew the man that would say, 'I am contented.'

"Leigho!" sighed a blacksmith, one of the hot days, as he wiped away the drops of perspiration from his brow.

"Oh, that I were a carpenter," ejaculated a shoemaker as he bent over his lapstone.

"I am sick of this out door work," says the carpenter, 'boiling and sweating under the sun; or exposed to the clemency of weather. If I was only a tailor.'

"This is too bad," (perpetually cries the tailor) "to be compelled to sit perched up on my heels, playing the needle all the while—would that mine were a more active life."

"Last day of grace—the banks won't account; customers won't pay; what shall I do! grumbles the merchant. I had rather be a truck horse, a dog—anything."

"Happy fellows," groans the lawyer as he scratches his head over some perplexing case, or pours over some dry record, 'happy fellows! I had rather hammer stone than cudgel my brain on this tedious vexatious question.'

And through all the ramifications of society, all are complaining of their condition—finding fault with their particular calling. If I were only this, or that, or the other, I should be content, anything but what I am, is the universal cry.

THINGS THAT ARE COMING.—Manhood will come, old age will come, and the dying bed will come, and the very last look you shall cast upon your acquaintances will come, and the time when you are stretched a lifeless corpse before the eyes of weeping relatives will come, and that hour when the company will assemble to carry you to the church yard will come; and that moment when you are put in the grave will come, and the throwing in of loose earth into the narrow house where you are laid, and the spreading of the green sod over it—all will come on every living creature who hears me; and in a few years the minister who now speaks, and the people who listen will be carried to their long homes, and make room for another generation.

Now, all this, you know must and will happen—your common sense and common experience serve to convince you of it. Perhaps it may have been a little thought of in the days of carelessness and thoughtless and unbecomingly which you have spent hitherto; but you are called upon to think of it now, lay it seriously to heart, and not longer trifle and delay, when eternity is thus set so evidently before you.

A MOTHER'S SOLILOQUY. "Tis mine. Bound to me by a tie that death cannot sever. That little heart shall never thrill with pleasure, or throbb with pain, without a quick response from mine. I am the centre of its little world—its very life depends on my faithful care. It is my duty to deck these dimpled limbs, to poise that tiny trembling foot; yet stay! My duty ends not here. A soul looks forth from those blue eyes! An undying spirit, that shall plume its wing for a ceaseless flight by my erring hand.

The hot blood of anger may not poison the fount whence it draws its life, or the hateful word escape my lips in that pure presence. Wayward, passionate, impulsive, how shall I approach it, but with a flush upon my spirit and a silent prayer.

Oh! careless sentinel, slumber not at thy post of its trusting innocence. Oh! reckless sower of the seed," let not the "tears spring up."

Oh! unskillful helmsman, how shall thou pilot the little bark o'er life's tempestuous sea safely to the eternal shore?"

"Yes, said the Yankee, "we shoot pretty well."

"But how is it you were so anxious to make peace with Mexico? This does not look much like spunk."

"You are an Englishman?" interrogated the Yankee.

"Well," said the Yankee, "I don't know what our folks offered to do with Mexico; but stranger, I'll tell you one thing—I'll be d—d if we offered to make peace with you!"

This home thrust at the Englishman set the whole house in an uproar of laughter.

LUDICROUS.—A young lass who had went to camp-meeting and came back full of the revival which they had, did nothing the following week or more but sing—'Shout! shout! we're gaining ground!'

She had the tune so set, that all she said was but a continuation with that song, and not infrequently the rhymes was too long for the tune. Old Jowler slipped in and took a bone off the table, and just as he was making for the door she sang out—

"If you don't go out I'll knock you down, Hallelujah, Hallelujah!"

On Mr. Benton's quotation from Burke in his anti-Nebraska speech (that he did not care three ships of a brass, &c., the 'Washing Star' has the following: When Benton to Burke for authority turns. His figures of speech to denigrate him. He both the sublime and beautiful spurs. To tastefully introduce 'em; and prove what all ages of folks has said. They are ever repeating whaturs in their heads!

Hear one of our tripod brethren out in Toppisidom. "Oh, for a tongue to speak the doom, the wretch deserves so basely vile. As a stick a printer's room. When the editor's out, and steal the very best of the exchange paper on his file." "The woman who undertook to scour the woods has abandoned the job on account of the high price of soap, and she

GENTILITY.

Gentle it is to have soft hands. But not gentle to work on hands: Gentle it is to lie in bed, But not gentle to earn your bread: Gentle it is to sit at the table, But not gentle to eat and drink: Gentle it is to play the flute, But not gentle to reap and sow: Gentle it is to keep a dog, But not gentle to hunt and dig: Gentle it is to trade to fall, But not gentle to swing the mail: Gentle it is to play the fiddle, But not gentle to keep a school: Gentle it is to cheat the tailor, But not gentle to be a snail: Gentle it is to fight a duel, But not gentle to eat your food: Gentle it is to eat rich cake, But not gentle to cook and bake: Gentle it is to have the blues, But not gentle to wear thick shoes: Gentle it is to roll in wealth, But not gentle to have good health: Gentle it is to eat a friend, But not gentle to show to mend: Gentle it is to make a doer, But not gentle poor folks to know: Gentle it is to run away, But not gentle at home to stay: Gentle it is to smirk and smile, But not gentle to slum all night: Gentle it is to be a knave, But not gentle your cash to save: Gentle it is to waste your life, But not gentle to pay a debt: Gentle it is to play at dice, But not gentle to take advice: Gentle it is to curse and swear, But not gentle to wear clean clothes: Gentle it is to know a lord, But not gentle to pay your board: Gentle it is to skip and hop, But not gentle to tend a shop: Gentle it is to waste your life, But not gentle to love your wife

I cannot tell what I may do, Or what ad means may yet pass through; I may, perchance, turn deaf or blind, The pity of all human kind; I may, perhaps, be doomed to beg, And hop about upon one leg, And even may I come to stool, But may I never get that low.

THE DO-NOTHINGS. A meeting of this society was held yesterday evening. Sam Lazzybones took the chair. Bill Leaferson was the vice president. The Secretary made his report. He observed that at the last meeting nothing had been done, according to the constitution of the society.

Mr. Vacuum offered to make a motion, but did not move from his seat. He observed that it was the destiny of man to work. The present order has been founded for the encouragement of idleness.

A new member was waiting to be initiated. The President said, let him come in. The new member was carried in on a four-post bedstead. After giving the password, Ex nihilo nihil fit.

The President administered the oath of eternal laziness, and desired the candidate for admission into the order to repeat it after him. The candidate waited till the President had finished, and then said, "Ditto."

The Vice President asked the candidate whether he would take a drink. The candidate nodded and opened his lips.

"The Secretary will now read to you the rules of the Society," said the President.

The candidate shut his eyes and fell asleep in an instant. "He'll do!" said the President, approvingly.

"Yes," said the Vice President, "he'll do—nothing."

The member's name was enrolled and he was roused up to pay his subscription. He did nothing of the kind. Nothing else took place. Nothing more was said. Nothing more was done. We know nothing more. The whole thing amounts to a mere nothing.

AN UNEXPECTED ANSWER.—Soon after the Mexican war, an American captain and an Englishman met in Venice, at dinner.

"You are an American, sir," said the Englishman.

"I reckon I am," returned the captain.

"You have the name of being great warriors."

"Yes," said the Yankee, "we shoot pretty well."

"But how is it you were so anxious to make peace with Mexico? This does not look much like spunk."

"You are an Englishman?" interrogated the Yankee.

"Well," said the Yankee, "I don't know what our folks offered to do with Mexico; but stranger, I'll tell you one thing—I'll be d—d if we offered to make peace with you!"

This home thrust at the Englishman set the whole house in an uproar of laughter.

AN OLD STORE IN A NEW DRESS.

MY Blood Red Flag is on the breeze at the room familiarly known as the OLD CORNER STORE, opposite Homphill's Hotel, and at the sign of the RED FLAG, there is now opening out the best and most choice selection of SUMMER GOODS, suitable in every respect for this community, that has ever been offered for sale in this county in the mountains.

To attempt to enumerate or describe my lot of entire New Goods which I offer to the public, would be altogether too laborious an undertaking for me at the present time. I will merely say that in the line of Ladies' Dress Goods, I defy competition either in price, quality, or beauty of style. Boots and Shoes in the greatest variety: Hats and Caps that cannot be beat: beautiful Summer dresses and fancy Satinets, together with all kinds of DRY GOODS which are usually required in this market.

Some beautiful sets of Iron Stove Ware, and a nice selection of QUEEN'S WARE, of all kinds, also, fancy articles in no small quantity. The above mentioned stock of goods will be offered for sale at lower prices than the same quality and styles of goods have ever been offered in this place; as a proof of this, I only ask a comparison of prices and quality with any other goods in town. Clearfield, May 10, 1854. A. M. HILLS.

SADDLERY AND HARNESS MAKING. THE subscriber would respectfully announce to the citizens of Clearfield County, that he has commenced the business of SADDLERY AND HARNESS MAKING at his Shop, where he will punctually attend to the orders of all who may favor him with a share of their custom. He intends to keep on hand a full stock of all the materials necessary for the Boot and Shoe Business, and would also make known that he will continue to attend to his business in that line on the shortest notice, as he is determined to sell at less than any and all others. J. H. JONES. Clearfield, May 10, 1854—3m.

LOOK TO YOUR INTEREST. PURCHASE WHERE YOU PLEASE. I take great pleasure in announcing to our old friends, that I am prepared to sell all kinds of GROCERIES cheaper than any other house in this part of Philadelphia. Call and see prices. Don't mistake the place, at the corner opposite the Pennsylvania Rail Road Depot. Goods delivered at Tyrone two days after purchasing. Mind that I keep Milk, Pork, Bacon, and Tobacco, White Lead, Oil, Peppercorns, &c. All of which will be sold at a very low profit for Cash. J. R. EBY. Harrisburg, Feb. 8, 1851.

AFFECTED READ!

PHILADELPHIA MEDICAL HOUSE. Established 20 years ago by Dr. KINKELIN, corner of Third and Union sts., between Spruce and Pine, Philadelphia, Pa.

INVALIDS are apprised that Dr. KINKELIN confines his practice to a particular branch of medicine, which engages his undivided attention. He cautions the unfortunate against the abuse of Mercury; thousands are annually mangled and cut out of life.

Recent additions are promptly extinguished out of life. Twenty years of experience in the treatment of a class of diseases hitherto neglected and imperfectly understood, has enabled Dr. KINKELIN, (Author of a work of Self-Preservation,) to prove that nine-tenths of the causes of nervous debility, local and constitutional weakness, mental and physical suffering, are traceable to certain habits, forming the most secret, yet deadly and fatal springs of domestic misery and premature mortality.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.—There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys, in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood, and which if not reformed in due time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a series of protracted indiscretions and devastating affections. Few of those who give way to this pernicious practice are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, feel strange and unaccountable feelings and vacillate fears in the mind.

The unfortunate thus affected becomes feeble, is unable to labor with accustomed vigor, or to apply his mind to study; his step is tardy and weak, he is dull, irresolute, and engages in sport with less energy than usual.

If he emancipate himself before the practice has done its worst, and enter matrimony, his marriage is unfruitful, and his sense tells him that this is cannot by early follies. There are considerations which require the attention of those similarly situated.

MARRIAGE requires the fulfillment of several conditions, in order that it may really be the basis of mutual happiness. Could the veil which covers the face of domestic life be removed, and its true source in every instance disclosed, how many could it be traced to physical debility and their attendant disappointments. Apply then, while it is yet time, in order to have your mind and body re-organized, re-braced, revived and strengthened.

Remember he who places himself under Dr. Kinkelin's treatment may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and rely upon the assurance, that the secret of Dr. K.'s patients will never be disclosed.

Young men—let no false modesty deter you from making your case known to one who, from education and responsibility can certainly befriend you. Too many think they will conceal the secret in their own hearts, and so they are deceived. A few brief offices is the fatal delusion, and how many a promising young man, who might have been an ornament to society, has faded from the earth.

Structures of the arches are rapidly removed by the application of a new therapeutic agent, used only by Dr. K. Weakness and constitutional debility promptly cured, and full vigor restored.

Country invalids can have—by stating their case explicitly, together with all their symptoms, per letter, enclosing a remittance of $1.00, a medicine, appropriated accordingly. Forwarded to any part of the United States, and packed secure from damage or curiosty.

Read! Youth and Manhood. A Vigorous Life, or Premature Death, Kinkelin on Self-Preservation—Only Twenty-five cents. It is a work eminently required, as a means of reforming the vices of the age in which we live. Also, Nature's Guide, with rules for the prolongation of life, just from the press.

A letter with a remittance of twenty-five cents, or the value in post office orders, addressed to Kinkelin, Philadelphia, Pa., will secure a copy of either of the above books by return of Mail, or 12 copies will be sent free of postage for $1. Bookkeepers, Cash-keepers, Travelling Agents, &c., supplied wholesale at the publisher's price, which admits of a large profit.

All letters must be post-paid. JAMES H. LARIMER, Attorney and Counselor at Law, WILL attend to business in the several Courts of Clearfield and Centre counties. Office on Second street, one door north of the residence of John Weaver. References:—Hon. James Burnside, Hon. James T. Hale, Col. A. G. Curtin, James McManus, Esq., Bellefonte;—R. B. Petre
