For the "Republican." Lines on the death of "Wesie" B . . and Annie M . .

In hard to part with these we love, Though 'tis the Savior's will; But if we always heaven vard move, We can behold them still.

Tis sweet to look on them in death, And think of where they've gone ; Were they not numbered with the dead, still suffering would be borne,

Deep in the earth they now are laid, The mould is on them spread-To him that form'd-to him that made, Their spirits both have fled, and now dear parents, weep no more For those we know you love : Bright angels welcomed "Wesin" home. To that bright world above.
