

Divine Service.

The Rev. Lloyd Knight, of Hollidaysburg, will with Divine permission administer the Lord's Supper, on the second Sabbath in March, in the Lutheran Church in Clearfield. Services to commence on Friday evening, the 11th of March, at early candle-light. The public are kindly invited to attend.

THE WEATHER.—On last Monday night, a week, we had a light fall of snow which promised to improve our sleighing, but unfortunately on the next morning rain began to fall, which continued throughout the day and a portion of the next night, taking the balance of the sleighing, and leaving us in the mud again. Wednesday was pleasant, and Wednesday night frosty. Thursday cloudy, and in the afternoon and during the night, rainy. Friday cloudy, and Saturday it again commenced raining, and continued until Sunday morning, causing a very high frost and sweeping the ice from the streams, and considerable timber along with it. On Sunday afternoon another atmospheric change took place, and we were again taken in the embrace of stern winter, who kept howling around and above as if he were enraged because we had been let off so easy thus far this winter. Yesterday, however, was more moderate, and to-day is—but every body knows what to-day is like.

THE BOROUGH ELECTION.—The election in this borough on last Friday for borough officers resulted as follows: Municipal officers—Burgess, Jonathan Boynton Esq., Town Council—Robert Wrigley, Richard Moskop, C. W. Whitehill, Robert Mitchell and G. W. Rheem—High constable, Jacob Shunkwiler—Assessor, R. J. Wallace Esq., Overseers, Samuel Mitchell, Wm. W. Betts—Auditor, J. B. McEnally Esq.—School directors, Geo. Thorne, H. Snyder. Magisterial officers, Justice of the peace, M. A. Frank, re-elected—Constable, R. F. Ward, re-elected.

LAWRENCE TOWNSHIP ELECTION.—In Lawrence township the following persons were elected to the various offices:—Constable—Rufus Thompson re-elected.—School directors—J. R. Reed, Esq. G. W. Fulton; Supervisors—Jas. A. Reed Esq., Taylor Rowles; Overseer, Joseph Shaw, Wm. P. Reed; Assessor, Clark Brown.

FERGUSON TP., re-elected. Jos. Henry, Esq., and elected Albert Young Justice of the Peace in place of David Ferguson Esq. who resigned in consequence of ill health. These are all the returns we are able to give from Ferguson.

SCHOOL HOUSE BURNED.—The school house in Girard tp. known as the "Bald Hills school house" was burned on last Sunday night a week. The origin of the fire is not known, although there is a suspicion of incendiarism.

FOR SALE OR RENT.—Wm. Porter Esq., of this borough offers his farm near town for sale or rent. It is a good opportunity for any one wanting such a chance. See advertisement.

H. L. HENDERSON.—This gentleman, who our readers are aware had the misfortune to lose one of his legs in California, has returned home, and is now in this place. Notwithstanding Mr. H.'s heavy affliction, he is cheerful and resigned, and seems determined not to be cast down by it. Truly it is a noble spectacle to see a fellow being meet adversity with a brave heart and a blanch'd cheek. Mr. H. has many friends in this community, all of whom deeply sympathize with him.

RAFTING.—Notwithstanding the belief prevailing a day or two ago that there would be no rafting on the present freshet, the mildness of the weather has encouraged our lumbermen to commence operations, and we learn that a number have begun rafting in; and that a few are on the way and expected to pass here to-day. Although unusually early in the season for rafting, the weather is now very favorable.

ACCIDENT.—We learn that a team belonging to Samuel Arnold Esq., of Luthersburg, was thrown down the embankment on Anderson's creek hill on last Friday, while hauling shingles to the river, and one of the horses very much injured.

TO BE A HOR.—At the "Mansion House," kept by Col. D. M. Weaver on tomorrow evening, a large company is expected, and the participants will be likely to have a very pleasant time. This may be the last opportunity during the season to "trip the light fantastic toe" so you'd better go.

A GOOD STORY.—We call attention to the new story by Francis S. Smith, of which we publish the first chapter in another column. It will be found continued in the New York Weekly to which we recommend all wishing to peruse this thrilling novel.

At a dinner in Springfield, Mass., a lady sent the following volunteer toast: "Spruce old bachelors—the ever-greens of society." The lady who gave the above toast deserves to have her name engraved in enduring marble, and embalmed in the hearts of every bachelor in the land. A monument should be erected to her memory by a general contribution from old bachelors, to which they should make an annual pilgrimage to pay their devotions.

MARRIED.—At Bloomville on the 17th inst. by Wm. A. Bloom Esq. Mr. Philip Long to Miss Elizabeth Owens, all of Pike township in this county.

Died, on Tuesday, the 14th inst., Miss Sarah E. daughter of the late Hon. Thomas Burnside, aged 26 years.

The immortal Sallust once observed that death was not dissolution, but the translation of the soul from mortal to immortal existence, where, in the habitations of eternal glory, it assumed and maintained the sublime purity with which it was invested at the creation. With this thought, a reference to the ravages of death is robbed of its melancholy terrors, and the tenderest relation on earth can allude to a soul departed, not in tones of anguish, nor yet in syllables of regret; but with that confidence in which we refer to a friend to a haven of rest. And life is nothing more, nothing less, than a pilgrimage. Some proceeding steadily, with staff in hand, moved by ambition and the quest of fortune and fame. Others in noisless meekness pursue the even tenor of their way, stirred to tears by pity for the sorrow around them, and impelled to those noble actions so adorning to the human character, love and charity, by the instincts of a naturally pure and sympathetic heart. And yet, we weep for the loss of those we love. We gild our memories with our tears, and carve in soft emotions the epitaphs of our friends. They are tributes both mild and meek, granted to humanity by the mercy of Heaven as soothing evidences of a richer grace reserved in its more exalted dispensations.—They are the evidences of generous affection, unheard and unseen by the dead, but the most beautiful examples of truth and sincerity in the living. And thus, as we bathe the urn with tears, and crown the bier with the bay and the myrtle, we do justice to our humanity, honor to the dead, and please both Heaven and the world.

Miss Burnside in a community where she was so well known and so highly esteemed, scarcely needs an obituary to perpetuate her memory. She was a favorite with all who knew her, admired as much for her virtues as for those gentle qualities of her sex, which give halo to society, and mark the friendships of the world with simple and unadorned sincerity. She was a Christian, too, of that exalted character which can gaze calmly at death when life assumes its sweetest attractions. Her christian feelings were not governed by mere theories. She was not prompted to faith by philosophy, nor in the abstract teachings of a mere morality her's reward. For years, conscious that life was uncertain, feeling that the most insidious of all diseases, consumption, was besieging her existence, she resigned herself calmly to her fate, and allowed her soul to bathe in the realities of that hope which first beamed at Gethsemane and has since lighted the dark portals of every christian's tomb. Nor was it the certainty of death that moved her to religion for solace. When life promised to be prolonged, when sickness seemed to cheat its victim by allowing health to paint its bloom on her cheek, and the love of home to sparkle in her eye, then the Christian's character, was more fully displayed in the weak woman, passing from duty to duty with patient cheerfulness; sympathizing with those in sickness, weeping with the distressed, giving alms to the poor, and joy and hope, and generous affection to all around her. Thus she passed her life. Many of her years were marked by pain and suffering, but congenial love answering love, hovered around her decline, soothed her sufferings, and gently watched her passing through that Jordan in whose waters the robes of saints and martyrs have been washed clean and white.

The death of so young and good a woman must have a beneficent influence.—Those who know her best must feel that influence strongest. Those who loved her most longest cherish that influence. And even society, cold in its forms, and weak in its memories, must pause at the announcement that it has lost one of its brightest ornaments, whose accomplishments gave it tone, and whose actions yielded it dignity and character.

"Thus star by star declines,
Till all are passed away;
As morning high and higher shines,
To pure and perfect day;
Nor sink those stars in empty night,
But hide themselves in Heaven's own light."

In Decatur tp. near Philipsburg, Feb. 12th, 1859, Susan, wife of Moses Owens, aged 33 years and 8 months.

The deceased was a daughter of Jesse and Anna Spencer of Lumber City. She experienced religion in 1840, joined the Methodist E. Church, and made one of the number that formed the first class in the Grampian Hills. She loved the classroom, lived an exemplary life, and died a triumphant death. She leaves a husband and six children to mourn their loss.

My husband and my children dear,
O, meet me in the skies!
My body I have left below,
It now with Johnny lies.

My father and my mother dear,
Wipe all your tears away;
Your Susan now is dead, and gone
Her Saviour's face to see.

My brothers and my sister too,
Your hope in Christ hold fast;
That when your earthly race is run,
We all may meet at last. A. S.

In Beccaria tp., on Thursday the 17th inst., ISABEL H. WORMER, aged 64 years.

ON OUR TABLE.
FATHER AND DAUGHTER, by FREDERICK BREMER.—A Swedish Tale just published by the enterprising Publishing House of T. B. Peterson & Brothers.

It is scarcely necessary to speak in detail of the merits of this new work of Miss Bremer's. The well known character of her writings is a sufficient guarantee to the public, of its high moral tone, its ease and simplicity of style, and the useful lessons it inculcates. But to rest here would be to stop far short of pointing out all its claims upon public favor. Instead of being a romance of "love and murder and nobody killed," as is usually the case with the sensation novels of the present day, it is a simple story, founded upon fact, of woman's self-sacrificing devotion, not to the lover whose manly graces attracted her admiration and won her regard, but to her father to whom she owed life and all that made life a source of happiness to her. The reader cannot fail to be struck with the sublimity of the moral tone of the characters described in the book, and the profound philosophy of life contained in discourses of the "Father and Daughter," while the design and arrangement of the whole makes it of absorbing interest. And while its design is to show the superiority of filial ties and duties over all grosser motives and affections, it combined sufficient of the tender passion to constitute to those who have a taste for that kind of literature, without being objectionable to those who eschew it. But the description of ten days wanderings of a delicate woman amid the ice and the storms of the Norland seas, of her courage and high resolution, encouraging and cheering on her companions, while one by one they were sinking into the arms of death—aye, icy death, before her eyes, and of the miraculous deliverance, is unsurpassed in thrilling interest, by the wildest romance. In a word, if you want a book which will afford you renewed pleasure every fresh perusal, send and get the "Father and Daughter," at Peterson's, No. 306 Chestnut st., Philadelphia. It will be sent for $1.25 free of postage, to any part of the United States.

The Constellation.—Our "big" contemporary made its appearance last week in some what altered trim. Its dimensions, although not diminished, have been compressed and rendered more compact, and we think much more convenient. It is now printed on a double or quarto sheet containing 8 pages, each still of large size, the whole paper being as large as in the original form. Success to the "Constellation" may it long continue to illuminate the land.

Peteron, for March has received, and is a handsome number. This is one of the best and cheapest Magazines in the country. It has already a large circulation, which is constantly increasing. It deserves to prosper.

Great Republic Monthly.—The March number of this sterling American Magazine has made its appearance, and comes fully up to the standard established by the publishers in their first number.

Millett's Illustrated Magazine, for March is before us, and we have no hesitation in saying that as a Magazine of the fashions; it is worthy of a liberal patronage.

A FAMILY SUFFOCATED.—A terrible calamity occurred in Brooklyn, on Sunday morning, at the house of Mr. Edward Gill, on the corner of Fulton avenue and Elm place. Between 3 and 4 o'clock the house was discovered to be on fire, and so suddenly had it broken out that only a portion of the inmates were enabled to escape. Thomas Gill, a boarder by the name of Ota Graves, and Honora Keegan, a servant, all jumped from the windows, the latter from the fourth story, and were all more or less injured; but the mother Mrs. Gill, with her two little girls, and another servant, Ann Keegan were suffocated by the smoke and heat. The fire was extinguished, and the bodies of the sufferers were found heaped together near the window. They might have been saved, had there been ladders on the spot in time. Edward Gill, the husband and father of the family, was absent from home at the time this swift destruction fell upon his household.—N. Y. Tribune.

A REMARKABLE DWARF.—A dwarf named Richebourg, who was only two feet high, has just died in the Rue du Four St. Germain, ag 71 ninety. He was, when young, in the service of the Duchess d'Orleans, mother of Louis Philippe, with the title of "butler," but he performed none of the duties of the office. After the first revolution broke out he was employed to convey dispatches abroad, and for that purpose was dressed as a baby, the dispatches being concealed in his cap, and a nurse being made to carry him. For the last twenty-five years he lived in the Rue du Four, and during that time never went out. He had a great repugnance to strangers, and was alarmed when he heard the voice of one; but in his own family he was very lively and cheerful in his conversation. The Orleans family allowed him a pension of 3000 francs.—Galignani's Messenger.

MURDER IN MONROE COUNTY, PA.—Last week a murder was perpetrated at a shooting match near the public house of Mr. Stenler, at Stemlersville. A difficulty arose between a man named Eckert, and a Mr. Solomon Wilhelm, when Eckert struck Wilhelm over the head with a gun, inflicting a serious wound on the forehead, and completely severing his nose from his face. Eckert was committed to jail.—Wilhelm died of his wounds a day or two after the occurrence.
