BY L. P. WELLS.

The dawn that wakes the world to life Beings naught of joy to him, As rising from some dream of woo Mysterious and dim-He grumbles at the bracing air

In vain the early rays may fringe Each bough with sparkling gem, No morn was ev r bright enough His wo-ward thoughts to stem His glance is searching far and near For something to condemn.

Which feeds each active limb.

He finds no pleasure in the grove, No freshness in its bowers, No beauty in the mountain range, No granduer in its towers,

As stumbling o'er each rocky point He overlooks the flowers.

Rejoicing not at worldly gain, He grieves at wordly loss; Turning aside the bliss of life To find some hidden cross-Losing the pleasure of his gold In grumbling at the dross.

He only notes the ill; Yet wondrous taste of human minds And freaks of human will-When called to leave a world he hates, We find him grumbling still. TRINITY RIVER, October, 1858.

Thus through the checkered scenes of life,

Beautiful Lines.

A youth, in love with a maid, Each night 'neath the window stood, And there with his serenade, He awakened the whole neighborhood.

But vainly he tried to arouse Her sleep with his strains so bewitching; While he played in front of the house' She slept in the little back kitchen.

breeds of sheep argues strongly in favor of west of Litt's Foundry. the Merinos, as follows:-"It has been a sort of fashion for few years past, to neglect the Merinos and introduce the Leicestershire, or some of the long-wool breeds. Those who favor this course plead in its behalf, that there is a chance of selling the lambs at from three to six months old, which, they say, is an item of much profit in sheep-keeping. They hold that selling lambs at that age, is a great consideration in the business. It may be so, but would it not be more profitable still to keep those lambs until they arrive at ma-turity, when they would be worth from four to six dollars apiece? The increased price would well repay the cost of keeping them. A Leicestershire should yield six pounds of woolfeach for three years, till treached its greatest value, which at April 17,1852. thirty cents a pound, would amount to five dollars and forty cents. To this is to be added two or three dollars in the additional value of the sheep, making in all seven dollars and ninety cents, to say nothing of the lambs which it has borne in the mean time. If these were added to the value of the body and wool of the sheep, it would amount to more than ten dollars.—One very strong objection to se ling lambs is, that none but the best can be sold, and that causes a deterioration Leicestershire, they will yield eighteen pounds of wool apiece-which, at forty- J. Crans, Esq. five cents a pound, is six dollars and fift; cents. The increased value of the sheep meantime would be two dollars, which added to the price of the wool, would be eight dollars and fifty cents. To which two dollars and fifty cen s is to be added for the worth of the lambs, in all eleven dollars from a Merino whose keeping has been one third less than the Leicestershire. Thus we gain both ways, in the cost of keeping, and in the amount obtained. The wool, body and lambs, from tained. Profits of Single Grape Vines.

Stephen Haight, of Duchess county, N York, has an Isabella grape vine, of 12 years old, which is trained upon a trellis, and branches out about 25 feet each way from the root. The past autumn he picked from this single vine two hundred and twenty-six pounds, leaving at the same time fifty pounds of unripened grapes which were afterwards made into wine. (In all 276 lbs.) The ripe bunches were carefully looked over, and the green, bruised, and decaying berries cut out with a pair of scissors. They were then packed precisely according to the directions we gave in October last (Vol. 17, page 307.) Dec. 22, when grapes were a rarity in the city, Mr. Haight sold the product of his single vine here, for $561, (25 cts. per lb.)-Pretty well for one vine.

But Mr. Haight "owns beat" by a neighbor, who has an Isabella vine some 25 years old. It covers an arbor extending off from the house. Three years ago, when an account was kept, this single vine netted $70 worth of grapes sold. This vine we think is not outdone by any other one in the county. Perhaps it may be-if so let us hear of it.

But aside from these unusual cases, a grape vine that will annually yield five or ten dollar's worth of this healthful fruit for home consumption, is a thing that pays, and we believe every family in country, village and city may have at least one such vine in a year or two, if they will put out two or three vines this coming Spring. Some will say "all this is fine Notice to the contrary be given in the town patalk"—others will practice upon it and pers the week previous.
