strative power by scattering the material which fed it, but it was too late. Podjiah Malcepano ran after him and dragged him back, half choked by the penetrating, hot and smoke-laden air. Paul Hazzehurst, in defiance of the black, asphyxiating vapors, rushed to the chamber to close the door that had been left open, but sank blinded and overpowered upon the threshold. It was with difficulty that he could retrace his steps. He was gasping for breath like a drowning man, when he rejoined the anxious group below. "That door must be shot," said Podjiah, "or we shall be smoked to death, like rats in a hole! I'll shoot it, or suffocate myself. Wax my flax, if I don't!" The tall form of Podjiah disappeared in the mass of smoke that rolled from above like thunderclouds. There was a moment of intense anxiety, then the door was heard to close. Almost simultaneously Podjiah tumbled down stairs, covered with cinders, his face and hands blistered, and some of his white locks withered to ashes. "Bravely done!" cried Jessie. "If you have not saved us, you have at least given us a reprieve."

ing building, the flames shot up with increased brilliancy, throwing a strong glare upon the fugitives. A dozen men sprang from the grass and foliage to dispute their progress. "Stop!" shouted a voice that was startlingly familiar to Jessie Burnside. "Down!" thundered Hutter, springing toward him with a fierce bound, and aiming a blow at his head with his rifle. Vantasio staggered and fell upon one knee. The tall Yankee pressed to the side of Hutter and the Tory fell crushed at his feet. "Have at you, you 'arnal critters!" Podjiah Malcepano didn't come out here for nothin'. Come on—a dozen of ye at once! There's a score of earthquakes shut up in my bones!" "Shoot down the rebels—shoot 'em down!" cried Vantasio, over whose prostrate form four stout fellows were contending. Blinks discharged his blunderbuss, and the scattering form of buckshot wounded several. "Seize the gals! seize the gals!" shouted Langford. "I'm with you!" exclaimed Nat Herriek, and both approached the terror-stricken girls. "Oh, Paul, save us from those wretches!" shrieked Judith. "Here's for you, Mister!" exclaimed Herriek, leveling a pistol at Paul. A bullet whistled close to the young man's face, who, putting himself between the young ladies and the villains, held them at bay. His person was the target for a dozen furious blows, with surprising adroitness, he turned aside and baffled. The four men were now engaged in an unequal conflict. "Fly to the swamp, girls, while we keep the miscreants in check!" admonished Hazzehurst. The maidens ran like frightened deer; but their defenders had the mortification to see two Tories in pursuit of them, without being able to go to their assistance. Overpowered by numbers, they gave ground, but inch by inch. They were bruised and bleeding; they began to despair. "Take 'em alive, boys; take 'em alive, that we may have the pleasure of hangin' 'em!" shouted Vantasio. A single rifle shot rang sharp and deadly through the air. A Tory, who was pressing hard upon Hutter, threw up his arms and fell dead at the feet of his comrades. "Hounds of hell!" cried a thunderous voice. "You love blood, and slaughter and carnage; you shall have it!" An athletic man, with a black patch over his left eye, a rifle slung at his back and a pistol in each hand, and a large sabre swinging at his side, appeared in the midst of the Tories, as if he had suddenly fallen from the clouds. He fired his pistols and unsheathed his sabre. "Tremble, miscreants, for One-eyed Saul is among you!" The sabre flashed like lightning around the stranger's head. The tones of his voice, the fierceness of his countenance, and the fatality of his arm, struck terror and consternation to the hearts of the Tory renegades. The survivors turned and fled for life. "Cowards! wretches! come back, and I will meet you single-handed!" One-eyed Saul looked wildly around and laughed mockingly, then turning to Hutter and his panting and bleeding companions, and pointing in the direction the girls had fled, exclaimed: "Why do you stand here? After them—after them, for they need your help. There are shrieks, yonder: away—away! It is Saul, of Laurel Swamp, that commands you, I have work to do, work to do. I must go this way and that way, and there is no rest for my head this night." With these words, rapidly and vehemently uttered, One-eyed Saul strode away, and in an instant was lost to view. NEW WORK FOR AGENTS.
The Life, Speeches and Memorials of DANIEL WEBSTER, Containing his most Celebrated Orations, a Selection from the Eulogies Delivered on the Occasion of his Death and his Life and Times; BY SAMUEL M. ZUCKER, A. M.
This splendid work is just published, in one large volume of 550 pages. It is printed on fine paper, and bound in beautiful style; contains excellent tint illustrations of his Birthplace and Mansion at Marshfield; and a full-length life-like, Steel Portrait. The publisher offers it with confidence to the American public, and is convinced that it will supply an important want in American literature. No work was to be obtained heretofore, which presented, within a compact and convenient compass, the chief events of the life of Daniel Webster, his most remarkable intellectual efforts, and the most valuable and interesting eulogies which the great men of the nation uttered in honor of his memory. We present all these treasures in this volume, at a very moderate price, and in a very convenient form. Subscription price, in cloth, $1.75; handsomely embossed leather $2.00. Persons desirous of becoming Agents for this valuable work, will address, for full particulars, to DUANE BULLISON, Publisher, 38 South Third Street, Philadelphia, Pa. [no. 7, vol. iv.]
