

HOME AFFAIRS

We hope our friends in the several townships will call and get the tickets for their respective districts. We publish in our paper a column of the regular ticket, which will enable all, or nearly so, to get them. Any one receiving the paper can cut out the column, get his own ticket, and hand the balance to his neighbor.

We call attention to the advertisement of J. P. Nelson in another column. It is of importance to all whom it may concern.

As might be expected, several errors occurred last week in publishing the "Premiums awarded by the Agricultural Society."

The Citizen Soldiers.
One of the recent enterprises of the energetic citizens of our borough, has been the successful effort among our young men to establish a volunteer company, or military association, intended as we have understood to combine mental cultivation with military instruction—the improvement of the mind and morals, as well as the gait of the individual. With this in view, the association intend connecting with its armory, a club or lecture room, which will be kept open for the members at all times as a reading room, and be also adapted to giving public lectures and other intellectual entertainments. This plan meets with our hearty approbation, believing as we do that, if properly carried out, it will confer lasting benefit upon all connected with it.

One of the most striking features of the institutions of our country, is its volunteer military force. The foreign traveler, accustomed to the presence of the vast standing armies of Europe, which yearly drain the best blood of the land to keep up their ranks, is amazed beyond measure, when he reaches the chief cities and towns of this country, at the entire absence of that familiar sight, at home—bodies of armed soldiers which everywhere through the streets and thoroughfares of the Capitals on the other side of the Atlantic. Upon turning to the statistics of the Federal Government, his surprise is increased, by learning that, with an army of fifteen thousand men, all told, we are able to defend a sea-coast many thousands miles in extent, and keep in subjection various tribes of turbulent and restless Indians in the interior. And we dare say his astonishment would be more augmented still, if he were to accompany a hostile army designed to land upon our shores, for he would then see an army as well equipped out of the earth, armed, equipped and disciplined, ready and able to encounter the veteran soldiers, man for man, of the powerful and warlike nations of Europe, whose pastime is war and conquest. And yet a stranger, unacquainted with our institutions, might travel from Maine to Texas—in fact many foreign tourists have done so—without meeting with a single body of armed soldiers. Yet there is a military force in the Republic, which, although not daily exhibited in parade, is ever ready and amply able to resist invasion or avenge aggression. Like the faithful clan of the brave Highland Chieftain, Roderick Dhu, although no sound broke the silence which rested upon mountain and glen, and no living thing appeared in sight upon the hill sides, when the signal of the Chief was sounded, every bush and tree seemed send forth an armed warrior, until vale and hill were garrisoned with an army, eager to be led to battle. So let a foreigner appear in hostile array in sight of our shores, and the land would instantly be seen bristling with bayonets in the hands of our brave citizens, all ready and willing to defend the soil to the last.

The latent military prowess of the American people has been signally manifested, to the discomfiture of the veteran troops of Europe, on more than one imaginary battle field, during the different wars in which we have been engaged, and on every one in which they participated, it may be proudly asserted that the volunteers of Pennsylvania were second to none in the rank of brave soldiers. Let it, then, be our aim to maintain and cultivate this spirit, for we know not how soon it may be called upon to defend the rights or maintain the honor of the country. We know that to no other source can the government apply in a time of danger, and that no other power which they could invoke, could render effectual aid.

We may have something more to say in future upon this subject. For the present these remarks suffice; adding, however, the recommendation, that every community in our country, possessing the requisite population, and not having done already, will at once set about organizing a volunteer company.

During a trial for assault, at Passapatan last week, counsel asked the complainant how hard the accused shook him.—"Explanation," he was seized by the witness, and the breath almost shaken from his body, producing a very satisfactory impression.

RUSSELLS' IMPROVED

FLEXIBLE HARROW,
Patented Jan. 17, '60.
"We need an improvement in Harrows," is a remark not unfrequently heard among farmers. Among the few improvements which have heretofore been made in this important and useful, we might say indispensable implement of husbandry, it would seem that none of them has fully met the wants of the Agriculturist. Some are too heavy, some too complicated and costly, and all are liable to the objection that they are only adapted to certain kinds of ground, while it is easy to get up a harrow that will work well on smooth, clear and level ground, it is not so easy to find one that will answer a good purpose in new ground, among stumps or on a hilly and undulating surface, but when you get one of the latter class, you may rest assured that it will also give satisfaction on a smooth surface. The undersigned confidently believe that this object is fully attained in this Practical and Scientific agriculturist to the following important features which characterize it. First, its simplicity; secondly, its strength and durability, and lastly its adaptability to any and all kinds of surface. The following named practical Farmers, of Clearfield County, who have used it this season, testify to it.

We the undersigned Farmers of Penn'tp., Clearfield Co., and State of Pennsylvania, having used Russell's Improved Flexible Harrow, have no hesitation in saying that it has given entire satisfaction and that from its simplicity and cheapness it should speedily come into general use. GEO. FULLERTON, E. W. BROOKS, S. DERRICK, B. WRIGHT, JOHN A. MURPHY, WM. A. MOORE, JOS. G. RUSSELL.

The "Scientific American," a paper which the scientific world is well acquainted speaks thus in reference to it. "The harrow is one of the most important agricultural implements, as much depends upon the soil pulverizing or dressing of the soil, both before and after the seed is sown, for the success of the future crop." After describing it, it continues: "This combination harrow is so simple, that it is superfluous to extend for Harrowing either well cleared or rough ground. The undersigned, have purchased the right to make, sell, use, and transfer their right to do the same, within the county of Clearfield, and are now prepared to furnish the article to all who wish to purchase, on reasonable terms. They will also sell individual rights to make and use the same. MERRELL & BIGLER, Clearfield, Oct. 24, 1860.

PUBLIC SALE.—The undersigned will sell by public outcry at the late residence of Abraham Ream dec'd, in Lawrence township, on Thursday the 1st November, Two horses, horse gear, Cows and Young cattle, sheep and hogs, one large wagon, sleigh, chaise, plows, Harrow, hay by the ton, grain, clover, butter, Bureaus, and a general variety of household and kitchen furniture.
