THE FARMER'S BANK.
The times may be hard as the ground,
Frozen stiff in the December cold;
But the bank of the farmer is sound—
If broken, it discounts in gold.
His share is a plow share in banks
Whose dividends never dry.
On the grind-stone men at their cranks
But on rain and the sunny day.
His deposits are small, but they yield
A hundred per cent., or per seed,
So that gold grows up in the field
Like a thought that grows into a deed.
GEO. W. BUNGAY.

JUNE WORK TO BE DONE.
In this month the farmer will have occasion to bring into requisition the plows, cultivators, horses and hand-hoes to loosen the soil about plants and to keep down the weeds. Among the first things let failures in the corn field be replaced. Hay making will be the order of the day, in the latter part of this month—let everything be in readiness.
Mangel wurtzel and sugar beets should be sown during the first of this month for stock.
Late cabbage should be transplanted about the last of this month. Lime and ashes sprinkled over the plants will keep the insects away.
Seed patches in your grain fields should be selected, and gone over, removing cockle and all other foul stuff.
Manures for Autumn should be in preparation. Let your cattle yard be covered with muck or loam—the fresh droppings should be gathered and mixed with compost material, thus saving in part, that which would evaporate when exposed to the sun. A bushel of dirty or cheap salt, to a cord of manure will prevent fire fanging and the production of grubs, slugs, &c. A coating of charcoal dust or plaster of Paris will be advantageous in retaining the ammonia in your manure heap.
Sheep should be washed as soon as possible, and preparation for shearing made. The wool market is opening brisk, especially in the lower and middle grades, while the finer grades are held back for a more favorable market, which will certainly take place as soon as the country recovers its peaceful commercial prosperity.
Seek to improve your stock by saving the best calves, lambs, pigs, &c.—Good stock will cost you no more than poor.

ENGLISH LOVE OF COUNTRY LIFE.
LAVERGNE, a distinguished French writer, in commenting on the English taste for a country life, remarks:—
The national literature, as expressive of manners and customs, contains throughout marks of this distinctive trait in the English character. England is the country of descriptive poetry; almost all their poets have lived in the country and sung of it. Even when the English poetry took ours for a model, Pope celebrated Windsor Forest, and wrote pastorals, if his style was not rural, his subjects were. Before him, Spenser and Shakspeare wrote admirable rustic poetry; the song of the lark and nightingale still resounds, after the lapse of centuries, in Juliet's impassioned farewell address to Romeo. Milton—the sectarian Milton—employed his finest verse in the description of the first garden, and in the midst of revolutions and business, his fancy carried him toward the ideal fields of Paradise Lost.
But it was principally after the revolution of 1688, when England, now free, began to be herself, that all her writers became impressed with the love of country life. It was then that Gray and Thomson appeared; the first in his celebrated Elegies; and among others his "Country Churchyard," the other in his poem of the Seasons, striking in delightful sounds this favorite chord of the British lyre. The Seasons abound with amiable description; it is sufficient to instance the hay-making, harvest and sheep-shearing, the latter being already in Thomson's time a great business in England; and among the pleasures of the country, his account of trout-fishing. The angler, at the present day, may find in this little descriptive picture his favorite art fully detailed.—The feeling is everywhere lively and spontaneous—enthusiasm, real and deep, for the beauties of nature and the sweets of labor. To these Thomson joins that quiet, high religious feeling which almost always accompanies a solitary and laborious life, in the presence of the never ending wonders of the vegetable creation. It permeates the whole poem, especially in the concluding part, where he likens the awakening of the human soul after death to nature after winter.

RASPBERRY AND BLACKBERRY PLANTS.—The crop of fruit next year will depend much upon the number of the new shoots grown this season. Persons ignorant of their nature have hoed up all young canes, as so many trespassers. Of course they get no fruit the following year, as the shoots only bear the second season, and die in the Fall. Others, again, allow too many canes to make a weakly growth, with not enough vigor to produce a full crop of fruit. Avoid both extremes, leaving just sufficient good strong shoots to keep the patch in a vigorous condition. The oldest planted raspberry roots in the writer's grounds, were set 15 years ago, and they are now the best, yielding large strong canes which bear abundantly.

THE SIN THAT KILLED THE BABY.—A correspondent writes to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST to the following effect: "I recently attended the funeral of a child of three or four summers. The minister during his remarks dwelt upon the fact that death is the result of sin, which I agreed with; but I thought, while looking upon the lifeless little form, that the killed one, was sin against nature as well as spiritual laws. She was clad for the grave in the garments she had worn while living, and the bare neck and arms exposed while the child was in health, to gratify the vanity of the parents, had invited the disease which proved fatal. That was the sin which killed the baby, and which is making fearful work with hundreds of others, whose parents prefer fashion to health, and the exhibition of their children's beauty, to the safety of their lives."
This language is none too strong. It is positively wicked to subject tender children to such treatment, which would be fatal to adults of vigorous constitution. In our changeable climate, especially, to great precaution can scarcely be taken to guard the throat and lungs from disease. They need not be kept muffled with warm clothing, but should always have sufficient protection to guard against the sudden changes, for which this country is noted. Keep the children's chests and arms covered, if you would have them healthy.—[Ed. Agr.]

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS.
Are you sick, feeble, and complaining? Are you troubled with constipation? Are your bowels irregular, and your feelings uncomfortable? These symptoms are the result of a disordered system, and should be removed by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They are a safe and reliable remedy for all cases of biliousness, indigestion, and all the ailments which result from a disordered system. They are a safe and reliable remedy for all cases of biliousness, indigestion, and all the ailments which result from a disordered system. They are a safe and reliable remedy for all cases of biliousness, indigestion, and all the ailments which result from a disordered system.
A cold settles somewhere in the body, and obstructs the natural functions. If not removed, it spreads throughout the system, and produces general derangement, suffering, and disease. While in this condition, oppressed by the derangement, the body is unable to perform its natural functions, and the natural action of the system, and with it the health, and the feeling of health again. What is true and so apparent in this trivial and common complaint, also true in many of the most serious and dangerous diseases. The same purgative effect exists. Caused by similar causes and derangements of the natural functions of the body, they are rapidly, and with the same certainty, cured by the same medicine. Some who know the virtues of these Pills, will neglect to employ them when suffering from the disorders they cure.
Send for a free trial of these Pills, to some of the principal cities, and from other well known public places.
From a Forfeiting Merchant, J. S. Lewis, No. 4, 1862
Dr. Ayer: Your Pills are the purgative of all that is great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of a severe case of cholera morbus, and have been of great service to me. My mother has been long and severely afflicted with biliousness and piles, and she has been cured by your Pills. After one child was cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have cured her.

From Dr. Edward Dyer, Baltimore.
Dear Sir: I cannot express you what a relief I have derived from your Pills. I have used them for several years, and they have been of great service to me. My mother has been long and severely afflicted with biliousness and piles, and she has been cured by your Pills. After one child was cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have cured her.
