The Cabinet again met on Monday evening, when, as stated by the aforesaid correspondent, modify his report, and up to 11 o'clock on Tuesday night it was thought that either Cameron or Seward would have to leave the Cabinet. It was finally settled by the President insisting upon Gen. Cameron to confine his report to a simple statement of the facts, and not to attempt to dictate to Congress-to wait until Congress would sons to his constituents for this very radact. Cameron, while insisting on the correctness lical change of opinion. of his policy, finally consented to the alteration, was expargated.

It thus appears that the dispute was not final ly settled-but, in effect, referred to Congress. Should Congress refuse to back up Cameron by passing an emancipation act, of course Mr. Cameron will have the dignity to retire to the shades resolution to appoint a committee of three and lawns of Lochiel.
