

Select Poetry.

THE DYING SOLDIER.

Wary and worn to a skeleton form He lay on a couch of pain,
And his eyes, as he gazed at the dawn, Were to visit his home again.
He talked of his mother far away,
And he talked of his lonely wife,
When the fever frenzied his burning head And loosed his hold of life.

We told him his feet might never again Walk over his native soil, But ere long they should tread the golden streets At home in the city of God.

And we said though his eyes would never behold
The forms of his earth's deceptions, He should wait for them there by the life river fair,
In the garden of beauty above.

But he wept and talked of his burial home In a stranger's unmarked bed, That no one by affection's hand would be trained To weep over his grave when dead.

We told him that God would mark the spot Where all his children lay,
And not one of his loved ones be forgot On the resurrection day.

But he sighed and whispered "so long, so long,
So many long weary years,
And my lonely wife and little one Alone in a vale of tears."

We told him the word of God had gone forth In truth and holiness,
As the Friend of the widow's lonely life,
The Guide of the fatherless.

When death had stilled that loving heart, Kind hands with gentle care Had saved for her, that lonely wife, One tree of long, bright hair.

Then they wrap the worn out soldier's clothes Round the martyred hero's breast,
And in his rude unvarnished bed Laid him sadly away to rest.

Not a hymn was sung, not a prayer was raised,
Not a word of counsel said,
But the blessing's rude unvarnished hands Piled the damp mould o'er his head.

No Half-Way House.—The Pacific Echo published at Napa, California, says: "The political half-way house has gone in, died out, met with its grave, and now lies buried with the past. One must now be either a Democrat or Abolitionist; either for white man or negro all over; either for intellect, mind, education, civilization; or for wool, a black skin, and ignorance. There is no use denying the fact for it is as plain as the noon-day sun. The Abolitionists, under the names of Republican and Union, have got possession of your national and State administrations; and what are they doing? Creating laws constantly for the advancement of the negro, and the hanging of millstones about the necks of white men."

Senator Richardson, of Illinois in a late speech at Chicago, thus alludes to his contemporaries in Congress:

"I thank Heaven that no such body of men as the last Congress can meet again until the trumpet of the Archangel shall summon all the bold, bad men—all the friends of despotism, adversaries of liberty and enemies of liberty—that have polluted the face of the earth with their presence, to answer before an all-wise and just God for their black crimes, and receive the punishment due their guilt."

THE CRIME OF SILENCE.—The President, in his letter to the Albany committee, says:

"The man who stands by and says nothing when the peril of this government is discussed, cannot be misinterpreted."

The New York World asks, "was anything so extraordinary ever before uttered by the Chief Magistrate of a free country? Men are torn from their homes and immured in bastilles for the shocking crime of silence! Citizens of the model Republic of the world are not only punished for speaking their opinions, but are plunged into dungeons for holding their tongues! when before, in the annals of tyranny, was silence ever punished as a crime? Citizens who disapprove of the acts of the Administration are denied even the refuge of a dignified silence, and, on a malicious and partisan conjectures of the motives of such silence, they are deprived of their liberty. Few among us ever expected to live to see such things done; and nobody, we are sure, to see them so unblushingly confessed."

The party in power have a policy to put down rebellion and restore the Union. Many good men are satisfied that the whole programme is wrong, not adapted to the purpose; that it will ruin the cause instead of promoting it. If they say so, and declare they will not aid such a programme of ruin, then they are set down by these infidels as traitors.
We must look on and see the destruction of the Union going on by those suicidal measures and practices and say nothing. Aye, we must aid them, or be branded as enemies of the country. How enormously great has grown the folly and wickedness of the hour!

Valley Spirit.

Mr. Lincoln, it is said, when he heard the news of the Confederate raid into Penna., was in his room smoking his cigar. Seward entered and told him the facts, and then turned and asked him if he had another cigar.
Mr. Lincoln's face, which before looked uncommonly grave was lit up with a ghostly smile, as he said: "I am sorry I haven't another, Bill, but you can come behind me and help pull, if you like, for this is a larnation hard to draw." This joke is official, and can be relied upon.
