The warrior wares his standard high, His falchion flasher in the fray, He medly shouts his battle ery, And giories in the deathful day.

But famine's at the city gate,
And rapine prowls without the walls,
The country round lies desciats
While havee's blighting footstep falls. By rained hearths, by homes defiled,

By scenes that nature's visage mar, We feel the storm of passion wild, And pluck the bitter fruits of war. PEACE. The cob-web hangs on sword and belt,
The charger draws the gliding plow.
The cannons in the fornace melt,

And turn to gentle purpose now The threshers fling their pondrous flails. The erafteman toll with cheorful might, The ocean swarms with merchant sails And busy mills look gay at night.

The happy land becomes renowned, As knowledge, wealth and art increase, And thus with plenty smiling round, We cull the bessed fruits of peace.
