

Though many and bright are the stars that appear
In that flag by our country unfurled;
And the stripes that are swelling in majesty there
Like a rainbow adorning the world:
Their lights are unshaded as those in the sky
By a deed that our fathers have done;
And they're leaped in as true and holy a tie
In their motto of "many in one."

From the hour when these patriots fearlessly bung
That banner of starlight abroad,
Ever true to themselves, in that motto they clang
As they clung to the promise of God;
By the bayonet traced at the midnight of war,
On the field where our glory was won—
Oh, perish the heart, or the hand, that would mar
Our motto of "many in one."

B. FRANCIS CLARK.

No. 90 Cedar street, New York, N. Y.

Jan. 21, 1863. 12.

New Watch and Jewelry Store.

S. H. LAUCHEIN, having purchased the interest of his late partner, is now going it on his own hook in the shop formerly occupied by him on Second street, where he is prepared to display his reputation as a complete workman by doing all work entrusted to him on short notice, in the best manner, and on the most reasonable terms. Defy the country, all he asks is a fair trial, and a continuation of the patronage heretofore extended. Look out for the sign of

W. H. B. L.—B. F. A. T. II.

N. B.—The Cash will be positively expected when the work is delivered.

S. H. L.

And they stopped not to number their flocks.

From where our green mountain-tops blend with the sky,

And the giant St. Lawrence is roll'd,

To the waves where the balmy Herpestes lie.

Like the dream of some prophet of old,

They conquer'd!—and dying, beneath'd to our earth.

Not this boundless dominion alone,

But that banner, whose lowness hallow's the air,

And the motto of "many in one."

We are many in one, while there glitters a star

In the heaven of heavens above;

And tyrants shall quail; sold their dungeons afar,

When they gaze on that motto of love,

It shall gleam over the sea, 'mid the blazes of the storm—

Over tempest, and battle, and wreck;

And flame—where our guns with their thunder grow warm;

'Neath the blood on the slippery deck.

The suppressed of the earth to that standard shall fly,

Wherever its folds shall spread;

And the exile shall feel 'tis his own native sky

Where its stars shall float over his head;

And those stars shall increase till the fullness of time.

Its millions of cycles has run;

Till the world shall have welcomed its mission sublime;

And the nations of earth shall be one.

Though the old Allegheny may tower to heaven,

And the Father of Waters divide,

The links of our destiny cannot be riven.

While the truth of these words shall abide,

Then, let them glow on each helmet and brand

Through our blood, like our rivers, shall run—

Divide as we may in our own native land,

To the rest of the world we are one.

Then up with our flag—let it stream on the air,

Though our fathers are cold in their graves;

They had hands that could strike—they had heads

that could dare—

And their sons were not born to be slaves?

Up—with that banner! where'er it may call—

Our millions shall rally around—

A nation of freedom that moment shall fall,

When its stars shall be trampled on the ground.

Of 67 drafted men examined from Biddeford, Me., 61 were exempted. Shoddy patriotism, and Lincoln loyalty!

Unaffected modesty is the very sweetest charm of female excellence—the richest gem in the diadem of their honor.

THE CHAIN-GANGS OF GLORY.—The newspapers are full of items like the following:

A file of conscripts and deserters were marched down the avenue today, chained together and handcuffed.

Deserters must of course be punished for deserting; and conscripts, who are indecent enough not to rejoice, as the administration organs constantly assure us that conscripts do rejoice, at being conscripted, may perhaps be handed into a happier frame of mind. But it must be admitted that there is something grotesque in the spectacle of soldiers of the Union marching in chains to liberate the slaves of rebels.—N. Y. World.

A MEMORANDUM.—When you see a Republican paper which states that the Republicans have always been for the Union and against secession, please read the following quotations. Some of the persons and papers here referred to were once "Abolitionists," but they are active and leading members of the Republican party of this hour:

"There is merit in the Republican party. It is the first sectional party ever organized in this country."—Wendell Phillips

"The farce of restoring the Union as it was, is played out."—Washington Republicans.

"We favored, in the infancy of secession, the policy of letting the Cotton States go, if it should appear that their people really desired to cut loose from the Union." * * * * We believed then, as we realize now, that events would justify our recommendation.—N. Y. Tribune.

"Who in the name of God, wants the Cotton States, or any States this side of perdition, to remain in the Union if slavery is to continue?"—John A. Bingham.

"Better recognize the Southern Confederacy at once, and stop the effusion of blood, than to continue in this ruinous policy, or have even a restoration of the Union as it was."—Cassius M. Clay.

Mr. Stevens, of Pennsylvania, said:

"This Union never shall, with my consent, be restored under the Constitution as it is, with slavery to be protected by it."

The Boston Commonwealth said:

"May the tongue be withered, ere it is answered, that prays for a restoration of that old stage of things from which God in his mercy seems willing to rescue us—which His fiercest wrath could find no more terrible doom for a blind nation led by blind rulers."
