

The New Pension Law.

The following extracts are taken from a circular issued on the 21st instant by the commissioner of pension:

The supplementary pension act approved June 6th 1866, provides increased rates of pensions over those granted by the act of July 14, 1862, in the following cases, viz:

1. $25 per month to all those invalids entitled, under the act of July 14, 1862, to a lower rate of pension, on account of service rendered since March 4, 1861, who shall have lost the sight of both eyes, or who shall have lost both hands, or been permanently and totally helpless, or so nearly so as to require the constant personal aid and attendance of another person.

2. $20 per month to those invalids who being entitled under like conditions to a lower rate of pension, shall have lost both feet, or one hand and one foot, or been totally and permanently disabled in the same, or otherwise so disabled as to be incapacitated for performing any manual labor, but not so much so as to require constant personal aid and attendance.

3. $15 per month to those invalids who, under like conditions, shall have lost one hand or one foot, or been totally and permanently disabled in the same, or otherwise so disabled as to render their inability to perform manual labor equivalent to the loss of a hand or foot.

The above specified increased rates of pension will be allowed only to those disabled since the 4th day of March, 1861, and will date only from the 6th day of June, 1866.

The second and third sections of the act of June 6, 1866, are applicable to all pensions granted under the various acts of Congress. By the provisions of the second section, pensions are secured to the exclusive use and benefit of the pensioners. Any "pledge, mortgage, sale, assignment, or transfer of any right, claim, or interest in any pension," is declared void and of no effect.

The third section provides that no pension money shall be "liable to attachment, levy or seizure by or under any legal or equitable process whatever the same remains with the pension office or any officer or agent thereof, or in course of transmission to the pensioner entitled thereto, but shall ensure wholly to the benefit of such pensioner."

The fifth section repeals unconditionally that provision of the act of March 3, 1865, by which pensions were withheld from certain pensioners in civil employment under the government—Persons desiring the benefit of this repeal will make application for a "renewal" of their pensions, as in other cases, filling an examining surgeon's certificate showing their present disability, except in the case of those exempt from biennial examination. The restored pension will date only from the passage of this act.

The sixth section gives validity to a certificate issued after the death of an applicant for an invalid pension, if he left no widow nor minor child entitled to pension by a reason of his death, provided the application was pending, and the proof complete at the time of his death.

The seventh section recognizes the rank conferred by a commission, so far as pensions are concerned, without an actual muster into such rank, provided the failure to be mustered was not through the neglect or refusal of the person commissioned.

By the twelfth section the provisions of the act of July 14, 1862, are extended so as to include the dependent brother or brothers of a deceased officer, soldier or seaman, and the dependent father of such deceased persons, under like limitation as apply in the case of dependent sisters and mothers; but not more than one pension is granted on account of the same person, or to more than one of said classes.

The fourteenth section provides that habitual recognition of the marriage relation between colored parties—that is, in the absence of the usually required proof—when shown by "proof satisfactory to the Commissioner of Pensions," shall be accepted as evidence of marriage, and the children of such parties shall be regarded as if born in lawful wedlock.

A few days since, a gentleman called upon some lady friends, and was shown into the parlor by a servant girl. She asked him what name she should announce, and he, wishing to take them by surprise, replied:

"Amicus," (a friend).

The girl seemed at first a little puzzled, but quickly regaining her composure, and in the blandest manner possible, observed—

"What kind of a cuss did you say, sir?"

The visitor was embarrassed for a moment, but recovering, handed her his card, and vowed never again to use Latin to a servant girl.

A NEW TRICK OF BURGLARS.—Some of the professional burglars have adopted a new method of obtaining information in regard to desirable places for "operations." During business hours, when householders are absent, men call at their residences, and representing themselves to be internal revenue officers, make minute inquiries of the servants about their masters' occupations, habits, silver-plate, furniture, &c., which information is taken advantage of by burglars. Citizens should be on the lookout for such tricks as these.

A Short Sermon from the Hard-Shell Preacher.

"There's nine men a standin' at the dore, and they all sed they'd take sugar in ther'n."

Sich, friends and brethering, was the talk, in a worldly sense, worst common in this our ainsunt land; but the dore is gone by, and the suns run dry, and no man can say to his naber, hoo art thou, man, and will you take enny more shugar in your kaughey?

But the words of our tex has a diffrunt and a more perticklereer meenin than this. Thar they stood at the dore on a cold winter's mornin, two Baptists, and two Methdists, and five Lutharians, and the tother one was a publikin. And they all with one vois sed they wouldn't dirty their feet in a dramshop, but if the publikin would go and git the drinks they'd pay for 'em. And they all cried out and every man sed, "I'll take mine with shugar, for it won't feel good to drink the stuff without sweetin."

So the publikin he marched in and the bar-keeper sed, "What want ye?" and he answered and sed, "A drink."

"How will ye have it?" "Plane and straight," says he, "for it aint no use wastin shugar to circumvallate akafortis." But there's nine more a standin at the dore, and they all sed they'd take shugar in ther'n.

Friends and brethering, it aint only the likker of spirits that is drunk in this roundabout and underhand way, but it is likker of all sorts of human wikkedness in like manner. Thars the likker of malis, that menny of you drinks to the dregs, but yure shure to sweeten it with shugar of self-justification. Thars the likker of avaris that sum keeps behind the curtain for constant use, but they always has it well mixt with the sweetin uv prudens and ekonomy.

Thars the likker of self-lav that sum men drinks by the gallon, but they always puts it in lots of the shugar of take keer No. 1. And, lastly, thars the likker of extorshun, which the man sweetens according to surkumstances. If he's in the flour line, he'll say the poor'll be better off eatin korn bread; if he's in the cloth line, why it's a good thing to larn 'em to make their cloth at home; if he's in the letter line, it'll larn 'em the necessity of taking better keer uv shoos. "And thars nine more standin at the dore, and they all sed, they'd take shugar in ther'n."

A Rather Tough Story. Among the "characters" who have passed away during the past few years, is one who was known far and near as "Old Hat," though how he earned that respectful appellation is to the writer unknown. But he bore it well, and always answered to it. He came to Western New York at an early day, secured a competence, and then, resting on his well earned honor, passed his years at the grocery, the shoemaker's and the tavern, telling the most prodigious yarns that mortal ever heard. Here is one he used to tell, with honesty and sincerity beaming from every feature:

"Yes," Old Hat would say, "that was a curious circumstance; but it's true, every word of it—true as I stand here. You see, one of my horses was taken sick when I was plowing, and it died in less than ten minutes. It was powerful sudden. I never see the beat on't, and I felt bad, I tell you; but the animal was dead, and I was in a mighty hurry; so I jest cut the hide open, hitched 'tother boss to it, and—off it come! Well, I did it up and sent it to the tannery, but pretty soon I see the old boss wasn't quite dead. It began to kick and breathe regular, and fast I knew it was up on its feet lookin' round, and not a bit of hide on except round the head. Well, you see it couldn't live so long, so I thought I'd try an experiment. I took four—no, three—no, it was four sheep, (I want to keep to truth,) and skinned them, put their hides right on to the old boss, tied them on tight, and they growed right tight to the critter, all except a little spot on the off fore-shoulder, and that I cared up in a little while. It's a fact; and some years I sheared more'n forty pounds of fine wool off from that ar hoss—just as true as I stand here!"

"Bob, that is a fine horse you have there; how much is he worth?" "Three hundred and fifty dollars."

"No, not so much as that!"

"Yes, every cent of it and another fifty on top of it."

"Are you shure?"

"Yes, I'll swear to it."

"All right."

"What are you so d—d inquisitive for?"

"Merely for assessing purposes. I am the assessor of this ward, and only wanted to know what you rated your nag at."

The estate of the late Colonel Colt, of Hartford, amounting in value to about $4,000,000, is now in process of distribution.

Two hundred thousand pounds of wool have been sold during the past week in Harrison county, Ohio.

The first lot of new wheat, grown by Wm. Marion, of Calhoun county, Illinois, sold at $3.50 per bushel.

A little boy in Nashville cried himself to death recently, over the death of his Newfoundland pet.

A young lady in a seminary in Maine, being detected in pilfering, committed suicide.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY.

The times are hard; you'd like to know how you may save your Dollars; The way to do it I will show, If you will read what follows. A man who lived not far from here, Who worked hard at his trade; But had a household to support, That squandered all he made. I met him once, says he, "my friend, I look threadbare and rough; I've tried to get myself a suit, But can't save up enough." Says I, my friend, how much have you? 'Till told you where to go. To get a suit that's sound and cheap— At HEISENSTEIN'S and Co. He took what little he had saved, And went to Heizenstein & Brothers; And there he got a handsome suit, For half he paid to others. Now he is home, he looks so well; And that's the effect of such a suit, They don't eat half so much. And now he finds on Saturday night With all their wares supplied; That he has money left to spend, And some to lay aside. His good success, with cheerful smile, He gladly tells to all; If you'd save Money, go and buy, Your clothings at Heizenstein Clothing Hall. Where the cheapest, best, and best Clothing and good furnishing goods can be had to suit every taste and in every style. April 11, 1866. H.
