The Amendment.
Ratification of the Constitutional Amendment—a "Condition" of Restoration.
[From the New York World.]
Who control the Republican party, the Radicals or the Conservatives, like Mr. Raymond, who have slunk back to it? Some of the Conservatives say the constitutional amendment is a "condition" of Restoration. Here is what the real rulers, the thorough Radicals, say:

Kit Carson.
Kit Carson, the oracle of the Western plains and mountains, has lately been visited by a correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, to whom he communicated the following interesting reminiscences:

Miscellaneous Items.
The Nation says housekeeping is human; boarding is simply animal. What did Lot do when his wife turned to salt? Got a fresh one. Tea kettles are decidedly Yankee in their melody; they sing through their noses. If a bigamist were sentenced to live with his two wives in the same house, the crime would soon become extinct.

Removal.
An Irishman, having been told that the price of bread had fallen, exclaimed: "This is the first time I ever rejoiced at the fall of my best friend."

One of the oldest papers in the world, the Postzeitung, of Frankfort, established in 1616, has just disappeared—suppressed by Bismarck.

Speaking of shaving, said a pretty girl to an obdurate old bachelor, "I should think that a pair of handsome eyes would be the best mirror to shave by." "Yes, many a poor fellow has been shaved by them."

Squabbles, an old bachelor, showing his stockings, which he has just darned, to a maiden lady, who contemptuously remarks, "Pretty good for a man darning." Whereupon Squabbles rejoins, "Good enough for a woman, darn her."

A would-be agreeable, taking his seat between Madam de Staal and the reigning beauty of the day, said, "How happy I am to be thus seated between a wit and a beauty!" "Yes," replied Madame de Staal, "and without possessing either."

A squaw in Central Michigan had a pappoose on her arm, exceedingly white for a member of its race, when fact induced a gentleman to ask if it was not a half-breed? Whereupon she said: "No, not a drop of white blood about it—half Injin and half missionary."

"I wish I could prevail on neighbor Binder to keep the Sabbath," said good Mr. Johnson. "I'll tell you how to do it," exclaimed incisive young Smith; "get somebody to lend it to him, and I'll be bound that he'll keep it. He was never yet known to return anything that he borrowed."

O'Connell, in addressing a jury, having exhausted every ordinary epithet of abuse, stopped for a word, and then added, "this un-fragorous ruffian." When afterward asked by his friends the meaning of the word, he confessed he did not know, but said, "he thought it sounded well."

At an assemblage of a few friends, one evening, the absence of a lady was noticed, which was apologized for by an acquaintance, who stated that she was detained by an interesting little incident. "Ah, yes," exclaimed Mrs. John Smith, "and a beautiful little incident it was too—weighing just nine pounds and a half!"

A physician passing a stone mason's shop called out: "Good morning, Mr. D.—hard at work I see. You finish your grave-stones as far as 'In the memory of,' and then wait I suppose, to see who want a monument next?" "Why, yes," replied the old man, "unless somebody's sick and you are doctoring him, then I keep on."

A young exquisite, innocent of any hair upon his face, went into Phalon's last week, and seating himself in one of the chairs, told the operator to shave him. The barber lathered his face and then sat down on another chair and began to read the Tribune. "Hallo, fellow," says the dandy, "what are you waiting for?" "I have done all I can, sir," replied the other. "I am now waiting for your beard to grow."

It has transpired that the Paymaster who embezzled several thousand dollars of the Government money by cutting from the Seven-thirty bonds in his possession the material coupons and appropriating the proceeds to his own use is Lieutenant Colonel Thomas P. Winston, Chief Paymaster of the Pay District of the Gulf of New Orleans.

The Meteoric Display.—The meteoric shower promised by the astronomers about the middle of November is, it appears, preceded by preliminary exhibitions. It is stated in the Philadelphia Ledger that for several nights past, notwithstanding the moonlight, brilliant meteors have been noticed in the heavens, and the grand display anticipated next month will probably not fail us.

Kit Carson.
Kit Carson, the oracle of the Western plains and mountains, has lately been visited by a correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, to whom he communicated the following interesting reminiscences:

All the Indian hunters and trappers ride with short stirrups. I am almost bow-legged from it. It is more important to the Indian than the white man, as it is only by aid of the stirrup he can shift his position, hanging down on one side so as to conceal all his body but his leg. His leg is all you have to fire at, as he throws himself on the side buttocks, or around the neck of the horse. On this account, also, they hang the stirrups well forward.

Some one referred to Carson's intimate knowledge of Indian strategy: "Why, yes, I am up to a good many of their tricks, but they fooled me once—they fooled me pretty bad that time. I'll tell you about it. It was in—let me see—yes, 1835. There were six of us hunters out after buffalo, up in the Snake country. We had made a pretty good hunt, and came into camp at night, intending to start in next morning with our hunt. Well, we camped. Had a good many dogs with us, some of them good dogs. They barked a good deal, and we heard wolves. As I lay by the fire, I saw one or two big wolves sneaking about camp—one of them quite in it. Gordon wanted to fire, but I would not let him, for fear of hitting some of the dogs.

"I had just a little suspicion that the wolves might be Indians, but when I saw them turn short round, and heard the snap of their teeth when the dogs came too close to one of them, I felt easy then, and made sure it was a wolf. The Indian fooled me that time. Contended the rascal!—becoming animated—"confound the rascal, do you think he didn't have two good buffalo bones in his hand that he cracked together every time he turned to snap at the dogs? Well, by and by we dozed off asleep, and it wasn't long before I was awake by a crash and a blaze. I jumped straight for the mules and held 'em. If the Indians had been smart they'd had us all, but they ran as soon as they fired. They killed but one of us—poor Davis. He had five bullets in his body and eight in his buffalo robe. The Indians were a band of Sioux, on the war path after the Snakes, and came on us by accident. They tried to waylay us next morning, but we killed three of 'em, including their chief.

"When I first went over into California in 1829, the valleys were full of Indian tribes. Indians were thick everywhere, and I saw a great deal of some large and flourishing tribes. When I was there again in 1843, they had all disappeared, and when I inquired about certain tribes I had seen on the spot, was told by the people living there that they had never heard of them."

"POLAR BEAR" CLOAKS.—The new cloakings for the coming winter seasons are all of the Polar bear order, tufted half an inch thick, and very soft and warm. They are not adapted to either round cloaks or tight-fitting garments, and can only be made into coats or loose paletots, and only trimmed with the most extravagant of buttons.

The latest fashion in buttons is to represent upon them horses' heads, dogs' heads, and also sometimes the whole animal. The bear, having received its share of patronage among the rest, has given the name to the shaggy coats and sacks of thick, white and light tufted cloth, which are henceforth to be known as "Polar bear" cloaks.

These cloths are very expensive, $15 and $18 per yard, but they are wide, and so, fortunately, it does not take many yards to make a cloak. The "Alpine" cloaking is beautiful; it is of thick, white wool, or striped in colors, blue or cerise, and is used only for opera cloaks, or in all white, or carriage paletots.

A HORRIBLE DEATH.—Mr. Robert Walker and his wife, riding in a wagon with two seats, were crossing a railroad track in Detroit, Michigan, Friday, when the gentleman, who sat on the front seat driving, while the lady sat behind him, suddenly discovered that a train of cars was rapidly approaching. He whipped his horse, and they sprang quickly forward. This unexpected moment threw Mrs. Walker out of the wagon. She fell upon the planks between the rails, which serve to enable teams to pass, and in an instant after the train was grinding her body almost to jelly. The remains of the unfortunate victim were found beside the track, the entire train having passed over them. They were a shapeless mass.

THE TROUBLES OF A CONGRESSMAN.—Hon. C. V. Culver, now confined in jail at Franklin, Pa., does not desire to avail himself of his congressional privilege, and will meet his trial in November. Besides civil processes innumerable, several indictments charging him with false pretenses and embezzlement are pending, and are to be called up next month, at Harrisburg. Last week the house and furniture of the gentleman were sold, at the instance of his creditors.
