It is the book of wisdom that makes the foolish wise. It is the book of truth, which detects all human errors. It is the book of life, which shows how to avoid everlasting death. It contains the most authentic entertaining history ever published. It is a perfect book of divinity. It is a book of biography. It is a book of travels. It is a book of voyages. It is the best ever written. It is the young man's best companion. It is the ignorant man's dictionary. It promises an eternal reward to the faithful and be-"Ah!" said the imprisoned bird,

WALLACE, BIGLER & FIELDING, on my heart, and then I shall be alde to bring comfort to myself in my darkness." Thus spoke the little warbler, and soon had learned the sweet airs which were sung to it with voice and instrument. That done, the curtain was raised, for the darkness had been purposely contrived for its de-

A Methodist laborer of Westley's time-Captain Webb-when any one informed him of the conversion of a rich man, was in the habit of asking, Captain would give no credit to the conversion of the man. In this he agreed with Dr. Adam Clarke, who used to say : "He did not be leve in the religion that cost a man nothing. The religion that costs a man nothing is no religion at all; and the being converted, all but the purse, is no conversion at all.

"Mary, do you remember the text this morning?" "No, papa, I never can remember the text, I've such a bad memery." "Mary." said ber mother, "did you notice Sarah Brown? "Ob, yes. What a fright! She had on her last year's bonnet, done up, a peagreen silk, a black lace mantilla, brown gaiters, an imitation Honiton collar,a lava bracelet, her old eardrops, and such a fan! Oh, my! Oh, my! Oh, my!" "Well, my dear, your memory is improving." "If the tree fall toward the south or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be." Eecl. xi, 3. There is a solemn meaning couched under this metaphor. The tree will not only lie as it falls, it will also fall as it leans. And the great question which every one ought to bring home to his own bosom, without a moments delay is this: What is the inclination of my soul? Does it, with all its affections, lean toward Code of South in 2000. God, or from him?

A Christian mother was once show ing her little girl, about five years old, a picture representing Jesus holding an infant in his arms, while the mothers were pushing their children toward him

"There, Carrie," said ber mother, "this is what I would have done with you if I had been there.' "I wouldn't be pushed to Jesus," said little Carrie, with beautiful and [so3] touching earnestness, "I'd go to him without pushing."

It is related of a well known divine. that, when on his deathbed, he was dictating words to an amanuensis, who had written: "I am still in the land of the living," "Stop!" said the dying man, "correct that. Say: "I am yet in the land of the dying, but J. R. B'MURRAY. hope soon to be in the land of the livhis closing scene, the Christian is enabled to contrast this passing, dying world with that "which is to come."

That is a beautiful thought which a minister, in a recent public address, embedded as follows: "Where is Jesus Christ?" was once asked of a child. "He lives in our alley now," was the reply; for the boy had learned that Christ is where he has friends to serve him. Dear reader, does love, and the labor of love, give Christ a home under your roof, however humble, and in your heart, however unworthy?

It sometimes seems to us a poor thing to walk in the common paths, wherein all are walking, yet common paths are the paths in which God is met. Welcoming and fulfilling the lowest duties which meet us there, that we have been unawares welcoming and entertaining angels.

A wise man sought to explain to his little child the nature of a cross, He took two slips of wood, a long and a short one. "See, my child," he said, "the long piece is the will of God, the short piece is your will; lay your will in a line with the will of God, and you have no cross; lay it athwart and you make a cross directly."

Oh, how many of our youth are passing through these flowery gates of social pleasures down into the abyas of sensuality, of godless pride, from which only the ministry of angels can lift them up into the light of a real
