

Religious Miscellany.

"All's Well!" - "The day is well!" - "The night is well!" - "The morning is well!"

With loving kindness curling thro' my hair, And cool in the rest my burning pilgrim feet!

At peace with all the world, dear Lord, and Thou, No fears my soul's unweaving faith can shake;

CARE FOR THE SOULS OF STRANGERS. - A noble Christian woman upon her death bed used the following language:

"In looking over my past life," she said, "I feel that I have neglected souls in a degree truly criminal."

My children, my friends, and my servants I have labored and prayed; but there I rested. The Apostle Paul did not cease his labors at the point where the world's etiquette requires it.

If parents spoil their children by indulgence it is not because they love, but because their love is not balanced and directed by reason.

Oh, if people were but acquainted with piety, they would not fear it so much, or give it so unattractive a character.

Oh, if people were but acquainted with piety, they would not fear it so much, or give it so unattractive a character.

Oh, if people were but acquainted with piety, they would not fear it so much, or give it so unattractive a character.
