

The Republican.

GEORGE B. GOODLANDER, Editor.

CLEARFIELD, PA.

Thursday Morning, May 30, 1867.

PRIMARY ELECTION.—The Democratic primary election for this county will be held this year on the 13th day of July next, being the second Saturday of the month. The printer's fee for announcing the name of candidates and printing five thousand tickets each, will be as follows, viz: For Assembly, Sheriff and Treasurer, $10 each; Commissioner and District Attorney, $5 each; Auditor and Jury Commissioner, $3 each. No name will be published unless the fee accompanies the order. In our next issue we will begin to announce the names of candidates. A "military necessity" compels us to adopt this rule. We hope Democrats in the several boroughs and townships will take interest enough in the matter to send us the names of reliable and active men from which to select a vigilance committee.

Taxation.

We presume there are but few persons, if any, who are aware of the amount of taxes assessed annually in Clearfield county. We have therefore prepared a tabular statement, which will be found in this issue, showing the aggregate amount of tax in each borough and township for 1867, as well as the name of the collector. This, however, only indicates the tax on the seated and personal property. It will be observed by this table that the aggregate of the Duplicates amounts to nearly fifty thousand dollars. The school tax amounts to over forty thousand dollars—$24,000 seated and $16,000 unseated. The road tax, twenty-four thousand—$16,000 seated and $8,000 unseated. The bounty tax exceeds forty-six thousand dollars—$28,374 seated and $17,626 unseated. The county tax is nearly twenty-four thousand dollars—$16,377 seated and $7,400 unseated, while the State tax and Military fines amounts to $2,200, viz:

Bounty tax	$46,000.00
County tax	38,777.80
School tax	46,520.00
Road tax	22,777.80
Bounty tax	22,777.80
State tax	1,200.24
Military fines	1,000.00
Total	156,299.24

It will thus be noticed that the taxation in this county for 1867 amounts to the sum of one hundred and thirty-three thousand three hundred and ninety dollars and twenty-four cents, without including the poor tax assessed in some of the townships. This makes a tax bill of $30.70 for every voter. Previous to the advent of the Greeley reformation $10.00 was considered a very high figure; but so we go. If people "will be fools amidst colleges and schools," they will of course continue to buy their whistles from the firm of Thad. Stevens & Co.

THE BROTHER DIARY.—The daily papers last week published what purported to be the stolen portion of Booth's Diary—so handsomely ventilated in the Ramp Congress during the Butler-Bingham controversy which we noticed at the time. As the same thing appeared in the New York Herald more than two years ago, it reveals but little now that was not known then. It seems to have been ordered by the President, and is more remarkable, it strikes us, from what it conceals, than for what it communicates. It lets in not a ray of light upon the conspiracy, which culminated in the assassination—that is to say if there was any conspiracy—above and beyond what is already known. The diary, as given to the public, tells no secrets. But the valiant Butler asks those who have had this pass-book in their keeping to also produce the diamond breast pin taken from Booth's body at the same time the diary was taken. The "Beast" has a wonderful scent for jewelry, and the only redeeming quality that yet surrounds him, is that he still insists that all engaged in hanging Mrs. Surratt are murderers. The New York Post regrets that the diary does nothing to clear up the plot for the capture of the President, which engaged Booth and others six months. It particularly emphasizes this expression in the diary: "We had worked to capture, but our cause being almost lost, something decisive and great must be done," etc.—and then asks—

Who are "we?"

Laws.—We publish this week, a number of Acts of Assembly, passed at the late session, that are of vital importance to the public, and we hope will receive an attentive perusal by all our readers. The plea of not knowing what the law is, will avail nothing under the circumstances, and as we have plenty of cases of wilful violations of law, we are striving to diminish the number of ignorant cases.

As We Expected.

A Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press reluctantly informs the public, and the "boys in blue" in particular, that the Secretary of War has issued an order suspending the payment of additional or other bounties to soldiers and their heirs, until some appropriation for that purpose is made by Congress, the funds already appropriated being exhausted. As Congress will not in all probability meet again until December, the soldiers and their families must make up their minds to bear some further delay. This all arises from the fact that the money in the Treasury is all consumed by the increased pay to members of Congress, heads and clerks in the departments, and to keep up the Negro Bureau and military strata in the South. The "nobles Stanton" is compelled to keep and feed these blood-suckers to keep up his reputation, but the "boys in blue" and the widows and orphans of soldiers must wait for their just dues until the Rump meets again. Why could not members of the Rump and their backers wait for their pay as well as the soldier, when it was found that the demands upon the Treasury would exceed the receipts? This is loyalty with a vengeance. Feasting office-holders, but compelling the soldiers to rely on their own resources, while Stevens, Kelly & Co. are exhausting and bankrupting the Treasury.

The Reformation.

The tax-payers of our county are now reaping a plentiful harvest. Without viewing matters in a moral light, the crimes that are being committed in our midst, are truly alarming. The county prison is full of violators of the law, containing sometimes as high as fifteen persons, charged with crimes of every shade—from murder to petty larceny. The two horse-thieves—Barber and Stevens—who stole two horses near the Jefferson line several weeks ago, (which we noticed at the time,) have been arrested, together with a number of their accomplices, and are now in our jail awaiting the penalty of the law. One of the accomplices states that if he would reveal the names of those in this and in the adjoining counties who are engaged in horse-stealing and burglaries, the people would be astonished. But as the leaders in this system of crime are well known bounty-jumpers, and are following horse-stealing for profit and pleasure, we can scarcely credit this allegation. If, on the other hand, it should prove to be true, we hope no citizen will assist in shielding them, let their positions in society be what it may. As the parties charged with these high crimes will be placed upon trial at the approaching June term, we refrain from saying or doing anything to prejudice their cases, but will pay special attention to them while undergoing judicial investigation, and promptly notice any squirming on the part of those entrusted with the vindication of the law. The crime of horse-stealing is alarmingly on the increase—spreading like a fatal malady—and if not checked by a prompt enforcement of the law, it will literally lead to the confiscation of that species of property. A horse-thief soon graduates and in the line of his profession becomes a burglar, and in but one step more (if interfered with) commits murder. A sure and prompt vindication of the law is the only preventative of crime.

The Secret Out.

A confidential "pet lamb" has just come to grief in Washington. For some time there has been considerable trouble in the office of the Controller of the Currency in consequence of repeated losses of National Bank notes, the value of which generally was in $50 and $100 notes. Suspicion of these robberies rested upon a colored confidential messenger in the office of the Controller of the Currency, named Schuman, and he is now arrested for forgery and larceny of $12,000, in $50 and $100 dollar notes of the First National Bank of Jersey city and others, beside an expensive lot of stationery, purloined from the Department, and found in his house. The notes stolen were genuine impressions, but the signatures were forged. This "confidential" nigger has evidently made a shipwreck of his loyalty, but as he has been bailed out of jail for $10,000 for stealing $12,000 in greenbacks and $3,000 worth of stationery, he may reestablish it by running off. A white man might be able to pay $10,000 bail if he was "confidentially" allowed to pilfer $15,000, and make something besides; but how the "pet lamb" will come out, we are not prepared to say. White men generally are held in "double the sum stolen; but dinkies, it seems, under loyal control, are allowed some pocket money after they pay their bail.

Progress of Crime.

Our enterprising neighbor of the Journal this week furnishes his readers with a column detailing the progress of "grand moral ideas" among us. As he is a teacher in the Greeley reform school, and blessed with an abundance of loyalty, he is the proper man to impart instruction of this kind. He neglected to state that his "colored brother"—Wilson—the "lamb-spoiler," was running a prayer meeting for the benefit of the "gray deceiver" and his class-mates. He prays vehemently for horse thieves and bad men generally, while he is confined for nearly butchering one of "Lincoln's pet lambs" with a razor. While detailing the crimes committed by the white prisoners, he might as well have stated in his catalogue what the "intelligent contraband" had done, if not incompatible with fair dealing.

Deserting the Lord.

We observe that Rev. James Whitley, of Venango county, and Rev. J. L. Hays, of Crawford, are both before the loyal Conventions in their respective counties for a seat in the next Legislature. They evidently care but little for their ordination vows—being overcome by the scent for plunder. The loyalists are in the habit of bribing the clergy by voting them more pay than other members get. For years past they have hired a Rev. member in each House at Harrisburg to do the praying for them, and then voting them a bounty of three hundred dollars. This a bribe of $1,400 for four months labor causes these weak brethren to fall from grace.

The Proceedings of the Democratic Meeting.

The proceedings of the Democratic meeting held at Osceola, on Saturday last will appear in full next week. We are glad to notice that the old Democratic leaven is beginning to work thus early; besides the example set by the "Cops" in that new and enterprising borough, is worthy of imitation elsewhere. Two years ago we sent but six or eight copies of the Republican to that office, but before another year passes away our list will amount to one hundred, if all subscribe for it that should. Men who manifest enterprise and zeal in one particular, seldom fail to make it general.

The Evidence of a Case on Trial.

New York showed that a coffee manufacturing firm in that city used black lead, sand and rottenstone to give gloss and weight to their production.

The Reformation.

A Pair of Knives.

A Radical candidate in Georgia is now stumping his district, and promises every negro who shall vote for him forty acres of land and Bureau rations for the next three years. This must be very enticing to "Lincoln's pet lambs." The Devil, however, ahead of this loyalist. He once made a far more brilliant promise than this, but, as in the Georgia case, the "old boy" never owned a foot of land in the universe; besides, the proposition was original with him, while the Georgia chap is only an imitator. This loyal trick, like the Devil's, will be properly exposed ere long.

Request Refused.

Beast Butler, about ten days ago, addressed a note to Miss Anna Surratt, soliciting a private interview with her in reference to the assassination plot and the murdering of her mother by Holt & Co. The lady very promptly declined any such interview, but informed the hero of Fort Fisher, that she would meet him in the presence of her Attorney. This the gallant Butler declined, and thus the matter rests for the present. Miss Surratt had evidently read his celebrated New Orleans order, and therefore feared his presence.

Loyalty.

The New York Loyal League last week met in solemn convocation and resolved itself into a bureau of loyal justice, and summoned before its august presence Philosopher Greeley, for his late treasonable act in becoming one of Mr. Davis's bondsmen. But Horace has become "stiff-necked," calls his brethren "blockheads," refuses to meet and stand his trial, and dares them to expel him; and they didn't. This is the first battle he ever fought, and coming out first best he runs a great risk of being spoiled.

Every Loyal Pup from Maine to California.

is howling over the release of Jefferson Davis. As they do no harm to Mr. Davis during the rebellion, he is quite safe outside of the government's grasp; and we make the averment now, that neither Chief Justice Chase, nor the "Bureau of Military Justice" will ever try him. The former is too cowardly and the latter dares not; but they might persuade the skunk Underwood to try him, and if so, it will be the last of the Massachusetts school-master.

Getting Ready.

The bankrupt machinery is being put in force as fast as Judge Chase can put the cogs in the wheels. So far no appointment has been made for this Congressional district, but we notice by the Erie Observer, that Gen. E. C. Wilson, Jas. Sill and J. W. Wetmore, Esqs., of that city, are willing to accept the post of Register, and that a number of business men will apply for the benefit of the law, if the depression of business continues.

Kelley, the author of the Mobile negro riot, is a traitor soul.

Although he boasted of having fifteen regiments at his back and professed to have the whole army of the Republic at his disposal, he declined to remain in Mobile, but retired from the scene of action in a government gunboat, in the night. It is a wonder that he did not adopt the garb of his teacher—a Scotch cap and a military cloak.

The Smallest Business Yet.

The Impachment Committee, it is said, has summoned the servants employed around the President's house to give testimony as to his personal habits, and especially with regard to his abstinence. The pimps on the committee may be unconscious of the fact that they are degrading themselves, but surely no American citizen, however he may differ with the Chief Magistrate of the republic, can read this item without blushing for his country. Macaulay records that one of the English Jacobites took occasion to insult the wife of William the Third in public. The little Dutch-English King, when he heard of the incident, fairly swelled with indignation. "It was cowardly," he exclaimed to one of his secretaries. "It was cowardly," for I am powerless to resent a personal affront. If I were a private gentleman, the coward dared not do it." Andrew Johnson certainly loses none of his rights as a President by the fact that he is a President. Is there a man in Brooklyn who would not horsewhip the modicum fool who hung around his pantry to see what wine he used at his dinner, or who sneaked into his kitchen to ascertain the ingredients of the sauce he used in his pudding?—Brooklyn Eagle.

GRANTED.—At a recent term of Court in Middle county, all the applications for license to sell liquors, (postponed from previous term,) were granted except five.

John Dipple, landlord of the Black Horse Hotel, Lewistown, after receiving license, posted up the following notice, "To whom it may concern."

"The undersigned desiring to obey all laws restraining the sale of liquors, respectfully requests all heads of families who have drunken sons, husbands, wives or daughters, to give me the written notice required by law, forbidding me to sell such habitual drunkards liquor, with their signatures attached, and I pledge myself, my reputation and my property, that such requests shall be rigidly complied with. I desire to comply with all laws regulating my legitimate business, and in order to do so, request the assistance of all law-abiding citizens."
