Little things are unforseen; they return every moment; they come in contact with our pride, our indolence, our haughtiness, our readiness to take offence : they contradict our inclinations perpetually It is, however, only by fidelity in little things that a true and constant love to God can be distinguished from a passing fervor of spirit.

CHARITABLE JUDGMENT .- The following words from a sermon of Laurin deserve to be committed to memo ry as a guide to a just and charitable judgment of the character of others: In order to judge properly of a crime and a criminal, we must examine the power of the temptations to which he was exposed; the opportu-nities given him to avoid it; the force of his natural constitution; the mo-tives which animated him; the resistance he made; the virtues he practiced; the talents God gave him; the education he had; what knowledge he had acquired; what remorse he felt. It must be examined whether he G. H. ZEIGLER & CO., was seduced by ignorance; whether he was allured by example; whether

A SERMON TO A PREACHER.-Never shall I forget the remark of a learned legal friend, who was at one time somewhat skeptical in his views.

Said he to me: "Did I believe as you found elsewhere in this part of the State, at perishing in sin, I could have no rest. would fly to tell them of salvation. I would labor day and night. I Our stock comprises a general assertment of would spoak with all the energy and Tools and Materials used by Carpenters, Blackpathos I could summon. I would warn and entreat my fellow-men to large stock of turn unto Christ, and receive salvation at his hands. I am astonished IRON, NAILS, STEEL, SPIKES. at the manner in which the majority were as tame as you are, we would not gain a single suit." A decade of years has passed away since that remark was made. I bless God it was addressed to me. It put a fire in my bones which I hope will barn as long as I live. God preached a stirring sermon to me that day by Lard, Ln seed, Col, Lub reating and the mouth of that infidel lawyer.

ERROR, FAITH AND EXPERIENCE.-It us in the present day to stand and say that a man is not saved by the form of what he believes. It is more important for us to assert that neither is a man saved by what he disbelieves. When you have unmade the intellectual foundation of a hundred creeds, you As excellent assertment of Fine Cutlery, com have made no church for yourself. When your newer or nicer logic has overturned the fallacies of no matter what council or cannon, you have yet not given man a guide for faith or an example for life. If you try to do this, you will find that the ground of religious experience lies beyond the short-comings of other men and your own. No fault of yours need deprive you of the comfort of recognizing an eternal standard of perfection which is always present for your study and endeavor; and no fact of theirs absolves you from the necessity of measuring your own thoughts and efforts by that standard. He who is religious believes in the efficiency of faith. He knows error to be as inevitable to himself as others. But he knows that the results of faith are so much greater than the hindrances of error, that he seeks, in the culture of the one, the true and only remedy against the incursions of the other.

THE EARNEST USE OF LUFE. - Let us think how little we use life thoroughly, how little we really live our life, ow seldom we are in the humor to carry out life's great and solemn purposes, how we let its opportunities fly by us, like thistledown on the wind. Why are we not always denying ourselves, taking up the cross, and following Christ? Why are we not always on the watch for every occasion in which a word may be said, or a deed done, a thought thought, that shall be a protest for Christ, in this vain and sinful world? Why is God's love but a rare wintry gleam, and never a steady summer in our soul? Think, for instance, of such a thing as prayer; what a wonderful and beautiful thing it is! To kneel, an atom in creation, at the throne of the Almighty; to be able to bare our hearts to him, and to feel sure that the least throb, as well as the great spasms, is perfectly appreciated, felt, understood, sympathized with, by that awful yet loving Being!

And yet how wintry our hearts are in our prayers! how seldom they burst into cheerful praises! how contantly the sky above us seems rule.

stantly the sky above us seems pale and heavy, and impenetrable, and our hearts beneath abiding in their winter sleep Or if a snowdrop here and there wanders out, and now and then a pinobed primrose, there are not flowers enough to fashion into Damas Pile Salva according to directions and has used Dr.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY. THE times are hard; you'd like to know How you may ears your dollars. How you may save your dollars; The way to do it I will show, If you will roud what follows.

A man who lived not far from here, Who worked hard at his trade, But had a household to support That squandered all he made.

I met him once. Says he, "My friend, I look thread bear and rough; I've tried to get myself a suit, But can't save up enough."

Says I, my friend, how much have you? I'll tell you where to go To get a suit that's sound and cheap: To REIZENSTRIN & Co.

To REIZENSTEIN & Co.

He took what little he had saved,
And went to Reizentsin & Brothers',
And there he got a handsome suit,
For half he paid to others.

Now he is home; he looks so well,
And their effect is such,
That when they take their daily meal,
They don't eat half as much.

And now he finds on Saturday night,

With all their wants supplied, That he has money left to spend, And some to lay aside.

His good success, with cheerful smile, He gladly tells to all. If you'd save money, go and buy Your clothes at-REIZENSTEIN'S CLOTHING HALL.
