The late Radical State Convention, by its resolutions and the speeches of its officers and members, expresses the utmost horror for the Democratic and that is: that there never was a party and its purposes. This may not be just, but it is very natural for men whose record is made up of blood men whose record is made up of blood and oppression; besides, everybody knows that among the objects and designs of the Democratic party, the principal ones are the prompt dismissal of the Radicals from place, power and emoluments-to wrest from them the control of the Army, Navy and Treasury, and direct them, channels and in the interests of the day than ever before, and a man must is the father of lies.—Butler Herald. be a despot at heart, or as blind as a people and for the happiness of manbat, if he don't see the point. kind. Manufacturers, mechanics, the arts and sciences, advanced along the highway of civilization unimpeded, unstamped and untaxed. while general joy and happiness abounded throughout the Union, and no one dared to molest or confiscate his neighbor's goods. This felicitons condition of things continued while the Democratic party retained control of all the departments of the Government, and would have continued until this day, had not the people foolishly thrust an enemy into our Eden, in the person of the "late Lamented." The Radical Majority.

In no one thing has the present Congress shown a more perfect disregard of all law and all decept than in their decisions of contested election cases. The radical contestant is sure to receive his seat, no matter what his character may be or how slight the grounds on which his claim is based. In the late contest between Powell and But-Butler of Tennessee, certain important facts were suppressed in the report of the Committee. Butler, to whom the Endicals assigned toe seat, because now himself a Endiral, was proven to have precared assessination and seas proven to have presented assassination and nurder. He gave one Lafayette Jones a pair of soots for killing a Union citizen by the name of Wangh, and also offered one Eilis a suit of clothes to pass through the lines and assassinate one Me-queen. Ellis attempted it but failed, and Con-gress relieves Butter of all political dirability by special legislation, and gives him the sent to which Powell was farely elected. And this is but another of the many outrages of a like character which have been committed. It is by such mean that the Radical majority in Congress is kept up Jeff. Davis, & Co. left her two years
