The Radical Conspiracy.

The impeachment bareau made but little progress the past week. The case was opened on Thursday last, on the part of the President, by Judge Curtis, who fully established the Judicial character of the Impeachnihilated Butler as Commodore Por. pecially, universal negro suffrage. ter did in the Fort Fisher affair. President Johnson is not being tried for committing "high crimes and misdemeanors," as the seven murderers, Rump House charge; but he is to be ejected from the White House through pure partisan malice, for the purpose of getting Ben Wade, one of their own tools, into his place.

The President has been a great hindrance to this pestiferous clan of revenge into Senators, Mr. Johnson is bound to go out. If, on the other hand, there are to be found in that body, hincleen statesmen, men who have more respect for their oaths and the Constitution of their country, than for party revenge, Andrew Johnson will maintain his place until the 4th of March next, the Constitution will again be triumphant, and our distracted country saved from a revolution. The Radical leaders are becoming alarmed at their own crimes, and in war. Failing to convict Jefferson Davis, they of course will not oust their own Vice President elect

[From the New York Horald] Elections and their Important Contest.

The confident hopes of the Repub licans of a great victory in Connecticut have been signally disappointed. They have not only failed to recover the State, but have failed to preventa significant increase of last year's Demperatic majority. Before the election all the advantages of the contest were apparently on the Radical side. der the flag of General Grant as their Presidential candidate they were all brought into line and worked harmo niously together. Their working politicians were further encouraged by the prospect of some immediate re wards in a new division of the Federal spoils with the removal of Andrew Johnson; they were relieved of Barnum and his menagerie, and the bright and balmy skies of election day gave them every facility to bring out all their reserves in the rural districts. On the other hand, the Democrats without a Presidential champion, and uncertain where they would find one, had an uphill battle to fight against the great Union hero of the war. How is it, then, that they have won this remarkable victory? They have won it upon the broad and general issue of hostility to the excesses and revolutionary schemes and tendencies ment Tribunal, and as completely an. of the party in power, including, es-
