At eleven o'clock this morning, a large meeting of Democrats was held in the square opposite Masonic Hall, South Tenth street.

At two minutes past twelve o'clock the great of the Chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee was heard calling order.

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: It is my privilege to-day to welcome you here in this hall, constructed with so much artistic taste and tenderness to you by the time-honored society of Tammany.

It is a most auspicious omen, that we meet under such circumstances, and are surrounded by such associations, and I share your own confident hope of the overwhelming success of the ticket and the platform which will be the result of your deliberations.

Mr. Belmont, after the applause which greeted his address, said: Gentlemen, I have the honor to offer you as temporary Chairman of the Convention, Hon. H. Palmer of Wisconsin.

the judiciary, and it is impossible to doubt, after the events of the past few months, and the circumstances of the impeachment trial, they will not shrink from an attempt hereafter to subvert the Senate of the United States, which alone stood between them and their victim, and which had virtue enough left not to allow the American name to be utterly disgraced, and justice to be dragged in the dust.

It is impossible that a free and intelligent people can longer submit to such a state of things. They will not calmly stand by to see their liberties subverted, their property and greatness of their country undermined, and the institutions bequeathed to them by the fathers of the Republic, wrested from them.

charge of the committee, which was decided in the affirmative, and the committee discharged.

The chair appointed Mr. Bigler, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Hammond, of South Carolina, to conduct the permanent President to the chair. Governor Seymour proceeded to the chair and briefly returned thanks for the honor conferred upon him; counseled moderation, toleration and harmony. He discussed the Republican platform; accused the party of violating its own declarations against repudiation and unequal taxation, and then asserted solicitude for the soldiers' and sailors' widows and orphans.

Mr. Brooks rose in behalf of the Delegation of New York, to move the reconsideration of the motion for a meeting of the Convention to-night. He urged the extreme heat, and remarked that unusual progress had been made to-day, and that the city of New York had made great preparations for the appropriate celebration of this day, and hoped the Convention would give its members opportunity to participate in this celebration.

Mr. Madigan, of Maine, hoped the Convention would, in courtesy to the city of New York, agree to this motion.

A motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider was made, on which the vote by States was ordered, resulting: Yeas 134; nays 184; so the motion to reconsider was not tabled.

After a protracted debate the motion was adopted.

A resolution that the members of the Soldiers' and Sailors' convention be invited to seats in the hall was adopted.

The Declaration of Independence having been read by the Secretary, the convention adjourned until ten o'clock on Monday.

dignified manner in which he discharged the duties of that position. Mr. Bigler, of Pennsylvania, moved that the Convention proceed to name candidates to be balloted for President and Vice President of the United States.

Mr. Hudson, of Missouri, moved to amend by substituting a resolution, that no steps be taken toward the nomination of a candidate for President until after the platform shall have been presented and adopted.

Mr. Spaulding, of Kentucky, moved a resolution that parties put in nomination before this Convention shall be pledged by their friends to support its ticket and platform. Referred.

Mr. Emerson, of Missouri, offered a resolution calling upon the committee on resolution to report the platform at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. Cux, of New York, moved to amend so as to admit the entire eleven delegates from the District. Lost.

Mr. Kerr, of Pennsylvania, offered a resolution that it is the duty of every friend of constitutional government to sustain the President in his efforts to stem the tide of Radical usurpation, and recommend him for his course. [Cheers.] The resolution was referred.

Mr. Hall, of New York, offered a resolution declaring that the thanks of the nation are due to Chief Justice Chase for his ability, impartiality and fidelity to the constitutional duty in presiding over the court of impeachment. [Prolonged cheers.]

Mr. Reed, of Pennsylvania, offered a resolution recognizing the fidelity of Andrew Johnson in upholding the Constitution and laws. Referred.

offered by the Rev. Mr. Plummer, who retired with appropriate feeling to the sudden death of Peter Cagier, a delegate to the convention from New York.

On motion of Mr. Bigler, of Pennsylvania, the reading of yesterday's journal was dispensed with.

Mr. Wright, of Delaware, submitted a series of resolutions from Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, which he asked to have read and referred.

The resolutions were read by the Secretary.

The resolutions declared adherence to the Union; that the Union under the constitution is a union of States, and that the doctrines of Jefferson should be reaffirmed, and the necessity of bringing the government back to their observance; that the Democratic party, in sustaining the Federal government during the late war did so in good faith to sustain the constitution, to preserve the rights and dignity of all the States unimpaired; that the highest meed of patriotism is due to all who perilled life and fortune for the maintenance of the Union, but we have no thanks for those who carried on the war for the subjugation of the States or to subject the white to the black race.

First. Immediate restoration of all the States to their rights in the Union under the Constitution, and of civil government to the American people.

Second. Amnesty for all past political offenses, and the regulation of the elective franchise in the States by their citizens.

Third. Payment of the public debt of the United States as rapidly as practicable; all moneys drawn from the people by taxation, except so much as is requisite for the necessities of the Government, economically administered, being honestly applied to such payment, and where the obligations of the Government do not expressly state upon their face, or the law under which they were issued does not provide that they shall be paid in coin, they ought in right and in justice to be paid in the lawful money of the United States. [Thunders of applause.]

Fourth. Equal taxation of every species of property according to its real value, including Government bonds and other public securities. [Renewed cheering and cries of "read it again!"]

Fifth. One currency for the Government and the people, the laborer and the office-holder, the pensioner and the soldier, the producer and the bondholder. [Great cheering and cries of "read it again!"] The fifth resolution was again read, and again cheered.
