THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE. Washington, Dec. 9, 1868.

Pellow Citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives :

Upon the reassembling of Congress again becomes my duty to call your attention to the state of the Union and to its continued disorganized condition under the various laws which have been passed upon the subject of construction. It may be safely assumed as an axom in the government of States that the greatest wrongs inflicted upon a people are caused by unjust and arbitrary legislation, or by the unreleating decrees of despotic rulers, and that the timely revocation of injurious and oppressive measures is the greatest good that can be conferred upon a nation. The legislator who has the wisdom and magnanimity to retrace his steps when cognizant of errors will sooner or later be rewarded with the respect and gratitude of an intelligent and patriotic people. Our own history, although embracing a period less than a century affords abundant proof that most if not all our domestic troubles are directly traceable to the violation of infringed. It is believed that the repeal of all such laws would be accepted by the American people as at least a partial return to the fundamental principles of the government, and indicative that hereafter the Constitution is to be made the nation's safe and neering gaide. They can be productive of no permanent benefit to the country, and should not be ments of the past three years upon the question of reconstruction. After fair trial they have substantially failed and proved pernicious in their results, and there seems to be no good reason why they should longer remain upon the statute book. States to which the Constitution guarantees a republican formed government have been reduced to military dependencies, in cach of with these of 1791, it will be seen that been made subject to the arbitrary will of the commanding general. Although the Constitution requires that each State shall be represented in Crosses of the status and segment seed on the war of the Revolution, and was suffering from the war of the Revolution, and was suffering from the converted into capital to robe reference to our public indebtedness, which has accumpate the season to be no good reason why they should longer remain upon the statute book. States to which the Constitution guarantees a republican formed government fare been reduced with an indebtedness of seventy-from illions. By comparing the public disbursments of 1859 as estimated with these of 1791, it will be seen that been made subject to the arbitrary will of the commanding general. Although the Constitution requires that each State shall be represented in Crosses and the intolerance of our mental makes under the restance of the demoralizing tendence in interest of a redundant and worth loss connection to our the national banks, upon which these institutions issue their circular property from the war of the Revolution, and was suffering from the robertees committed by a depreciate to our the national banks, upon which these architects and the intolerance an
