We might mention his annuity of $5,000 to Dr. Coggswell, for so many years the librarian of the Astor Library. His retention of old clerks and employees as long as they can work, and then retiring them on pensions, shows strikingly the kindness of the heart. We might multiply indefinitely instances of his honevolence.

instances of his benevolence.

Attempts to blackmail Mr. Astor have been of frequent occurrence. The most remarkable was that made by one signing himself E. K. Bassford, who, it will be remembered, attempted, some twenty years ago, to extort $50,000 from him.

PERSONAL LIFE.

Mr. Astor married a daughter of General Armstrong, Secretary of War under President Madison. She is a highly accomplished lady and a well known liberal contributor to public and private charities. They have had six children—three sons and three daughters—all of whom, excepting the side of the same material as the main edifice. A delivative perfume greets this visitor.
