We are informed that a slight fire was discovered in Reed's mill at Wal-laceton, Clearfield county, on Friday morning of hast week, just as the mill was about to be put is operation. It was extinguished with very little effort. On Saturday, while the mill was ranning, fire broke out in the same spot, when the floor was torn up, and it was discovered to have originated from the friction produced by a broken countershaft, which was speedily repaired.
