WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 19, 1879.

A LAY OF THE OLDEN TIME.

One morning of the first end fall, Poor Adam and his bride Sat in the shade of Eden's wall— But on the outer side.

She, blushing in her fig-leaf suit
For the chaste garb of old;
He, sighing o'er its bitter feuit
For Eden's grapes of gold.

Rehind them, smiling in the norm, Their forfest garden lay; Refore them, wild with rack and thorn The desert stretched away. They heard the air above them fanned, A light risp on the sward. And lo? they saw before them stand. The augel of the Lord?

"Arise," he said, "why look behind, Whom hope is all before. And patient hand and willing mind Your loss may yet restore?

"I leave with you a spell whose power Can make the differt glad, And call around you fruit and flower As fair as Eden had.

"I abothe your hands with power to lift. The curse from all your soil; Your very doom shall seem a gift--Your loss a gain through toil. "Go' cheerful as you humming bees, To labor to to play." While glimmering over Eden's trees, The angel passed away.

The pilgrims of the world went furth Obedient to the word, And found where'se they filled the earth, A garden of the Lord!

The thorn tree east its svil fruit And blushed with pinm and pear, And seeded grass and trobben root Grew sweet beneath their care. We share our primal parents' fate, And in our turn and day Look back on Edra's swarded gate As and and lost as they.

But still for us his native skies The pitying angel leaves, And leads through full to Paradise New Adams and new Eccs.
