The impulse to a worldly prayer,
The dreams of love and trath;
The longing after something lost,
The spirit's yearting erg;
The string after better hopes—
These things can never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid.
A brather in his need,
The kindly eard in grief's durk bour.
That provides a firm indeed;
The plus for many softly breathed.
When justice threatms night;
The straw of a contribe heart—
These things shall never die.

The memory of a clarying hand,
The pressure of a kiso,

THE AMAZON RIVER.

Let us, following in brief abstract the account of Mr. Orton, touch upon some prominent characteristics of this great ocean river. It rises in the lit-tic Paruvian Lake of Lauricocha, just below the limits of perpetual snow.— For 500 miles it flows wiftly through a deep valley. Then, turning sharply castward, it runs 2500 miles across the great equatorial plain. Two thousand miles above its mouth. Its wiath is a mile and a half, increasing to more than ten miles at the head of the Delta, where it divides, and, after running 400 miles, presents a front of 150 miles upon the ocean. For a great distance it is bordered by side chan-President goes first." This folly to the winds—in all thirteen tons, will in time come to an end. Contra-worth $91. This exposure of entile ry to all that we might expect, the and calves reduced their size and climate of the Amazon Valley is temcrease, six head, and average value more equal than in any other region lost, 58 each $48. Ten per cent of of the world. Year in and year out his sleep and lambs were lost by want it ranges from 74° to 87°-the fair years this annual loss, with compound to be steadily increasing. How the Thus one fortune has been sunk. Secondly. In want of good rotation carry a face unsuffused with a blush of crops. He raised wheat after wheat, of shame, are very difficult questions oats after oats, and corn after corn, because the stubble was most easily ploughed, till his land was exhausted account of themselves so firmly on their account on the continue of the corn, and the age, of at least $5 an acre, on about more anchorage grounds. The gale of public opinion blows heavily against them, and notwithstanding the rocky oterest, would amount to more than ledges of disgrace are just under them, $50,000! This was the second fortune they doggedly ride out the storm, and grow more hateful and ugly by reason of their prolonged existence We often wonder if the professional loafer ever reflects that it would cost him much less to be a respectable, industrious man. A first-class lonfer follows his profession at the expense of days, weeks, months, years. His entire time must be devoted to it. It costs him friends, health, vigor, comfort, honor, dignity, self-respect, and finally all regret and consideration fox tail when dead. So says an exchange, Idleness leads to vice, immorality and orime, and finally to the penitentiary or the gallows. It would be a hundred fold better if every idle boy or loufer was engaged in some useful conpation-even though it be no higher than a had-carrier or street cavenger. It might save them from the penitentiary or the gallows. those who have idle boys put them to some useful occupation.

---A few days ago, a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, on his way to Harrisburg, stepped up to the ticket office of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, in this city, and, by way of a joke, asked the agent for a ticket to Paradise, knowing, at the same time, there was no station by that rume on the road. The agent, who is a smart fellow bunded the Legislator a Bible, which
