FASHIONABLE WOMEN - Fashion kills more women than toil or sorrow Obedience to fashion is a greater transgression of the laws of woman's na ture, a greater injury to her mental and physical constitution, than the hard-hips of poverty and ne-glect. The slave weman at her task "For thy Stomach's Sake and thine will live and grow old, and see two or three generations of her mistresses fade and pass away. The washerwo man, with scarce a ray of hope to cheer her in her toils, will live to see her fashionable sisters all extinct.-The kitchen maid is hearty and strong. when her lady has to be nursed like a sick baby. It is a sad truth, that Tashion pampered women are almost worthless for all the good ends of life, they have but little force of character they have still less power of moral will, and quite as little physical enerwill, and quite as little physical energy. They live for no great purpose in life—they accomplish no great ends. HANNIBAL'S SKELETON .- Thousands of persons throughout the United States, who have gazed in wonder upon the collosal proportions of Van Amburg's famous elephant Hannibal, on exhibition in this country forty-six years, the largest specimen of the spe-cies over imported into this country or Europe, will be interested in the final disposal of his bones, which, we understand, are to be added to the Zoological curiosities of New York Central Park

Hannibal died at Centreville, Md., in about the ninetieth year of his ago, in May 1866. The complete skeleton of an elephant being very difficult to obtain, the bones are correspondingly valuable, and great precautions were, factured exclusively by in consequence, taken to preserve those of Hannibal, and under the charge of Albert Townsend, the earcass was dragged to a field about a mile from the village, and a large strong mansoleum of masonry erected over it. There it was suffered to remain until the flesh had wasted away.
