The whole Frend force that was drawn up along the boundary at the beginning of the wa- and after a month of active prepara- ion was something above two hun- dred thousand; it certainly did no- signes two hundred and fitty thous and men. Of course their defeat by the Pressian half million was for- donned; and what we have now with oessed is but the demonstration of what was stated in this debate. The only voice of hostility agains formany manifested in this debat was that of Granier de Cassagnao When the Government was arged by Garnier Pages to reduce the army by exclaimed, "Let us take the Rhims and then we will diminish our arms by two hundred thousand. They were exempted from the cases of the contest, and as a matter of course, should be from its effects. If the French people dis- claim all intentions of interfering with Prussia, then Prussia should agree to such a peace as will leave them in a condition to govern France accord- ing to the popular will. If William acts in a different manner he will show that Prussia fought under false colors, and that the real intention was to force one King from the throne and put another in his place, just as a different in the popular will for a false colors, and that the real intention was to force one King from the throne and put another in his place, just as a different is to govern herself, why not France? The real question which now interests freemen of all national ities is, shall France confilmed a Re- poble? The people are on the side of a free government, and Kings on Ministers who oppose their desires will in the end feel their vengeance Napoleon cheated and defied the peop- ple of France, and he is a prisoner of war in a foreign land—his crown bro- ken—his sceptre destroyed William and Bismarck should profit by this bit of personal history. Germany an- fermans are not insonsible to the calls of the age for a free government and what is now taking place is France may be duplicated in Father iand.
