JERUSALEM RECOVERED.

Recent Explorations in Palestine.

Early in 1864 the sanitary condition of Jerusalem excited considerable at tention among the foreign official residents and visitors there, especially amony the English, who take the lead of all other nations in anxiety about the public health. The holy city, which the psalmist described as "beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth," had become one of the most unhealthy places in the world; and the chief reasons assigned for this change were the bad quality of the water and the exhalations from the slow decay of a mass of rubbish in the valleys and ravines which had been accumulating for centuries. This mass of rubbish was so great that it was hardly possible to do anything with it; but the question of water was easier to manage, and vari ousschemes were proposed for improv-
