

Benehoff Robbery Trial.

Our readers will remember the Benehoff robbery in Venango county some years ago, in which old Mr. Benehoff was assaulted in his own home by persons to disguise, who after robbing him of a large amount of money, made their escape. About a year ago, one of the accessories was arrested in Ohio, where he was living on his ill-gotten gains. He was convicted and sentenced to prison for a year, but he has now got out, and it seems he is making things lively for some of the witnesses against him. Below we give an extract taken from the Titusville Herald.

An interesting case is now before the court at Franklin. More than a year ago, one Shopert was tried and convicted as an accessory in the great Benehoff robbery. The principal testimony against him was given by two accomplices, Walde and Miller, whose evidence was secured by a promise on the part of the prosecution that, in consideration thereof, no further proceedings should be taken against them. But now Shopert has served out his year in prison, and "goes for" his comrades who so meekly "went back" on him. The testimony of Shopert is very interesting, and we shall try to give it fully in another issue.

It is said to be very damaging to two or three Meadville lawyers and some one or two detectives in the case. A curious feature in the case at present is, that Mr. Benehoff is assisting Walde and Miller in their defense. Mr. B. recovered, it is said, forty or fifty thousand dollars of his stolen money, and never expects to get what the professional "crackmen" received for their work, or what James Sager, the superintendent of the whole affair, took with him to Europe, Asia or Africa. A detective in the case, named Mr. Benehoff for the reward offered for the detection of the thieves. If Walde and Miller are now convicted of the robbery, the case of Detective vs. Benehoff will be materially strengthened for the plaintiff; hence the anxiety of Mr. B. to shield the parties now arraigned and thus frustrate the ends of justice. The case is before Judge Penley, Associate Judges Conroy and McCormick, with a grand jury, and we have no doubt that the law will be thoroughly vindicated.

LATER.

James Sager, Hugh Donnelly, alias Hugh Donaldson, Louis Walde, George Miller, et al. Indictment, robbery.—This is the second edition of the Benehoff robbery, committed on the night of January 10th, 1868. Two of the defendants, Louis Walde and George Miller, were placed on trial, the first as a principal in the robbery, and the second as an accessory before the fact. The suit has occupied the court over two days and was closely contested by the counsel on both sides. On Friday, after the evidence had been closed, and while the counsel were addressing the jury, it became the defendants had left without awaiting the result. Inquiry was made and it proved correct, for Louis Walde was not to be found. The telegraph and other means were brought into requisition and in a few hours the prisoner was again in custody, having been captured in Meadville. The jury, after an absence of about six hours, returned with a verdict of guilty as to George Miller. The court ordered the jury to be taken back to their room and left together until tomorrow, when the verdict as to Walde will be received, if the sheriff returns with him.

LATER.

Friday morning, after the progress of the trial in this case, about half past ten o'clock, Walde left the Court room and made his escape to Meadville, where he was captured Friday afternoon by Sheriff Herpst and brought back to Franklin on the eight o'clock train on Saturday morning. Court convened this morning (Saturday) at half past eight o'clock, when the jury came in with a verdict of guilty as to Miller, as he stood indicted, and guilty as to Walde on the third count of the indictment, viz: of being an accessory before the fact.

A Motion was made by defendant's counsel for arrest of judgment, and was refused by the Court, which was sentenced to the penitentiary for five years and one month, and Miller for one year and one month.

An Affecting Scene.

[From the Lexington (Ky.) Press.] On Sunday last, as the venerable Chief Justice Robertson, stricken by the hand of death, lay almost insensible to the world which he seemed fast leaving forever, while the gigantic brain which, for so many years, has throbbled grandly to the inspirations of his genius, barely fluttered with the consciousness of life, he expressed a desire to hear Miss Cary (ary) the ballad of "Old Folks at Home," as if the strains of his favorite melody would have the power to call back his soul from the portals of the grave which he was so fast nearing. The wish was at once communicated to Mrs. Cary, who willingly consented to do anything in her power to rouse the dying current of life, but before few rivis-oring the course of a long and eventful life. On reaching the residence of Judge Robertson, Miss Cary was ushered into the chamber where so much of intellect and learning was fast flickering out into the darkness of the unknown hereafter, and without accompaniment of any kind, she softly and contralto voice in the touching "Old Folks at Home," upon the Swaine River, but before she had sang three lines, broke down in the intensity of her emotion.—Calming herself again, she sang the ballad and while the venerable and stricken man lay dividing her glorious melody, poured out her whole soul in the simple utterances which gave so much pleasure to one whose giant intellect had in days ago, gone, the most talented of the land.—When she had ceased, Judge Robertson could scarcely express his gratification by signs, yet signified a desire that Miss Cary should sing for him, "Home, Sweet Home." Twice did the gifted artist attempt to comply with the request, but her emotion was so great, and choked with feeling, she was compelled to leave the room. The whole incident was one of the most touching and affecting episodes that ever marked the death-bed of a departing greatness.
