But many of the fathers of the church denied that Adam and Eve, and their children were the only people on the globe. They affirmed that the text in Genesis very plainly implies that the earth was already widely populated; for, when God declared that Cain should be driven out from his family and made a vagabond on the carth, Cain deprecated the seathers and pleaded "that every one that findeth me shall slay me." It was plainly not his family connections that he feared, for he desired not to be driven out from them. It was the people that he should meet when a wanderer on the earth. THE CHRISTIAN STATESMAN. This pious phase of public life, now common to the National Capitol, has not been sufficiently studied. It is a sweet study; we may say, without fear of exaggeration, that it is a highly interesting study.

As the naturalist puts a lonthsome insect upon the point of a needle under the microscope, and, crowaling down his disgust, proceeds to dissect and describe for the benefit of mankind, so we eatch the Christian States man and proceed to diagnose one of the ugliest diseases to which the body politic is subjected. NEW SERIES--VOL. 12, NO. 17.

Religion in a public man-charitable, upostentations, and steadfast, and consistent in duily act with former profession, is a gentle though infre ment element in every great charactor. Time was in the innocent past when after being convicted of wrong doing retired to the shades of private life.— Now, however, the good men make the exception, and the faithless many flaunt it abroad without secrecy. He was always ready to give one other and further shrick for freedom, be the same more or less. Shricking was a good stock in trade, and in time he made it valuable. There fell, once upon a time, a great famine upon the lived, and the hearts of far-off men were moved to compassion, and a great store of provisions was sent to the starving people. For their better distribution the freedom-shrieker, our pious politician, was selected as agent Among other stores there was a great

After the war the sham pious states man got with other pious statesmen and formed an union that, in the valgar parlance of the political arena, is call ed "a ring," but these solemn, cold-water, prayerful duffers called it an association; and they said one auto the other, "Lo, the poor Indian! is he not a heathen and an outcast, and of a Christian community?" And so they went for the copper colored heathen. They took from him his lands, his blankots, his subsidies, his about Cain? Does nobody wish to ing a felony.
